Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, sent him a reading to comfort him: “When We told the angels to prostrate before Adam they all obeyed except Iblis (Satan), who refused.” (20:116) Then Allah sent him a message that said, ‘O Muhammad, I commanded them and they disobeyed. Muhammad in Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from ibn Mahbub from al-Husayn ibn Nu‘im al-Sahhaf who has said the following:

“Once I asked abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the words of Allah: ‘. . . certain persons of you have believed and others of you have not . . .’ (64:2)

“The Imam said, ‘Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, has defined their belief by means of their love for us. He has defined their disbelief, in the same way, by the same fact. This took place on the day He asked all the offspring of Adam (in the form of minute beings) to make a covenant.’

“I then asked him about the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious: ‘Obey Allah and the Messenger, but if you turn away, you must know that the only duty of Our Messenger is to clearly preach.’ (64:12)

“The Imam said, ‘By Allah, no one of those who were destroyed before or those who will be destroyed up to the time of the rise of al-Mahdi with Divine Authority were or will be destroyed only because of their disregarding our Wilayah (Leadership with Divine Authority) and the denial of our rights. The Messenger of Allah did not leave this world before establishing the great responsibility on this ’Umma to observe our rights. Allah guides to the right path whomever he wants.’” said that his father narrated to him from Ahmad ibn ‘Isa who has said that Ja‘far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, narrated to me from his father and from his grand father who has said the following:

“About the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, ‘They know the bounties of Allah but they deny them. . . .,’ (16:83) the Imam said that when this verse was revealed, ‘Only Allah, His Messenger, and the true believers who are steadfast in prayer and pay alms, while they kneel during prayer, are your guardians,’ (5:55) certain persons of the companions of the Messenger of Allah, gathered in the Mosque of Madina. They said, ‘If we reject this verse we have rejected the rest of them. However, if we accept, it will be humiliating for us when Ali ibn abu Talib, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will take control.’ They said, ‘We have learned that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is truthful in all that he has said but we turned away in disobedience of his command to obey Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’ The Imam said that upon this, a verse was revealed that reads: ‘They do have knowledge of the bounties of Allah but they deny them. . . .’ (16:83) It means that they know about the Wilayah (Leadership with Divine Authority) of Ali ibn abu Talib, recipient of divine supreme covenant, but many of them have refused to acknowledge it.’”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu‘alla ibn Muhammad from Bastam ibn Murra from Ishaq ibn Hassa’n from al-Haytham ibn Waqid from Ali ibn al-Husayn al-‘Abdi from Sa‘d al-’Iskaf from Asbagh ibn Nubata that he asked Amir al-Mu’minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“About the words of Allah, the Most High: ‘. . . To give thanks to Me first and then your parents, to Me all things proceed,’ (31:14) the Imam said, ‘The parents who must be thanked are the ones who provide knowledge, and leave wisdom as their legacy and people are commanded to obey them. Allah then has said, ‘ . . to Me all things proceed.’ (31:14) People proceed to Allah and the parents are the guides to such goal. Allah then has addressed ibn Hantama and his friend saying in particular and in general, ‘If they try to force you to consider things as My partners, . . .’ (31:15) [meaning partners with the executor of the will of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant], or try to make you deviate from the command to obey him (Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant), then do not obey them (parents in general, ibn Hantamah and friends in particular) and do not listen to them. Then Allah directed His words to the case of the parents: ‘Maintain lawful relations with them in this world. . . .’ (31:15) It says to propagate the virtue and excellence of the (spiritual) parents and call people to their guidance which is also mentioned in these words of Allah, ‘. . . and follow the path of those who turn in repentance to Me. To Me you will all return. . . .’ (31:15)

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn Sayf from his father from 'Amr ibn Harith who has said the following:

"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the words of Allah, the Most High: '. . . a blessed tree which has firm roots and branches rising up into the sky.' (14:24)

"The Imam said that the Messenger of Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'The root is Amir al-Mu'minin Ali and the branches are 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority), recipients of divine supreme covenant, from their (Amir al-Mu'minin Ali and the Holy Prophet's, recipients of divine supreme covenant) descendents and the knowledge of 'A'immah stand for the fruits. Their faithful followers represent the leaves of such tree.' The Imam then asked, 'Is there anything else in the tree?' I said, 'No, there is nothing else there.' The Imam then said, 'By Allah, when a believer gives birth to a child a leaf grows in the tree and when a believer dies a leaf falls off the tree.'"

"About the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, '. . . The belief of any soul will be of no avail to it unless it was formed before [when Allah asked all people for a covenant] or has earned good deeds with it. . . .,' (6:158) the Imam said, 'It (earned good deeds) means to acknowledge the prophets and the executors of their wills especially Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.' A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn abu Nasr from Hammad ibn 'Uthman from abu 'Ubayda al-Hadhdha' who has said the following:

"Once I asked abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the capability and the words of people. The Imam recited this verse of the Holy Quran: '. . . they still have different beliefs (11:118) except those upon whom Allah has granted His mercy. For this reason He has created them. . . .' (11:119) 'O abu 'Ubayda, people face differences in search for truth and all of them will be destroyed,' said the Imam.

‘I (the narrator) then asked, “What about the words of Allah: ‘. . . except those who receive mercy from your Lord. . . .?’” (11:119)

‘The Imam said, “Such people are our followers whom He has created for His mercy. ‘. . . For this reason He has created them. . . .’” (11:119)

Note: in the following passage, as the previous ones, what is inside brackets is the words of the Imam and the rest are the words of the Holy Quran.

‘[He (Allah) has said that they are created to obey the Imam of ‘Blessings’ that He has mentioned in His words]: “. . . My mercy and blessings have encompassed all things. . . .” (7:156) [Such ‘Blessing’ is the knowledge of Imam. The knowledge of 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority) is from His knowledge, which has encompassed all things. They (all things) stand for our Shi‘a, followers].

‘[Then He has said], “. . . I shall grant mercy to those who maintain piety [do not acknowledge the authority of and obedience to those who are not of 'A'immah] . . .” (7:156)

‘[Then Allah has said], “. . . whose description they find written in the Torah and the Gospel, . . . [the Holy Prophet, the executor of his will and al-Qa’im (the one who will rise with Divine Authority)] . . . enjoins them to do good [when he will rise with Divine Authority and power] . . . and forbids them to do all that is unlawful . . . [Munkar, unlawful, is one who does not acknowledge the Wilayah of Imam and denies it] . . . He makes lawful for them all that is pure . . . [he receives knowledge from its proper source] . . . and unlawful all that is filthy. . . . [The words of those who oppose the Imam are filthy] . . . He removes their burdens . . . [the sins that they had before acknowledging Wilayah of the Imam] . . . and the entanglements in which they are involved . . . [the entanglements are the words that they were not commanded to express. Such words were not in praise and virtue of the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant. When they recognized the excellence of the Imam, He removed their burden. Such burden is the sin. Then He further has explained about them], ‘. . . those who believe in him [the Imam] . . . honor and help him, and follow the light which is sent down to him, will have everlasting happiness.’” (7:157) [Such people are those who kept away from the worship of the Devil and Satan. So and so and so ones are Devil and Satan. ‘Worship’ means people’s obeying them. Allah then has said], ‘Turn to your Lord in repentance and submit to Him. . . .,’ (39:54) [then He has granted them rewards], ‘. . . will receive glad news both in this life and in the life hereafter. . . .’ (10:64) [Imam gives them the glad news of the rise of al-Mahdi with Divine Authority, the news of the destruction of their enemies and salvation in the hereafter and their meeting Imam Ali and Prophet Muhammad, recipients of divine supreme covenant, and their truthful family at the pond of al-Kawthar in paradise].’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Salma ibn al-Khattab from al-Hassan ibn 'Abd al-Rahman from Ali ibn abu Hamza from abu Basir from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"About the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, 'When Our clear revelations are recited to them, the unbelievers ask the believers, "Which of us has a better position and is more prosperous?"' (19:73), the Imam said, 'The Messenger of Allah once asked Quraysh (the powerful tribe in Makka) to acknowledge our Wilayah, (Leadership with Divine Authority). They turned away and refused. The unbelievers of Quraysh asked the true believers of Quraysh (those who acknowledged our Wilayah), "Which group among us has a better position and is more prosperous?" This was to humiliate the true believers. Allah then asked, "How many generations [people of the past] of greater prosperity and splendor have We destroyed before them?"' (19:74)

"I then asked the meaning of: '(Muhammad), tell them, "The Beneficent gives respite to those who have gone astray. . . ."' (19:75)

"The Imam said, 'All of them lived a life in error and did not acknowledge Wilayah of Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and our Wilayah. They lived in error and led others to error. Allah gives them time in their error and rebellion until they die. He then causes them to have the worst of dwellings and be of the weakest parties.'

"I then asked him about the meaning of: '. . . until they face the torment of which they were warned or the Day of Judgment. Then they will find out who will have the most miserable place and the weakest forces.' (19:75)

"The Imam said, '. . . until they face the torment of which they were warned . . .,' is the time of the rise of al-Mahdi with Divine Authority and power. That is the time when they will find out what Allah will send to them through the hands of al-Mahdi, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and thus, are His words: '. . . who will have the most miserable place . . . [at the time of the rise of al-Mahdi with Divine Authority and power] . . . and the weakest forces.' (19:75)

"I then asked about the words of Allah: '. . . Allah further enlightens those who seek guidance. . . .' (19:76)

"The Imam said, 'Allah will grant them more guidance and certainty to follow al-Qa'im (the one who will rise with Divine Authority and power) so that they will not reject or refuse his authority.'

"I then asked about the words of Allah: 'No one will be able to intercede for the others except those whom the Beneficent has given authority (due to His covenant).' (19:87)

"The Imam said, 'The acknowledgment of Wilayah of Amir al-Mu'minin Ali and 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority), recipients of divine supreme covenant, after him is part of the religion of Allah and this is the authority and the covenant before Allah.'

"I then asked about the words of Allah: 'To the righteously striving believers Allah will grant love.' (19:96)

It is this love of which Allah speaks in His words, "(Muhammad), We have given it to you (the Book, the Holy Quran) in your own language so that you can easily give the glad news to the pious ones and warn the quarrelsome ones."' (19:97) The Imam said, 'It was made easy for him when Allah appointed Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, as the standard of truth. With him He gave glad news to the true believers and warning to the unbelievers. It is these unbelievers whom He in His book has called, "The quarrelsome ones."

"I (the narrator) then asked him about the words of Allah: '. . . so that you may warn a people who are unaware because their fathers were not warned.' (36:6)

"The Imam said, 'It was to warn the people with whom the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, lived just as their forefathers were warned and they were unaware of Allah, His messenger and His warning. Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from certain persons of our people from ibn Mahbub from Muhammad ibn al-Fudayl who has said the following:

Note: in the following Hadith as the previous one, inside brackets are the words of the Imam, and the words of the Holy Quran are placed inside single or double quotation marks.

"The narrator has said that once I asked abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious: 'They want to put out the light of Allah with their mouths. . . .' (61:8) The Imam said, 'They want to banish Wilayah of Amir al-Mu'minin, Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, with their mouths.' I then read from the Holy Quran, '. . . but Allah will certainly make His light shine forever. . . .' (61:8) The Imam said, 'Allah will complete Imamat (Leadership with Divine Authority) as He, the Majestic, the Glorious, has said in His words, ". . . Those who have faith in Allah, His Messenger and the light which We have revealed . . ." (64:8) 'Light' stands for the Imam.' I then asked about, 'It is He who has sent His Messenger with guidance and the true religion. . . .' (61:9) The Imam then said, 'It is He Who sent His Messenger with Wilayah for the executor of his will and Wilayah is the true religion.'

"I then read from the Holy Quran: '. . . make the true religion to stand supreme over all religions. . . .' (61:9) The Imam said, 'He will make it stand supreme at the time of (the rise of al-Mahdi with Divine Authority and power) as Allah has said, ". . . He will make the true religion [Wilayah of al-Qa'im] stand supreme over all religions, . . . even though the pagans may dislike it."' (61:9) The Imam said, 'They are the unbelievers in the Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"I then asked, 'Is it revelation from Allah?' He, recipient of divine supreme covenant, replied, 'These words are revelation (things that Jibril brought as part of the Holy Quran) but the others are interpretation.'

"I then read from the Holy Quran: 'This is because they accepted the faith and then rejected it. . . .' (63:3) The Imam said, 'Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, has called those who do not follow His Messenger in the matter of Wilayah, as hypocrites. He has considered those who reject Imamat just as those who rejected Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and to this effect He has revealed certain verses in the Holy Quran: "When the hypocrites . . . [in the matter of Wilayah of the executor or your will, Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant] . . . come to you, they say, 'We testify that you are the Messenger of Allah.' Allah knows that you are His Messenger. Allah testifies that the hypocrites. . . . [in the matters of Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant] . . . are liars. (63:1) They have chosen their oaths as a shield to obstruct others from the way of Allah. [The way is the executor of the will]. How terrible is what they do! (63:2) This is because they accepted the faith [your message] and then rejected it [Wilayah of the executor of your will]. Allah has sealed their hearts, thus, they do not have any understanding.'" (63:3)

"I (the narrator) then asked, 'What is the meaning of: ". . . they do not have any understanding?"' (63:3) The Imam said, 'Allah has said that they do not think about your prophecy.' I then asked about the meaning of Allah's words: 'When they are told, "Come forward so the Messenger of Allah (can) seek forgiveness for you. . . ."' (63:6) The Imam said, 'It means that when they are asked to come back to the Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, so the Messenger of Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will ask Allah to forgive your sins, ". . . they shake their heads [Allah says] and you can see them turning away arrogantly," (63:6) [from the Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Allah then has reiterated His words about the fact that they know the Wilayah very well saying], '. . . It is all the same whether you seek forgiveness for them or not, Allah will never forgive them. Allah does not guide the evildoing people.' (63:6) The Imam said, 'It refers to the unjust ones against the executor of will.'

"I then asked the Imam about the meaning of the words of Allah: 'Can one who walks with his head hanging down be better guided than one who walks with his head upright?' (67:22) The Imam said, 'Allah has considered the ones who deviate from Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, as those who walk with their heads bent down without knowing what is around them. He, on the other hand, has considered those who acknowledge Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, as those who walk by the straight path. Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is the straight path.'

"I (the narrator) then asked the Imam about the words of Allah: '. . . the Holy Quran is certainly the word of a reverent messenger.' (69:40) The Imam said, 'It is the words of Jibril from Allah about Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"I then asked about the words of Allah: 'It is not the word of a poet but only a few of you have faith.' (69:41) The Imam said, 'They had said that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is not truthful about his Lord and Allah has not commanded him anything about Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Allah then revealed in the Quran (a reading) about it that said, ". . . It [Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant] is a revelation from the Lord of the worlds. (69:43) Had Muhammad invented certain words against Us, (69:44) We would have caught hold of him by his right hand (69:45) and cut off his main artery." (69:46). [Then Allah has turned to Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying], 'Certainly [Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant] is a reminder for the [worlds of] pious ones. (69:48) We certainly know that certain ones of you have rejected it (69:49) and (on the Day of Judgment) this [Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant] will be a great source of regret for the unbelievers (69:50). This [Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant] is the Truth beyond any doubt. (69:51) (Muhammad), speak of the Glory of the name of your Lord, the Great One.' (69:52) The Imam also said that Allah has said, 'Thank (O Muhammad) your Lord, the Great, Who has granted you this distinction.'

"I (the narrator) then asked the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the words of Allah: 'Now that we have listened to the guidance, we believe in it. . . . (72:13) [The Imam said, 'Guidance is Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant. We have established belief in Wilayah of our guardian and those who do so], . . . Whoever believes in his Lord [whoever establishes belief in the Divine Authority of his guardian] does not fear loss or oppression.' (72:13)

"I then asked the Imam, 'Is it (the words of the Imam) or the revealed words of Allah?' He (the Imam) said, 'No, it is interpretation.'

"I then asked him about the words of Allah: 'Say, I do not possess any power to harm or benefit you.' (72:21) The Imam said, 'The Messenger of Allah called people to acknowledge Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Quraysh came to him and said, "O Muhammad, absolve us from such acknowledgment." The Messenger of Allah said, "It is not from me but it is up to Allah." They accused him and left him. Allah then revealed this reading: "Say, 'I do not possess any power to harm or benefit you.'" (72:21) "Say, 'No one can protect me from Allah, [if I disobey Him] nor can I find any place of refuge but with Him (72:22). My only (means of protection) is to convey the message of Allah. . . .'" (72:23) [about Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant].'

"I then asked, 'Is it the revealed words of Allah?' He (the Imam) said, 'Yes, it is the revealed word of Allah.' Allah has, to place more emphasis, said, '. . . whoever disobeys Allah and His Messenger [in the matters of Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant] is doomed to hell, wherein he will live forever.' (72:23)

"I then read the words of Allah: '. . . until the unbelievers witness that with which they have been warned. They will then know whose helpers are weaker and fewer in number.' (72:24)

The Imam said, ‘It is a reference to the rise of al-Mahdi with Divine Authority and power and his supporters.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘Bear patiently whatever they say. . . .’ (73:10) The Imam said, ‘Be patient in what they say about you, “. . . and leave them and distance from them in an honorable manner. (73:10) Leave [O Muhammad,] the prosperous unbelievers [in Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the executor of your will] to Me and give them respite for a little while.” (73:11)

“I then asked him, ‘Is it the revealed words of Allah?’ He (the Imam) said, ‘Yes, it is.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘It gives more certainty to the people of the Book. . . .’ (74:31) The Imam said, ‘They had certainty that Allah, His Messenger and the executor of his will are true.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘. . . and strengthens the faith of the believers . . .’ (74:31) The Imam said, ‘Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, strengthens their faith.’

“I then read the words of Allah, ‘. . . The people of the Book and the believers have no doubt about it. . . .’ (74:31) The Imam said, ‘They have no doubts in the Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’

“I then asked, ‘What is this doubt?’ He (the Imam) said, ‘It refers to people of the Book and the believers that Allah has mentioned. He (the Imam) said that they do not doubt the Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘. . . This parable is a reminder for mankind.’ (74:31) The Imam said, ‘Yes, it is the Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’ I then recited: ‘. . . it is certainly one of the two great things.’ (74:35) The Imam said, ‘It is the Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘. . . whether one steps forward to embrace the faith or one turns away from it.’ (74:37) The Imam said, ‘One who steps forward to our Wilayah has stepped away from hell and one who steps away from our Wilayah has stepped closer to hell.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘. . . except the people of the right hand.’ (74:39) The Imam said, ‘They, by Allah, are our Shi‘a (followers).’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘. . . We did not pray,’ (74:43) The Imam said, ‘It refers to their saying, “We did not believe in Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority) after him and they do not offer the special greeting for them.”’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘. . . why do they run away from guidance?’ (74:49) The Imam said, ‘It means running away from our Wilayah.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘There is no doubt that it is a guide.’ (74:54) The Imam said, ‘It refers to Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘The servants of Allah fulfill their vows. . . .’ (76:7) The Imam said, ‘They fulfill the vow and covenant that they had made to acknowledge our Wilayah.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘(Muhammad), We have revealed the Holy Quran to you in gradual steps.’ (76:23) The Imam said, ‘It means, revealed with Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’

“I then asked, ‘Is it of the revealed words of Allah?’ He (the Imam) said, ‘Yes, with interpretation.’

“I then read the words of Allah: ‘This (chapter) is a reminder. . . .’ (76:29) The Imam said, ‘It is a reminder of Wilayah.’

"I then read the words of Allah: 'He admits to His mercy whomever He wants. . . .' (76:31) The Imam said, 'He admits in our Wilayah.' The Imam also recited the words of Allah: '. . . for the unjust He has prepared a painful punishment.' (76:31) [Consider that Allah has said], '. . . they (children of Israel) did not wrong Us but wronged themselves.' (2:57) The Imam further said, 'Allah is by far more Glorious than to do injustice or ascribe injustice to Himself. However, Allah has mixed our affairs with Hisown, thus, He has called injustice to us as injustice to Himself and our Wilayah as His own Wilayah and guardianship. About this matter He revealed Quran (a reading) to His Prophet that reads: "We did not do any wrong to them but they wronged themselves."' (16:118)

"I then asked, 'Is it the revealed word of Allah?' He (the Imam) said, 'Yes, it is.'

"I then read the words of Allah: 'On that Day, woe will be to those who have rejected Allah's revelations.' (77:15) The Imam said, 'Allah will say, "O Muhammad, woe is to those who reject what I have revealed. . . ." [about the Wilayah of Ali (ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant]. Did We not destroy the ancient people (77:16) and make others settle after them in their land?" (77:17) [The Imam said that the ancient people were those who refused to obey the prophets about the executors of their will]. 'Thus do We deal with the sinful ones.' (77:18) [The Imam said, 'It refers to those who sinned in the matters of the Ahl al-Bayt (family) of Muhammad, recipients of divine supreme covenant, and did to them what they did].'

"I then read the words of Allah: 'The pious ones . . .' (77:41) The Imam said, 'By Allah, only we and our Shi'a (followers) follow truly the religion of Abraham (Ibrahim). Other people have no relationship with it.'

"I then read the words of Allah: 'On that day, the Spirit and the angels who stand in lines will not speak. . . .' (78:38) The Imam said, 'We, by Allah, on the Day of Judgment will have the permission to speak the truth.' I asked him, 'What will you say when you speak?' The Imam said, 'We will praise our Lord, greet our Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and intercede for our Shi'a. Our Lord will not reject our request.'

"I then read the words of Allah: '. . . the records of the sinner's deeds are in Sijjin.' (83:7) The Imam said, 'They are the ones who did injustice to 'A'immah, recipients of divine supreme covenant, and treated them with hostility.'

"I then read the words of Allah: '. . . This is what you had called a lie.' (83:17) The Imam said, 'It refers to Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"I then asked, 'Is it the revealed word of Allah?' The Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'Yes, it is.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Salama ibn al-Khattab from al-Husayn ibn 'Abd al-Rahman from Ali ibn abu Hamza from abu Basir from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"About the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, 'Whoever ignores My guidance will live a woeful life. . . .' (20:124), the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'It means ignoring Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"I then read the words of Allah: '. . . and will be brought blind in Our presence on the Day of Judgment.' (20:124) The Imam said, 'It means blind of eyes in the next life and blind of heart toward Wilayah of Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in this life.' The Imam also said, 'He will be confused on the Day of Judgment and will ask, ". . . he will say, My Lord, why have you brought me back to life blind when before I could see? (20:125) The Lord will say, this is true. But just as you forgot Our revelations that had come to you, so, also, you are forgotten on this day." (20:126) The Imam said, 'Revelations stand for 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority), recipients of divine supreme covenant, that you rejected so also you are rejected and left to the fire today. You did not obey their commands and did not listen to their words.'

"I then read the words of Allah: 'Thus We recompense those who are unjust and have no faith in Our revelations. The torment in the life to come will be more severe and of extended duration.' (20:127) The Imam said, 'It refers to those who accept others as partners of Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in the matters of Wilayah. It refers to those who do not believe in the revelations of his Lord and have left 'A'immah, recipients of divine supreme covenant, on account of hostility, who have not followed their teachings and have not acknowledged their Wilayah (Leadership with Divine Authority).'

"I then read the words of Allah: 'Allah is kind to His servants. He gives sustenance to whomever He wants. . . .' (42:19) The Imam said, 'Sustenance is the Wilayah of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"I then read the words of Allah: 'We shall increase the harvest of those who seek a good harvest in the life hereafter. . . .' (42:20) The Imam said, 'It is recognition of Amir al-Mu'minin Ali and 'A'immah, recipients of divine supreme covenant, from whom they receive additional gains. He also said, such people will receiver their share in the government (of 'A'immah).' '. . . however, those who want to have their harvest in this life, We will give to them thereof but they will have no share in the hereafter.' (42:20) The Imam said, 'They will have no share in the government of truth at the time of al-Qa'im, the one who will rise with Divine Authority and power).'"

Muhammad ibn Ya'qub al-Kulayni has narrated from Muhammad ibn al-Hassan and Ali ibn Muhammad from Sahl ibn Ziyad from ibn Mahbub from ibn al-Ri'ab from Bukayr ibn 'A'yan who has said the following:

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, would often say, 'Allah made our Shi'a (followers) to acknowledge our Wilayah (Leadership with Divine Authority) when they were only in the realm of small particles. It was the day when Allah made the small particles to acknowledge Him as the Lord and Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, as His prophet.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from al-Husayn ibn Sa'id from 'Amr ibn Maymun from 'Ammar ibn Marwan from Jabir from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'We know men when we see them through the reality of belief and the reality of hypocrisy.'"

Ahmad ibn Idris and Muhammad ibn Yahya have narrated from al-Hassan ibn Ali al-Kufi from 'Ubays ibn Hisham from 'Abd Allah ibn Sulayman who has said the following:

"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the Imam. 'Has Allah made him the person in charge of and in full control (over the affairs of the people) as Sulayman ibn Dawud was?'

'The Imam said, "Yes, (as the person in charge of affairs) he is given control. It is because a man asked him (the Imam) a question and he gave the answer. Another person asked the same question and he gave him a different answer (although the question was the same). A third person asked him the same question and he gave an answer that was different from both the previous answers. Then he (the Imam) recited: 'This is Our gift to you, so give them away free or keep them as you like.' (38:39) The Imam also said, 'This is charity from us, enjoy it with thanks or (give to others) without being questioned,' according to Imam Ali's recitation.'

"I (the narrator) said to him, 'May Allah grant you well being, when he (the Imam) gives such answers does he know them?' The Imam said, 'Glory belongs to Allah, have you not heard Allah's words? "In this there is evidence (of the Truth) for the judicious ones," (15:75) such people are 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority), recipients of divine supreme covenant, ". . . it [Leaders with Divine Authority] is on a straight path," (15:76) [it will remain there forever].' Then he said to me, 'Yes, when the Imam looks at a person he recognizes him and his color. On hearing his words even from behind the wall he recognizes him and what he is. Allah has said, "Other evidence of His existence is the creation of the heavens and the earth and the differences of languages and colors. In this there is evidence (of the truth) for the scholars." (30:22) 'A'immah, recipients of divine supreme covenant, are the scholars. Whatever they hear that is spoken they recognize, the one who has received salvation or otherwise. For this reason they answer them as they answer them.' "

The Birth of the Holy Prophet, Recipient of Divine Supreme Covenant, and His Demise

ولد النبِي ص لِاثْنتيْ عشْرةَ لَيْلَةً مضتْ مِنْ شهْرِ ربِيعٍ الْأَولِ فِي عامِ

Al-Kulayni has said, "The Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was born on the twelfth of the month of Rabi‘ al-Awwal, in the year of the Elephant on a Friday at noon. Also it is narrated that it was at dawn forty years before his receiving Divine messages. His mother conceived him on the days of Tashriq (1, 12, 13) of Dhu al-Hajj near the middle Jamara (a pillar of stones) and she was in the house of ‘Abd Allah ibn ‘Abd al-Muttalib. At Sha‘b of abu Talib, peace be upon him, (Sha‘b, a place in Makka) she gave birth when she was in the house of Muhammad ibn Yusuf at the left far corner of the house, as you enter. Al-Khayzuran made that house into a mosque and people ever since use it for prayers. After receiving Divine commands as the Messenger of Allah he remained in Makka for thirteen years. Thereafter he migrated to Madina wherein he lived for ten years. He passed away on Monday the twelfth of the month of Rabi‘ al-Awwal at the age of sixty-three. His father ‘Abd Allah ibn ‘Abd al-Muttalib died in Madina among his maternal uncles when he (Muhammad) was only two months old. His mother, ’Amina daughter of Wahab ibn ‘Abd Manaf, ibn Zuhra ibn Kilab ibn Murra ibn Ka‘b ibn Luway ibn Ghalib, died when he was a boy of four years old. ‘Abd al-Muttalib died when the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was about eight years old. He married Khadija when he was twenty and some years old. From Khadija, before receiving the Divine commands, of his children born were al-Qasim, Ruqiyya, Zaynab and ’Umm Kulthum. Of his children born after he received Divine commands were al-Tayyib, al-Tahir and Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. It is also narrated that after he received Divine commands no other children besides Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, were born and that al-Tayyib and al-Tahir were born before he received divine commands.

“Khadija (peace be upon her) died at the time the Messenger of Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, came out of Sha‘b of abu Talib. This was one year before his migration to Madina. Abu Talib died one year after the death of Khaija. When the Messenger of Allah lost these two people it became very difficult for him to live in Makka. He became extremely sad and complained about it to Jibril. Allah, the Most High, then sent him the message to ‘leave the town, the town of the unjust people’; after abu Talib there was no one in Makka to support him. He was commanded to migrate.”

Ahmad ibn Idris has narrated from al-Husayn ibn ‘Abd Allah from Muhammad ibn ‘Isa and Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah from Ali ibn Hadid from Murazim from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, has said, “O Muhammad I have created you and Ali a light, a spirit, without body before I created My heavens, My earth, My Throne, and My ocean. You continued to acknowledge Me as your Lord and speak of My Glory. I then collected the spirits of both of you and made it one spirit. This spirit continued to speak of My Glory, My Holiness and acknowledge Me as the Lord. I then divided it into two and two which became four: one Muhammad, one Ali, al-Hassan and al-Husayn, the other two. Then Allah created Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, from a light beginning with a spirit that was created first without a body. Ahmad has narrated from al-Husayn from Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah from Muhammad ibn al-Fudayl from abu Hamza who has said the following:

“I heard abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, say, ‘Allah, the Most High, sent revelation to Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, “O Muhammad I created you. You did not exist. I blew into you from My spirit. It was an honor with which I honored you when I made it an obligation on all of My creatures to obey you. Whoever will obey you obeys Me and whoever will disobey you disobeys Me. I have made such obedience to Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, also obligatory as well as to those of his descendents whom I have chosen for Myself.’”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Asha‘ari has narrated from Mu‘alla ibn Muhammad from abu al-Fadl ‘Abd Allah ibn Idris from Muhammad ibn Sinan who has said the following:

“Once I was in the presence of abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the 2nd, and I mentioned the differences among the Shi‘a.

“The Imam said, ‘O Muhammad, Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, is One and eternal. He created Muhammad, Ali and Fatimah, recipients of divine supreme covenant. They were there for a thousand Dahr (one Dahr equals the amount of time from beginning to present of earth’s existence). Then He created all other things. He made them witness the creation of all other things. He made obedience to them obligatory and gave them control of the affairs of the creation. They can, thus, make lawful whatever they wish and unlawful whatever they wish and they never wish anything unless Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, wishes.’ He then said, ‘O Muhammad, this is a religion that, if exaggerated, will lead to disproportionate belief and ignoring it will cause degradation. Those holding to it properly will have proper contact. Keep it with you, O Muhammad.’”

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from ibn Muhbub from Salih ibn Sahl from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Certain persons from Quraysh asked the Messenger of Allah, ‘By what means did you excel the prophets and you came into this world as the last prophet?’ The Messenger of Allah said, ‘I was the first to believe in my Lord, and the first to answer Allah when He called the prophets to make a covenant and bear testimony against their own souls to acknowledge and answer positively when asked, "Am I not your Lord?" They all had answered, 'Yes, You Are our Lord.' I was the first prophet that said, "Yes, You Are our Lord." I, thus, excelled them in acknowledgment of the Oneness of Allah.'"

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from Muhammad ibn Ali ibn Ibrahim from Ali ibn Hammad from al-Mufaddal who has said the following:

"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'How did you exist when you existed in the shadows?' The Imam said, 'O Mufaddal, we were in the presence of our Lord and there was no one else in the green shadow. We spoke of His Glory, Holiness, acknowledged Him as the Lord and spoke of His Majesty. There was no angel even of the ones close to Allah or a living being except us in His presence until He decided to create all things. He then created whatever He wanted, in the way He wanted of the angels and others. He then made the knowledge of that to reach and come to us.'"

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Allah existed when there was no other 'being'. He created the 'being' and place and the light of lights from which all lights lit up. And He made to flow to it (light of lights) from His own light, which lighted up all lights. It was the light from which Muhammad and Ali were created. Al-Husayn has narrated from (Muhammad) ibn 'Abd Allah from Muhammad ibn Sinan from al-Mufaddal from Jabir ibn Yazid who has said the following:

"Once abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to me, 'O Jabir, the first thing that Allah created was Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and his offspring who are the rightly guided guides. They existed in 'Ashbah (form) of light in the presence of Allah.'

"I then asked, 'What is 'Ashbah? The Imam said, 'It is the shadow of light, the lighting bodies without the spirit. It was supported by one spirit, the Holy Spirit. In that state he and his offspring worshipped Allah and for this reason He created them forbearing scholars, conscientious pure ones who worship Allah

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'The Messenger of Allah had three qualities that no one else had. He did not have any shadow. Whatever path he walked even after two or three days one could still notice his passing thereby due to his fragrance that remained along the path. Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn abu Nasr from Hammad ibn 'Uthman from abu Basir from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'When the Messenger of Allah was taken for the ascension Jibril took him to a place and left him there alone. He said, 'Jibril, why do you leave me in such a condition?' Jibril said, 'Go on. By Allah, you have stepped at a place whereat no human has ever stepped and no human has ever walked before you.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from al-Husayn ibn Sa'id from al-Qasim ibn Muhammad al-Jawhari from Ali ibn abu Hamza who has said that abu Basir asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, when I was also present:

"May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, how many times was the Messenger of Allah taken for ascension? The Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'It happened twice. Jibril asked him to stop at a place saying wait right there, O Muhammad, you have stood at a place whereat no angel or prophet has ever stood before you. Your Lord is praying.' He (the Holy Prophet) asked, 'O Jibril, how does He pray?' Jibril said, 'He says, "The Glorious, the Holy, I Am the Lord of the angels and the Spirit. My mercy exceeds My anger."' The Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, 'O Lord, I beg forgiveness from You, I beg forgiveness from You.'

"The Imam said, 'It was as Allah has said, ". . . until he was as close to him as the distance of two bows, or even less." (53:9) Abu Basir then asked, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, what is ". . . the distance of two bows, or even less?"' (53:9) The Imam said, 'It is the distance of the radius of the bow.' The Imam then said, 'Between the two there was a barrier (curtain) that shined with oscillation.' I (narrator) do not know except that he said it was Zabarjad (Beryl; chrysolite). He (the Holy Prophet) looked into the light of Greatness of the size of a needle's eye or so that Allah willed. Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, said, 'O Muhammad.' He replied, 'Yes, my Lord.' He (the Lord) asked, 'Who will be after you to guide your followers?' He (Muhammad) replied, 'Allah knows best.' He (the Lord) said, 'Ali ibn abu Talib, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will be Amir al-Mu'minin (Leader with Divine Authority), the master of the Muslims, the leader of the ones marked with brightness on their foreheads.'

"The narrator has said that then abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to abu Basir, 'O abu Muhammad, by Allah, Wilayah of Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, did not come from earth. It (Wilayah) came from the heavens in words that Allah personally spoke.'"

"Once I asked abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Describe to me the Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, of Allah.' The Imam said, 'The Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had a white reddish complexion, large sharp black and white eyes, the eyebrows almost joined, chubby hands and feet as if gold molded to the form of his fingers and toes and with manifest shoulder bones. When he would turn to a person he did so with the whole of his body, due to kind and tenderheartiness. A line of hair extended from the front cavity of his neck down to his bellybutton as if it was a clear and pure silver line. His neck was long and clear, his nose almost touched the water when he wanted to drink and when walking he somehow leaned forward as if walking on a downward slope. No one similar to him was seen as such before or after the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, of Allah.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from Ishaq ibn Ghalib from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has the following:

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in a special sermon has described the Holy Prophet and 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority), recipient of divine supreme covenant, and their qualities as follows:

“The great sins and people’s bad deeds did not prevent Our Lord, due to His forbearance, caring and kindness, from choosing for the people the best of His prophets. (The Lord chose) Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah, the most respectable one to Him, and he was born in an honorable environment and to a noble family. His association was unsuspicious and his lineage was not unknown to the people of knowledge to describe. The glad news of his coming was mentioned in the books of the prophets and spoken of in the words of the scholars and his qualities were discussed in the thinking of the people of wisdom. No person of Hashimite descent has ever reached the level of his discipline or paralleled to him and no person of the inhabitants of Abtah has ever climbed to his high position. Restraint (from meaningless matters) was of his attributes and generosity was part of his nature. He was made with the dignity of prophet-hood and its discipline. His nature was formed out of the qualities of Divine messenger and its wisdom. The means and measures of Allah brought him to the appointed time and the decree by the commands of Allah proceeded to their goals. The determined decision of Allah delivered him to their objects. Every nation gave the glad news about him to the one thereafter and every father delivered to the next one from one generation to the next. No indecency ever mixed his element and no conjugal relation ever made him unclean from Adam to his father, ‘Abd Allah. He was in the best group and of most honorable descent, the tribe of glory, in the well-preserved womb and in the best protective hands. Allah had chosen him as it pleased Him, selected him, and gave him the keys to knowledge and the sources of wisdom. He (the Lord) raised him as the mercy and blessings for His servants and as the season of spring for His lands. Allah sent to him the Book in which there is communication and explanations. It is a reading in Arabic free of complexities, so that they (people) may perhaps observe piety (before Allah). He has explained it to people. He has arranged it into a system with the knowledge that explains in detail and a religion that He has clarified its obligations, determined its limits for the people and has clarified them.

“There are matters that He has stated to His servants openly. In it (the Book) there is guidance to salvation and evidence to show the right guidance. The Messenger of Allah has preached the message that he had brought and demanded obedience to what he was ordered to preach and delivered the responsibilities of a prophet toward his followers. He exercised patience for the sake of his Lord and strove hard in the way of the Lord. He gave good advice to his followers and called them to salvation. He exhorted them in the matters of al-Dhikr (reminder) and showed them the right guidance. He did so with systems and potentials that he established on certain foundations for the servants (of Allah) and with the sources of light for which he raised proper beacons. He did so, so that they will not be misled after him and he was very compassionate and kind to them.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Sa'd ibn 'Abd Allah from a group of our people from Ahmad ibn Hilal from 'Umayya ibn Ali al-Qaysi who has said that narrated to me Durust ibn abu Mansur who has said the following:

"I once asked abu al-Hassan, the 1st, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Did the Messenger of Allah live under the authority of abu Talib, peace be upon him?' The Imam said, 'No, but abu Talib was the trustee of certain (items) of will that he delivered to the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"I then said, 'So abu Talib delivered the wills to the Holy Prophet because of his authority over him.' The Imam said, 'If so he did not have to deliver the wills to him (the Holy Prophet).'

"I then asked, 'What was the condition of abu Talib?' The Imam said, 'He (abu Talib) acknowledged the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and his Divine message and delivered to him (Prophet) the (items of) wills and died on that day.'"

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Asha'ari has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from Mansur ibn al-'Abbass from Ali ibn Asbat from Ya'qub ibn Salim from a man from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'When the Messenger of Allah passed away the family of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, experienced the longest night. They had a feeling as if the sky did not provide them shadow and the earth did not hold them up anymore. The Messenger of Allah had united all people just for the sake of Allah. In such a condition someone came to them whom they did not see but they could hear his words. He offered them greetings saying, 'Peace be with you, O members of the family of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and may Allah's mercy and blessings be with you. With Allah is the best of condolences for all kinds of suffering and the salvation from all forms of destruction and a remedy for the losses.

"He then read the words of Allah: 'Every soul is destined to experience the agony of death. You (Muslims) will receive the recompense for your deeds on the Day of Judgment. To be saved from the fire and admitted to paradise is certainly a great triumph. The worldly life is no more than a deceitful possession.' (3:185)

"He then continued, 'Allah has selected you, granted you distinction, purified and made you members of the family of His prophet. He has entrusted you with His knowledge and has made you inherit His book. He has made you the chest (Ark) of His knowledge and the staff of His Majesty. He has given for you an example of His light and has protected you from all sins and mistakes. He has protected you against all forms of mischief. Accept the condolences of Allah. Allah has not withdrawn His blessings away from you and He will never remove any of His bounties from you. You are the people of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, through whom the bounties increase, different groups become united and words receive harmony. You are His friends. Those who love you achieve success and those who do injustice to you will vanish. To love you is obligatory, because of the commands of Allah in His book, on His believing servants. Besides, Allah has full power to help and support you whenever He would wish. Exercise patience against the consequences of the matters because they all

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from ibn abu 'Umayr from Muhammad ibn Humran from Aban ibn Taghlib who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'When the fellow from Ethiopia marched with horses and elephants to destroy the Ka'ba they passed by the camels of 'Abd al-Muttalib and they herded them together. When 'Abd al-Muttalib learned about it, he went to the man from Ethiopia and asked permission for a meeting. His men told him that 'Abd al-Muttalib ibn Hashim had asked permission for a meeting. He asked, 'What does he want?' The translator said, 'He has come asking that his camels be released.' The king of Ethiopia said to his people, 'This is the leader and the chief of the people here. I have come to destroy his house of worship but he asks me to order the release of his camels. Had he asked me not to destroy the house I might have agreed. Release his camels.'

"'Abd al-Muttalib asked the translator, 'What did the king say?' When the words of the king were explained to him, he said, 'I am the owner of the camels. The house has an owner who is to protect it.' His camels were released and 'Abd al-Muttalib returned home. He passed by the elephant on his way home. He said to the elephant, 'O Mahmud. The elephant shook his head. Then he asked, 'Do you know why they have brought you here?' The elephant said by shaking his head, 'No, I do not know.' 'Abd al-Muttalib said, 'They have brought you to destroy the house of your Lord. Will you do so?' The elephant by shaking his head said, 'I will not do so.' 'Abd al-Muttalib returned home. The next morning they tried to make the elephant enter the Holy precinct to destroy it but the elephant refused.

"'Abd al-Muttalib at that time said to certain ones of his servants, 'Climb up the hill and see if you can observe anything.' He said, 'I can see black spots in the direction of the sea (in the air). He asked, 'Do you see all of it?' He said, 'Not all of it but almost.' When the black spots came closer he said, 'They are a great many birds. I can see that every bird has a pebble in his beak of the size thrown with a finger.' 'Abd al-Muttalib said, 'I swear by my Lord that the birds aim only at

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn abu Nasr from Rifa'a from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"At a certain place around the Ka'ba 'Abd al-Muttalib's people would spread house furnishings for him only and for no one else. His sons stood around him for protection. Once the Messenger of Allah, then a small child who had just begun to walk, came to 'Abd al-Muttalib and sat in his lap. One of the people standing as a guard came to remove the child away but 'Abd al-Muttalib said, 'Leave my child alone. The angel has just come to him.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Sa'd ibn 'Abd Allah from Ibrahim ibn Muhammad al-Thaqafi from Ali ibn Mu'alla from his brother, Muhammad from Durust ibn abu Mansur from Ali ibn abu Hamza from abu Basir from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"When the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was born he remained for days without milk. Abu Talib himself breast-fed him and Allah sent milk through his nipples. It continued for several days until abu Talib found Halima al-Sa'diya and the child was given to her."

Note: The mother of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, died when he was four years old and 'Abd al-Muttalib died when the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was about eight years old. With these two people still alive abu Talib did not have to play such a role. The above Hadith does not seem very consistent.

According to another Hadith he has asked, "How can abu Talib be called an unbeliever when he has said in the following lines?

'They certainly know that our child is not accused of speaking,

“Once when the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was in the sacred Mosque wearing new clothes, the pagans threw the contents of the stomach of camel on him and his new clothes were ruined. Allah knows how hard it was for him. He (the Holy Prophet) went to abu Talib and asked, ‘What is my honor worth to you?’ He asked, ‘What is the matter, O son of my brother?’ The Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, informed him of the incident. Abu Talib, while picking up a sword, called and asked Hamza to take up arms. He then asked Hamza to pick up the stomach of the camel and they came to the people along with the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant. They found people of Quraysh around the Ka‘ba. When they saw him (abu Talib) they read trouble from his face. Abu Talib asked Hamza to spread the contents of the stomach of the camel against everyone’s mustache and Hamza did so to the last person. Abu Talib then turned to the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and said, ‘Son of my brother, this is how much we value your honor (ready to face such great risk for it).’”

Certain persons of our people have narrated in a marfu‘ manner from Muhammad ibn Sinan from Dawud ibn Kathir al-Raqqi who has said that he asked abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the following:
“I asked abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘What is the meaning of ‘Peace be with the Messenger of Allah (or offering him the greeting of peace)?’ The Imam said, ‘When Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, created His Prophet, the executor of the will of His Prophet, the daughter of His Prophet, their two sons, all 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority), recipients of divine supreme covenant, and their Shi‘a (followers), He made a covenant with them to exercise patience, help to exercise patience, establish good relations and live piously before Allah. He promised to give them the blessed land, the sacred sanctuary, to bring down to them the constructed house (al-Bayt al-Ma‘mur), to manifest to them the raised ceiling (al-Saqf al-Marfu‘) and grant them relief against their enemies. Also Allah grants them the earth that He will change with peace and protect all that is therein for them without any quarrels therein against the enemies and there will exist all that they love. The Messenger of Allah made a similar covenant with all 'A'immah and their Shi‘a.
“Offering of peace to him is a mention of that covenant and renewing it before Allah, so that perhaps He, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, will allow that peace to take place soon for all of you with all that is therein.’”

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad al-Barqi from Ja'far ibn al-Muthanna al-Khatib who has said the following:

"I was in Madina when the section of the roof of the Mosque that covers the grave of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had crumbled down and the workers were climbing up and down (for repairs). We were a group and asked our people, 'Who has an appointment with abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant?' Mihran ibn abu Nasr said, 'I have an appointment with the Imam.' 'Isma'il ibn 'Ammar al-Sayrafi said, 'I have an appointment with the Imam.' I said to them, 'Ask the Imam if it is permissible to climb up and look on to the grave of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant.' Next day we met them and we all came together. 'Isma'il said, 'We asked your question and he said this: "I do not want anyone to climb above him. I do not feel safe for anyone whose eyesight may go away because of catching sight of something that causes him such loss or sees him (the Holy Prophet) standing in prayer or sees him with anyone of his wives.'"

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Once Fatimah, daughter of Asad, came to abu Talib with the glad news of the birth of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Abu Talib said, 'Wait for a sabt, then I will give you similar glad news, except prophet-hood (the new born will not be a prophet).'

"The Imam has said, 'A sabt is thirty years. Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was born thirty years after the birth of the Messenger of Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'"

Ali ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah has narrated from al-Sayyariy from Muhammad ibn Jumhur from certain persons of our people from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Fatimah, mother of Amir al-Mu’minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was the first woman who migrated to the Messenger of Allah from Makka to Madina on foot. She was the kindest person to the Messenger of Allah. She heard the Messenger of Allah say, ‘On the Day of Judgment people will be raised naked as they were born.’ She said, ‘My goodness, what a lamentable lack of privacy!’

“The Messenger of Allah then said, ‘I will pray to Allah to resurrect you all dressed up.’ When she heard him speak of the constraint in the grave, she then said, ‘Alas! How pitiful is my weakness!’ The Messenger of Allah said, ‘I will pray to Allah to make it easy for you.’ One day she said to the Messenger of Allah, ‘I want to set my female slave free.’

“He said, ‘If you do so, Allah will set free for every part of her a part of you from fire. When she died she made her will to the Messenger of Allah and ordered that her female slave be set free. At the time of death her tongue could not move. She made (a great deal of) gestures to the Messenger of Allah. The Messenger of Allah accepted her will. One day when he was sitting, Amir al-Mu’minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, came weeping. The Messenger of Allah asked him about the reason for his weeping and he answered, ‘My mother, Fatimah, has died.’ The Messenger of Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, ‘By Allah, and (she is) my mother also.’ He went to her quickly and looked at her and wept. He directed the ladies to wash her and said, ‘When you complete your task do not do anything else without informing me first. When the ladies informed him of the completion of their task he gave them one of his shirts that he would wear under all of his other clothes to be used as her shroud. He said to the Muslims, ‘If you see me doing something that I have not done before you may ask me why I have done so.’

“When the ladies completed the washing and shrouding he went to pick up her remains. He lifted upon his shoulder (one side of) the coffin and continued all the way to the gravesite. When her body was placed on the ground near the grave he entered the grave and lay down in it. He then got up and (helped) with his hands to place the body in the grave. Then he bent over the body for a long time whispering certain words and said to her, ‘Your son, your son, [your son]. He then came out and leveled the gravesite. Then he bent over the grave and said, ‘I testify that no one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed except Allah. O Lord, I entrust her to you.’ He then left the graveyard. The Muslims said to him, ‘We found you doing certain things that you had not done before this day.’ He said, ‘Today I lost the kindness of abu Talib. If she ever had anything good in her possession she would make it available to me before herself and her own children. Once I mentioned the Day of Judgment when everyone will be resurrected naked. She said, ‘My goodness, what a regrettable lack of privacy!’ I said to her, ‘I will pray to Allah to resurrect you all dressed up.’ She heard me speak of the constraint in the grave. She then said, ‘Alas! How pitiful is my weakness!’ I guaranteed her that Allah will make it easy for her. Thus, I gave my shirt to use for her shroud and lay down in her grave for this reason. I then bent myself over her body to dictate to her the answer to the questions that she was asked. She was asked who her creator was. She gave the right answer. She was thereafter asked to tell who the messenger to her from Allah

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from al-Barqi from Ahmad ibn Zayd al-Naysaburi who has said that narrated to me 'Umar ibn Ibrahim al-Hashimi from 'Abd al-Malik ibn 'Umar from 'Asid ibn Safwan the companion of the Messenger of Allah who has said the following:

"On the day that Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away the place shook as people wept and cried, and they were frightened as on the day the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away. A man came weeping. He seemed in a hurry and was saying the words of the Holy Quran, 'We are the servants of Allah and to Him we shall all return.' (2:156) He continued, 'Today the government as succession of that of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is discontinued.' He stood at the door of the house in which Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was and said, 'May Allah grant you blessing, O abu al-Hassan.

'You were the first in the nation who accepted Islam and were of the purest faith among them (people of the nation). You were of the most solid certainty and feared Allah the most among them. The degree of your hard work (for the cause of Allah) was the greatest and you were the most cautious in protecting the Messenger of Allah among them. You were the most trusted in the affairs of his companions and of the most distinguished in excellence, of the most honorable past credentials, of the highest degree of virtue and the closest as relatives to the Messenger of Allah among them. You were the most similar among them to him (the Messenger of Allah) in the matters of providing guidance, moral discipline, mannerism and deeds. You were the most valuable person to him (the Messenger of Allah) among them, in importance and the most honorable to him among them. May Allah grant you good rewards on behalf of Islam, His Messenger and the Muslims. You exercised strength when his (the Messenger of Allah's) companions became weak. You would come out (to face the enemy) when they showed humiliation; you rose up whenever they showed laziness. You maintained steadfastness in adherence to the system of the Messenger of Allah whenever his companions inclined otherwise. You, indeed, were his undisputed successor and you did not cause strife (in the community) despite the mischief of the hypocrites, the anger of the unbelievers, the dislike of the jealous ones and the lowliness of the transgressors.

‘You stood firm for the truth when they failed, spoke clearly when they became speechless, marched forward in the light of Allah when they halted; and if they followed you they found the right guidance.

‘You were the softest in tone and of the highest degree of prayer among them, of the smallest amount of speech and of the most correct and valid statements. You were of the greatest ideas, of the bravest heart, of the most solid certainty, of the best of deeds and the most knowledgeable of the issues among them. You, by Allah, were the lead figure in religion at first and at last. You were the first when people digressed in chaos and the last (to remain steadfast to the end) when they failed. You were as a kind father to the believers as they became dependent upon you and you bore such burdens that others felt much too weak to carry. You protected what they had lost and guarded what they had ignored. You tightened your belt (due to hunger) when they accumulated (wealth with greed); you rose high when they despaired (in humiliation). You exercised patience when they rushed and you achieved what they had never dreamed of achieving and through you they gained what they had never expected to gain.

‘You were an overwhelming calamity and disaster upon the unbelievers and the fortress and support for the believers. You by Allah, were invented for the task of Leadership with Divine Authority with its blessing and you succeeded in achieving its awards, establishing its prerequisite and left with its distinctions. Your evidence in support of your Divine Authority never lost its cutting edge and your heart never wavered, your intelligence never weakened, your soul did not falter or become frightened. You were like a mountain that strong winds could not move. It is just as the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, “People lived secure in your company and their property well-preserved in your hands.” You were just as the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Physically weak but very strong to support the cause of Allah,’ of a very humble soul, but very great in the sight of Allah, the Chief on earth and majestic in the sight of the believers. No one could ever find fault with you or advance criticism against you. No one could ever involve you in corruption. You never showed anyone (corrupt) compliance. The weak and feeble to you were strong and popular until you restored their rights and the powerful and popular were weak and feeble to you until you made them yield to others’ rights.

‘People of close relation or otherwise were equal before you in such cases. Your method was reality, the truth and kindness. Your words were law and final, and your commands were based on forbearance and determination, your view was knowledge and the final decision in what you did. The system is established, the pitfalls are routed, the fires (of mischief) are extinguished, religious issues are balanced and through you Islam has become strong. The guidance of Allah has become manifest even though the unbelievers dislike it. Through you Islam and the believers are strengthened. You have raced (for Divine excellence) a long race and caused a great deal of weariness to those behind you.

‘Losing you can never be compensated for with weeping, and your death is a great issue in heaven and it has threatened the people (with the emergence of chaos). ‘We are the servants of Allah and to Him we shall all return.’ (2:156) We accept the decision of Allah and submit to His commands. By Allah, the Muslims will never find anyone like you. You were a fortress and a stronghold like a heavy mountain and the intense anger

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Safwan al-Jammal who has said the following:

"Once, 'Amir, 'Abd Allah ibn Jiza'a, al-'Azdi and I were in the presence of abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. The narrator has said that 'Amir said to the Imam the following:

'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, people think Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was buried in al-Rahba (an open space near the mosque of Kufa).' The Imam said, 'No, he was not buried there.'

"He then asked, 'Where is he buried?' The Imam said, 'After his death, al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, carried him to a place, behind Kufa which is near al-Najaf, toward the right of al-Ghari and the left of al-Hira. He buried him among the small dunes of white sands.' Later on, I went to the place and I thought of one place as being his gravesite. I then returned and informed the Imam about it. The Imam said, 'You, may Allah grant you blessing, found it (the gravesite) three times.'"

The narrator has said that he (Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant) asked him, 'Do you want to see him?' He said, 'Yes, I want to see him.' He said, 'Show me his grave.' When he reached at the gravesite he moved his lips and knocked the grave with his foot and he came out of his grave speaking in Persian. Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asked, ‘Did you not die as an Arab man?’ He said, ‘Yes, but we died in the tradition of so and so, son of so and so; thus our language changed.’”

He prayed to Allah to grant blessings up on the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and then he said this: ‘People, tonight a man has passed away the like of whom cannot be found in previous and the coming generations. He was the standard bearer of the Messenger of Allah, with Jibril on his right and Micha’il on his left. He would not turn back until Allah granted him victory. All that he has left of the worldly belongings is seven hundred Dirhams extra from his gifts with which he wanted to buy (hire) a servant for his household. By Allah, he died during a night in which the executor of the will of Musa (Moses) Yusha‘ ibn Nun had passed away, the night in which Jesus, son of Mary, was taken to heaven and the night in which the Holy Quran was revealed.’”

Ahmad ibn Mihran, may Allah grant him blessing, has narrated in a marfu' manner and Ahmad ibn Idris has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Abd al-Jabbar al-Shaybani who has said that narrated to me al-Qasim ibn Muhammad al-Razi who has said that narrated to him Ali ibn Muhammad al-Hurmuzani from abu 'Abd Allah al-Husayn ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah al-Husayn ibn Ali, recipients of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'When Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, buried her secretly, camouflaged her gravesite and then stood up facing the grave of the Messenger of Allah and said, "O Messenger of Allah, may Allah grant you blessings on my behalf and on behalf of your daughter who is visiting you and will pass this night in the soil of your location. Allah chose to make her join you the fastest. O Messenger of Allah, my patience has reached its limits and I miss so much your chosen one (daughter) and my self-control has vanished due to the departure of the leader of the ladies of the world. The only solace for me is to follow your tradition and be mournful for your own departure from us. A little while ago I placed you in your grave and your spirit left your body between my own throat and chest. Yes, in the book of Allah (for me) there is the best example for expressing acceptance of Allah's decision, 'We are the servants of Allah and to Him we shall all return.'" (2:156)

'The trust is returned, the commitment is recalled and al-Zahra' is taken away from us. How sad, O Messenger of Allah, the green skies and the dusty earth seem to us. My sadness has become perpetual and my nights have become sleepless. There is an anxiety that will not relieve my heart until Allah will choose for me a dwelling like that where you are. I have a heart bleeding, sorrowful, and a restlessess and anxiety. How quickly the separation took place. Before Allah I lament, and your own daughter will explain to you how your 'Umma (followers) succeeded in committing injustice against her. You may ask her questions and find information about the case from her. How great was her sorrow for which she could not find a place for expressing, but now she has found a place and an ear to express it to. She would say, 'Allah will judge because He is the best judge'. I offer my prayer to Allah to grant you blessings as a note of farewell, but not because of disappointment and desperation. If I return it is not because I have become tired and if I stand up it will not be because of pessimism toward the promise of Allah to those who exercise patience. Indeed to exercise patience is more safe and fruitful. Had I not feared the mischief of the enemies I would have liked to turn the place into a place of worship, to keep my worship continuous and to cry like the mothers for the death of their son, for the great loss. In the sight of Allah your daughter is buried secretly, her rights are taken away unjustly, her inheritance is withheld for no valid reason. It all happened just after you left and your memories are still fresh. To Allah, O Messenger of Allah, we lament and from you, O Messenger of Allah, we seek condolences. May Allah grant blessings to you and to her. May the peace and happiness from Allah be with you.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn abu Nasr from 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Salim from al-Mufaddal who has said the following:

"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Who washed Fatimah (for burial)?' He said, 'Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, did.' My reaction to his words seemed to be an extraordinary one. He said, 'You seem to be constrained by what I said.'

"I (the narrator) replied, 'Yes, may Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, it is so.' The narrator has said that the Imam then said, 'Do not be constrained. She was the most truthful person and no one has the authority to wash an all-truthful person but another all-truthful person. Did you not know that no one could wash Mary but Jesus.'"

A furnishing was spread for Imam al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, under that tree and for al-Zubayri the furnishings were arranged under a tree just next to it. The narrator has said that al-Zubayri looked up the tree and said, 'I wish this tree had fruits so we could eat from them.' Al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asked, 'Do you wish to have dates?' He said, 'Yes, I do wish to have dates.' He (al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant) raised his hands to the sky and spoke certain words that I did not understand. The tree turned green. It returned to its normal condition, its leaves grew and it became loaded with dates. The man from whom they had hired camels begun to say, 'It by Allah, is magic.' Al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'Woe is upon you, it is not magic. It is a prayer of the grandson of a prophet that is answered.' They climbed the tree to pick the dates that were there and it provided enough for their needs.'"

The servant said, 'May Allah keep my soul and the souls of my parents in service for your cause, we had never been up to a place of rest where anyone sold such medicine.'

"The Imam said to him, 'Yes, there are such people right ahead of you before reaching the place for rest.' They walked for a mile and they met the black person. Al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to his servant, 'There is the man. Take the oil from him and pay him.' The black man asked the servant, 'For whom do you want this oil?' He replied, 'I want it for al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.' He said, ‘Take me to him.’ They came to al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and the man said, ‘May Allah keep my soul and the souls of my parents in service for your cause; I did not know that you need this. If you want to have it you can have it free of charges. I am only one of your servants. Just pray for me to Allah to grant me a healthy son who would love you, Ahl al-Bayt. Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ali ibn 'Isma'il from Muhammad ibn 'Amr al-Zayyat from a man from our people from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Once Jibril came to Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and said to him, 'O Muhammad, Allah gives you the glad news of the birth of a son from Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Your 'Umma (followers) will murder this child after you die.' He (the Holy Prophet) said, 'O Jibril peace is from my Lord. I do not need a child from Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who will be murdered by my 'Umma after I die.' Jibril ascended and then descended back and said to him the same thing. He said, 'O Jibril peace is from my Lord. I do not need a child who will be murdered by my 'Umma after I die.' Jibril ascended to the heavens and then descended back and said, 'O Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, your Lord sends you greetings and gives you the glad news of His placing Imamat (Leadership with Divine Authority), the guardianship and the executor-ship of the will in the descendents of this child.' Then he (the Holy Prophet) said, 'I agree and accept the arrangement.' He then sent to Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the message of the glad news of the birth of a child from her who will be murdered by his 'Umma. She returned the answer, 'I do not need a child who will be murdered by your 'Umma after you die.' He then sent the message to her that Allah will place Imamat (Leadership with Divine Authority), guardianship and the executorship of the will in the descendents of this child. She then sent back with the answer that she has agreed to the arrangement. '. . . His mother bore him with hardship and delivered him while suffering a great deal of pain. The period in which his mother bore and weaned him lasted for thirty months. When he grew up to manhood and became forty years old, he then said, "Lord, inspire me to give You thanks for the bounties you have granted to me and my parents, and to act righteously to please You. Lord, make (people of) my offspring virtuous . . .'" (46:15)

"The Imam said, 'Had he not said, ". . . Lord, make (people in) my offspring virtuous. . . ." (46:15) all of his offspring would have been 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority).' (The word 'in' indicates part, not the whole or all of something). Al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, did not have any milk from Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, nor from other females. They would bring him to the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to place his thumb in the child's mouth. The child would receive food therefrom and it sufficed him for three days. The flesh of al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, grew from that of the Messenger of Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and his blood from his blood. No one has ever been born after six months except Jesus son of Mary and al-Husayn ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'"

In another Hadith from abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, it is said that they (people of the family) would bring al-Husayn to the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he would place his tongue in his mouth. This sufficed him (for food) and he did not have any milk from any female.

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has said that abu Kurayb and abu Sa'id al-Ashja' narrated to him that 'Abd Allah ibn Idris narrated to them from his father, Idris ibn 'Abd Allah al-'Awdi who has said the following:

"When al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was murdered people wanted to run horses over his (al-Husayn's) body. Fizza then said to Zaynab, (sister of al-Husayn) 'My lady, there was a shipwreck and Safina came out on an Island face to face with a lion. He (Safina) said to the lion, "O abu al-Harith, I am a slave of the Messenger of Allah." The lion murmured in front of him and showed him the way. There lives a lion in this area. Allow me to go and inform him of what the people intend to do to al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, tomorrow. The narrator has said that she (Fizza) went to the lion and said, 'O abu al-Harith, and the lion raised his head. She asked, "Do you know what these people intend to do to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant? They intend to run horses over his body."'

"The narrator has said that the lion walked (all the way) and placed both of his hands over the body of al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. When the horsemen came they found the lion in that position and 'Umar ibn Sa'd (may he fall in condemnation of Allah) told them, 'It is mischief. Do not bother and turn back. They turned back."

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from Muhammad ibn Ahmad from al-Hassan ibn Ali from Yunus from Masqala al-Tahhan who has said the following:

"I heard abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, say, 'After al-Husayn was murdered his wife, who was from the tribe of al-Kalb, began to organize a mourning gathering. She wept and the ladies and servants wept until their tears dried up. There was one female servant (slave) who wept and her tears would not stop. She called her and asked, 'How is it that our tears have dried up and your tears have not?' She said, 'When I suffer I drink Sawiq (a kind of soup made of wheat and or barley).' She then ordered to prepare Sawiq and food. She would drink and eat and give others to drink and eat and say, 'We need to find energy to weep for al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'"

"The Imam has said, 'Certain birds were given to al-Kalbia lady to help her in her mourning for al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. When she saw them she asked, 'What are these?' They told her that they were a gift from so and so to help you in mourning for al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. She said, 'We are not in a wedding. What do we do with them?' She told her servants to take them out of the house. When they were taken out of the house they just disappeared as if they did not exist or flew between the heavens and earth and afterwards no trace of them was found anywhere.'"

Chapter One Hundred Seventeen

The Birth of Ali ibn Al-Husayn, Recipient of Divine Supreme Covenant

Al-Kulayni has said, "Ali ibn al-Husayn was born in the year thirty-eight A.H. He passed away in the year ninety-five at the age of fifty-seven. His mother was Slama, daughter of Yazdjurd ibn Shahryar ibn Shiruwayh ibn kisra 'A Perwiz. Yazdjurd was the last Persian ancient king."

Al-Husayn ibn al-Hassan al-Hassani, may Allah grant him blessings, and Ali ibn Muhammad ibn 'Abd Allah all of them from Ibrahim ibn Ishaq al-Ahmar from 'Abd al-Rahman ibn 'Abd Allah al-Khuza'i from Nasr ibn Muzaham from 'Amr ibn Shimr from Jabir from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"The girls of Madina loved to see the daughter of Yazdjurd when she was brought before 'Umar. When she entered the Mosque it became all delightful and bright. When 'Umar looked at her she covered her face and said in her own language, ''Uff, bay ruj ba' da Hurmuz (May the life of Hurmuz turn black).' 'Umar asked, 'Is she abusing me?' He turned to her (with a certain attitude). Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'You do not have such a right (over her). Give her the chance to choose whoever of the Muslims she likes and then count as his share of the booty (of the properties seized from the Persian army).' He ('Umar) allowed her to choose and she came all the way to place her hand on the head of al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asked her, 'What is your name?' She said, 'It is Jahan Shah.' Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'In fact, it is Shahra Ba'nuwayh.' He then said to al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'O abu 'Abd Allah, she will give birth to a son for you who will be the best of the inhabitants of earth.' She gave birth to Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Ali ibn al-Husayn was called the son of the two best. The chosen from Arabs was the tribe of Hashim and from non-Arab were Persians. It is narrated that abu al-Aswad al-Du'ili said about it:

'A boy from Kisra and Hashim;

The most noble one on whom sacred symbols are stitched for safety.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from ibn al-Faddal from ibn Bukayr from Zurara who has said the following:

"I heard abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, say, 'Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had a she-camel. He had taken this camel twenty two times to Hajj (pilgrimage to Makka) and had not used a whip against it, not even once. The Imam has said that the camel came after he passed away and we were not aware but we noticed only when one of the servants or slaves came and said, 'The she-camel has gone out all the way to the grave of Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. She rubs her neck against the grave and moans.' I then asked them to quickly get to her before they (the enemies) might know about her or see her. The Imam has said, the she-camel had never seen the grave before.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim ibn Hashim has narrated from his father from Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Hafs ibn al-Bakhtari from the person he mentioned from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'When my father, Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away the she-camel that belonged to him came from the pasture and placed her neck against his grave and rolled her body on the ground. I commanded to return her back to her pasture. My father would take her for the journey to Hajj and 'Umra (pilgrimage to Makka) and had never used a whip against her.'"

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad ibn 'Amir has narrated from Ahmad ibn Ishaq ibn Sa'd from Su'dan ibn Muslim from abu 'Imara from a man from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'When it was the night that Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away he asked Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, his son, 'Son bring me water for Wudu (cleaning for prayer).' Muhammad has said, 'I then brought water for him.' He said, 'I do not like this water. There is something dead in it.' I then brought the water in the light and found a dead mouse in it. I then brought him other water. He said, 'Son this is the night in which I am promised to be taken out of this world.' He explained his recommendations about his shecamel and that a stable be prepared for her and that she should be fed properly. I personally did as he had asked. Very shortly thereafter the she-camel came out of the stable and reached the grave, placed her neck on it, rolled her body on the ground and her eyes were flooded with tears. Muhammad ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was informed that the she-camel had gone. He came to her and said, 'Control your emotion and get up. May Allah grant you good fortune.' She did not stop. The Imam has said, 'When he would take the camel to Makka, he used to hang the whip from the luggage where it

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn Ahmad from 'Abd Allah ibn Ahmad from Salih ibn Mazid from 'Abd Allah ibn al-Mughira from abu al-Sabbah from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Once, my mother was sitting next to a wall. The wall began to break apart and we heard an intense crumbling noise. She pointed out with her hands saying, 'No, for the sake of al-Mustafa (one of the titles of the Messenger of Allah), Allah has not granted you permission to fall.' The wall remained hanging in the air until she moved away from that place. My father gave one hundred Dinars as charity in appreciation and as an expression of gratitude for Allah's favor.

“Abu al-Sabbah has said, ‘Once abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, mentioned his grandmother and said, “She was a truthful person. No woman was ever found in the descendents of al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, like her (in excellence).’”

Muhammad ibn al-Hassan has narrated from ‘Abd Allah ibn Ahmad a similar Hadith.

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Muhammad ibn Sinan from Aban ibn Taghlib from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Jabir ibn ’Abd Allah al-Ansari was the last surviving of the companions of the Messenger of Allah. He was a devoted follower of our Ahl al-Bayt. He would sit in the Mosque of the Messenger of Allah wearing a black turban. He would call, ‘O Baqir al-‘Ilm, O Baqir al-‘Ilm (a person of deep knowledge).’ The people of Madina would say, ‘Jabir is hallucinating.’ He would say, ‘No, by Allah, I do not hallucinate, but I heard the Messenger of Allah say, “You will soon meet a man from me whose name will be as my name and his manners as my manners. He will dig very deep in knowledge.” This is what makes me say what I say.’ The Imam has said, ‘Jabir would still come and go, and one day in one of the roads of Madina, when passing, he found a few of the school children among whom Muhammad ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was also present (for a reason other than schooling. Attending schools was not necessary for 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority)). He looked at him and called him (Muhammad ibn Ali) to himself. The boy came to him and then he said, ‘go back.’ The boy went back. Then he said, ‘I swear by the One in Whose hand is my life, (that I see) manners as the manners of the Messenger of Allah. O (little) boy, what is your name?’ He replied, ‘My name is Muhammad ibn Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Jabir came forward and began to kiss his head and say, ‘May Allah keep my soul and the souls of my parents in service for your cause, the Messenger of Allah, your great-great grandfather, told me to convey his greetings of peace to you and would speak of all that (I see in you).’

“The Imam has said, ‘Once Muhammad ibn Ali ibn al-Husayn came to his father and he was anxious. He explained to him about Jabir. His father asked, ‘Did Jabir really do this?’ He replied, ‘Yes, he did so.’ The Imam said, ‘My son, stay home (and do not expose yourself to the enemy).’ Jabir thereafter would come to him mornings and evenings and the people of Madina would say, ‘It is so strange that Jabir, the only surviving companion of the Messenger of Allah, comes to a boy on both ends of the day every day.’ Very shortly Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away. Muhammad ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then normally went to visit Jabir out of respect for his being a companion of the Messenger of Allah and spoke to people from Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High. The people of Madina would say, ‘We have not seen anyone as bold as he is.’ On hearing this from them he began to speak to them from the Messenger of Allah. The people of Madina began to say, ‘We have not seen a greater liar as he is because he speaks from one whom he has never seen.’ On hearing this from them he began to narrate to them from Jabir ibn ‘Abd Allah.

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn al-Hakam from al-Muthanna al-Hannat from abu Basir who has said the following:

"Once I went to see abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and asked him, 'Are you the heir of the Messenger of Allah?' He said, 'Yes, we are his heir.' I then asked, 'Was the Messenger of Allah the heir of the prophets and did he know all that they knew?' He said to me, 'Yes, it is true.' I then asked, 'Do you have the power to bring the dead back to life and cure the lepers, and the blind?' He said, 'Yes, we do have such powers by the permission of Allah.' Then he said to me, 'Come closer to me, O abu Muhammad.' I went closer to him and he rubbed my face and my eyes and I saw the sun, the skies, the earth, the houses and all things in the town. Then he asked me, 'Do you like to live this way, you will have what others have and be responsible for whatever they will be held responsible for on the Day of Judgment or wopuld you like to live as before and have paradise purely?' I said, 'I would like to live as I lived before.' He rubbed my eyes and I found myself as before.'

Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then also responsed to their queries for a while. They then flew away and on the other wall the male sounded to the female for a while and then both of them flew away. I then asked the Imam, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, what were these birds?' The Imam said, 'O ibn Muslim, all that Allah has created, such as birds, animals or other things that have life, they obey us better than people. The male dove was suspicious about the female and she denied it on oath, which the male did not accept. Then she asked if he would abide by the decision of Muhammad ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He agreed and I told him that he had wronged his mate, then he believed her.'"

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn Asbat from Salih ibn Hamza from his father from abu Bakr al-Hadrami who has said the following:

disappointment of Hisham because he did not address him as the Caliph and sat down without his permission. Hisham then began to reprimand and scold him. He said to him among other things, ‘O Muhammad ibn Ali, why is it that one or the other from you cause disunity among the Muslims and call people to follow him thinking that he is the Imam? It is nothing but because of his ignorance and foolishness.’ He scolded him as much as he wanted. When he became quiet others one after the other began to annoy and nag him.

“When they all became quiet, he rose and stood up and asked, ‘O people, what is it that you want and where are you headed? Through us, Allah granted you guidance to the first one among you and through us the last among you can receive guidance. You do have a temporary power but to us belongs the future power and there will be no power after our power; to us belongs the final good end as Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, has said, “The final victory is for the pious ones.” (7:128)

“He (Hisham) ordered him imprisoned. In the prison whoever he spoke to he would sympathize with him. The guard came to Hisham and said, ‘O Amir al-Mu’minin, I am afraid for you from the people of al-Sham (Damascus). They may remove you from this position.’ He gave him the full report. Hisham then ordered the Imam and his people escorted to Madina. He ordered his people not to allow the Imam and his people to go to marketplaces. They were denied food and water. They traveled three days without food and water until they arrived at Madyan. They were left behind the locked doors therein. People of the Imam complained to him of hunger and thirst. The Imam has said that he then climbed a hill above them and said loudly, ‘O people of Madyan, the town of unjust people. I am Baqiyat Allah (the power that Allah has kept in reserve) as He has said, “If you are true believers then you must know that the profit (the reserved power) which Allah has left for you is better for you (than what you may gain through deceitful ways). I am not responsible for your deeds.’” (11:86)

“The Imam has said that among them there was an old man who went to them (people of the town) and said, ‘By Allah, this is the call of Shu‘ayb, the Prophet of Allah. If you do not go to this man in the marketplace, you will be seized from the above and below. Believe me and obey me this time, but you may reject me next time. I am giving you good advice.’ He has said, ‘They came out quickly to Muhammad ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and his people in the marketplace. The news reached Hisham ibn ‘Abd al-Malik who summoned the old man and he was taken to the court but it is not known what he did to him.’”

Sa‘d. ibn ‘Abd Allah and al-Himyari both have narrated from Ibrahim ibn Mahziyar from his brother, Ali ibn Mhaziyar from al-Husayn ibn Sa‘id from Muhammad ibn Sinan from ibn Muskan from abu Basir from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Muhammad ibn Ali, al-Baqir, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away at the age of fifty-seven, in A.H. one hundred fourteen. “Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Sa‘id ibn al-Musayyib, al-Qasim ibn Muhammad ibn abu Bakr and abu al-Khalid al-Kabuli were of the trusted and reliable companions of Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. The Imam has said, ‘My mother was a true believer, pious and a person of good deeds. Allah loves the people of good deeds.’ He has said, ‘My mother has said that my father said, “O ’Umm Farwah, I pray to Allah to forgive the sins of the sinners of our Shi‘a (followers) a thousand times a day because we exercise patience in the face of hardships knowing well the facts of reward (in the next life) but they exercise patience in that of which they have no knowledge.’”

Certain persons of our people have narrated from ibn Jumhur from his father from Sulayman ibn Sama‘a from ‘Abd Allah ibn al-Qasim from al-Mufaddal ibn ‘Umar who has said the following:

“Once abu Ja‘far al-Mansur ordered his governor of Makka and Madina, al-Hassan ibn al-Zayd, to set fire to the house of Ja‘far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to burn him to death. The house of abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was set on fire and it burned the door and the corridor. Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, came out walking in the fire and stepping on it and said, ‘I am the son of ’A‘raq al-Thara (’Isma‘il), I am the son of Ibrahim (Abraham), the beloved friend of Allah.’”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu‘alla ibn Muhammad from al-Barqi from his father from those he mentioned from Rufayd, slave of Yazid ibn ‘Amr ibn Hubayra who has said the following:

“Once Hubayra became angry with me and swore to kill me. I ran away from him in fear and sought refuge with abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. I informed him of my story and he said, ‘go back and convey my greetings to him and say to him, on my behalf, “I have given refuge and protection against you to your slave, Rufayd. Do not harm him with your anger.”’ I said to him, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, he is a Shami (from Damascus) and has filthy opinions.’ He said, ‘go to him and say what I have told you to say.’ I then returned back and on the way in the wilderness I met an Arab man who asked me, ‘Where are you going? I see the face of a man to be killed.’ He then said, ‘Show me your hand.’ I showed him my hand. He said, ‘It is the hand of a person to be murdered.' He then said, 'Show me your foot.' I showed him my foot. He said, 'It is the foot of a person to be murdered.' He then said, 'Show me your body.' When I did so, he said, 'It is the body of a person to be murdered.' He then said, 'Show me your tongue.' I showed him my tongue. He said, 'go on. Nothing will happen to you. On your tongue there is a message that if you take it even to the tall mountains they will obey you.'

"I (the narrator) then went on until I was at the door of ibn Hubayra and I asked permission to see him and then I went in his presence. He said, 'The traitor has come on his own legs. O slave, get the leather rope and the sword,' he shouted. He ordered to tie up my hands and head. The sword man stood over my head to cut my head off. I said, 'O commander, you have not captured me just like that. I came to you from a living person. There is a certain matter that I want to say to you. Thereafter it will be up to you to do whatever you may choose.' He said, 'Say it.' I said, 'First, you must allow me to speak to you in private.' He ordered everyone to go out of the room and they went out. I said, 'Ja'far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asked me to convey his greetings of peace to you. He also said, "I have given protection against you to your slave, Rufayd. Do not harm him with your words." He then said, 'I swear you to Allah, did Ja'far (ibn Muhammad) really say these words and convey greetings of peace to me?' I then swore before him and he asked Allah to grant peace to Ja'far ibn Muhammad. He did so three times. Then he opened my hands and then said, 'This does not convince me until you do to me what I just did to you.' I said, 'My hands will not move for such things and my conscience will not accept it.' He said, 'By Allah, my conscience will not agree unless you do what I asked.' I then did what he had done to me and then released him. He then gave me his own seal and said, 'I hereby place all of my affairs in your hands to manage as you would like.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from 'Umar ibn 'Abd al-'Aziz from al-Khaybari from Yunus ibn Zabyan and al-Mufaddal ibn 'Umar and abu Salama al-Sarraj and al-Husayn ibn Thuwayr ibn abu Fakhita who have said the following:

"Once we were in the presence of abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he said, 'We (Ahl al-Bayt) have the key to the treasures of the earth. If I tell one of my feet to say to the earth, "Let out whatever gold that is there in you," it will do so.'

"The narrator) has said that he then said to one of his feet and made a line with it on earth, the earth ripped open, then he told his hand that took out a brick of gold of the size of a hand (about a foot). He then said, 'Watch carefully.' We then looked again and saw many such pieces of gold one over the other shining. A certain person among us said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, you have been granted whatever there is but your Shi'a are needy.'

"The narrator has said that the Imam then said, 'Allah will soon grant to our Shi'a and to us the bounties of both this and the next life. He will admit them in paradise and its blessings. There will be hell for our enemies.'" invited female singers. They would drink wine and disturb me. I complained to the man several times but he did not pay any attention. When I insisted he said, ‘O man, I am an addicted person and you are sober. I wish you would take me to your master and I hope Allah will save me through him.’ His words impressed me a great deal. Upon my visiting abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, I mentioned the condition of the man to him. The Imam said, ‘When you will go back to Kufa he may come to you, say to him, “Ja‘far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to you, ‘Stay away from what you are involved in. I guarantee that Allah will admit you in paradise.’”’ When I returned to Kufa he came to me. I kept him with me until just two of us were there alone. I then said to him, ‘O man, I mentioned you to abu ‘Abd Allah, Ja‘far ibn Muhammad, al-Sadiq, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he said to me, “When you will return to al-Kufa, the man will soon come to you. Say to him, ‘Ja‘far ibn Muhammad said to you, “Stay away from what you are involved in and I will guarantee that Allah will admit you in paradise.”’”

“The narrator has said that the man then wept and asked me, ‘I swear you to Allah, did abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, really say this to you?’ I then swore before him that abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, did really say so.’ He said, ‘This is enough for you’ and he left. After few days he called me while he was behind his house and had no clothes on him and he said to me, ‘O abu Basir, by Allah, there is nothing left in my house. I gave all of them away and I am left as you see.’

“The narrator has said, ‘I then went to our people and made a collection to clothe him. Shortly thereafter he sent someone to inform me that he was ill and that I must see him. Thereafter I often went to him to provide treatment until he was about to die. I was sitting near him and he was experiencing the agony of death. He fainted and then regained conscience and said to me, ‘O abu Basir, your master has fulfilled his promise to me.’ He then passed away. May Allah grant him blessings. When I went for Hajj I went to see abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and asked permission for a meeting. As I was about to enter in his presence, one foot in the corridor and one inside, the Imam, before my saying anything, said from the inside, ‘O abu Basir, we have fulfilled our promise to your friend.’”

Abu Ali al-Ash‘ari has narrated from Muhammad ibn ‘Abd al-Jabbar from Safwan ibn Yahya from Ja‘far ibn Muhammad ibn al-’Ash‘ath who said to me the following:

“Do you know the reason why we came in this matter (became Shi‘a) and recognized it even though there was no mention of it among us and we had no knowledge of what other people (Shi‘a) had?” I (the narrator) asked him, “What then is the reason for it?”

“He said, ‘Abu Ja‘far, abu Dawaniq once said to abu Muhammad ibn al-‘Ash‘ath, ‘O Muhammad, I want a person of reason who can represent me.’ My father said, ‘I have found one for you. He is so and so ibn Muhajir, my maternal uncle.’ He (abu Dawaniq) said, ‘Bring him to me.’ He has said that he brought him to abu Dawaniq. Abu Ja‘far, abu Dawaniq said, ‘O son of Muhajir, take this property to Madina and give it to ‘Abd Allah ibn al-Hassan ibn al-Hassan and a number of the people of his family among whom is Ja‘far ibn Muhammad and say to them, “I am from Khrusan and a stranger in this area. One of your Shi‘a (followers) from Khurasan gave me this property to deliver to you.” Then give to each of them from the property with such and such conditions. When they take the property then, as a messenger, ask them for a receipt for the amount and the kind of the property they received from you.”

“He then took the property, went to Madina and came back to abu Dawaniq when Muhammad ibn al-’Ash‘th was also present. Abu Daqwaniq asked, ‘What did you leave behind?’ He said, ‘I met the people and this is the receipt in their own handwritings for what they received, except Ja‘far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. I went to see him when he was praying in the Mosque of the Messenger of Allah. I sat behind him to wait until he finished so then I could give him the message as I had done with the others. He hurried up, finished, then turned to me and said, ‘O you, have fear of Allah and do not deceive Ahl al-Bayt (the family) of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. They have just experienced the government of the sons of Marwan and they all are needy.’ I then asked, ‘What are you talking about, may Allah grant you well being?’ He said, ‘Then he brought his head closer to me and told me about all that had passed between me and you as if he had been the third person with us.’ He has said that abu Ja‘far, al-Dawaniq said, ‘O ibn Muhajir take notice and pay attention that the family of a prophet has never been without a Muhaddath (a person to whom angels speak) among them. Today the Muhaddath among us is Ja‘far ibn Muhammad.’

“This was the reason for our receiving guidance and acceptance of this matter and belief (belief of Shi’a Muslims),” al-’Ash‘ath explained.

Sa‘d ibn ‘Abd Allah and ‘Abd Allah ibn Ja‘far both have narrated from Ibrahim ibn Mahziyar from his brother Ali Mahziyar from al-Husayn ibn Sa‘id from Muhammad ibn Sinan from ibn Muskan from abu Basir who has said the following:

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, Ja‘far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away at the age of fifty-six in A.H. one hundred forty-eight He lived after abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, his father, for thirty-four years.”

Sa‘d ibn ‘Abd Allah has narrated from abu Ja‘far ibn ‘Umar ibn Sa‘id from Yunus ibn Ya‘qub from abu al-Hassan, the 1st, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Abu al-Hassan, the 1st, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘I shrouded my father with two pieces of winter cloth that he had used as clothes for Ihram (special clothes used during performing Hajj). One of his shirts, the ‘Amama (turban) that belonged to Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and a gown he had bought for forty Dinars were also used.”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Ash‘ari has narrated from Mu‘alla ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn al-Sindi al-Qummi who has said that narrated to us ‘Isa ibn ‘Abd al-Rahman from his father the following:

“Once ibn al-‘Ukkasha ibn Muhsin al-Asadi went to see abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was also standing in his presence. Grapes were offered to him. The Imam then said, ‘The old man and the small boy eat grapes one piece at a time. One who is anxious for filling himself up eats three or four pieces at a time but you should take two pieces at a time because it is mustahab (preferable) to do so.’

“He (ibn al-‘Ukkasha) then asked abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘Why do you not arrange a marriage for abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has grown up already?’ He has said that before abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, there was a sealed bag filled with money and he said, ‘Very soon traders will come from Barbar and find accommodation in the house of Maymun and with the money in this bag we will buy for him a slave girl.’

“The narrator has said that time went by and one day we went to see abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he asked, ‘Do you want me to tell you about the trader of whom I had spoken to you? He has just arrived. Go and with the money in this bag buy for him a slave girl’.

“The narrator has said, ‘We went to the trader but he had sold all of his slave girls accept two of them who were ill and one of them was more beautiful than the other. We said that we wanted to know about them. He then showed them to us and we asked for how much he might sell the more beautiful one.’ He said, ‘Seventy Dinars is the price.’ We asked him to reduce the price but he said that he does not accept anything less than seventy Dinars. We then said, ‘We will give all the money that is in the bag but we do not know how much is in it.’ There was a man with gray hair and beard, who said, ‘Open the bag and weigh it.’ The trader said, ‘Do not open it because if it is less then seventy Dinars I do not accept.’ The old man said, ‘Come close.’ We went closer and opened the bag and weighed the Dinars in it and there were exactly seventy Dinars, no more and no less. We brought the slave girl to abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was also there. We informed abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, of the whole story. He offered thanks to Allah and praised Him. He then asked the girl, ‘What is your name?’ She said, ‘My name is Humayda.’ He said, ‘You are Humayda in this world and a praised one in the next life. Tell me more, ‘Are you virgin or not virgin?’ She said, ‘I am virgin.’ He asked, ‘How can that be true? The traders corrupt whatever may come in their hands.’ She said, ‘He would come to me and sit next to me just as men and women do but Allah would make a man with gray hair and gray beard appear and force him to go away from me. This happened several times between him and the man with gray hairs and beard.'

"The Imam said, 'O Ja'far take her for yourself.' She then gave birth to the best person on earth who was Musa ibn Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad and Ali ibn Ibrahim from his father all of them from abu Qatada al-Qummi from Ali ibn Khalid al-Zabali who has said the following:

"When abu al-Hassan Musa, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was brought before al-Mahdi ('Abbassid ruler) the first time he was accommodated in Zabala and I talked to him. He found me depressed and asked, 'O abu Khalid, why is it that I see you depressed?' I asked, 'How can I be not depressed when you are being taken to this transgressor and I do not know what will happen to you?' He said, 'I will be all right. In such and such month and day come to meet me on a mile's distance.' I then had no worries but to count the months and days pass by until that particular day. I then went up to a mile's distance and spent the day there until it was almost sunset. Suddenly, Satan caused temptations to my heart and I feared doubting in what he had said. At this point I saw figures coming from the direction of Iraq. I went to meet them and abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was in front of them on a mule. He asked, 'Is it you O abu Khalid?' I said, 'Yes, O great, great, great grandson of the Messenger of Allah.' He said, 'Do not doubt; Satan loved that you had doubts.' I then said, 'Thanks to Allah Who saved you from them.' He said, 'I will have a return to them in which I will not find any safety.'"

He said, 'I am the most knowledgeable one among the people who follow my religion but there are people more knowledgeable than me.' I (Christian man) then asked him to guide me to the one who is more knowledgeable than him; I like traveling and can endure difficulties; having read the whole Gospel, the Psalms of David and the four parts of Torah, I have also read the apparent text of the whole Quran. Christianity I am the most knowledgeable person in it amongst the Arab and non-Arab people. If you want the knowledge of Judaism then Bati ibn Shurahbil al-Samari is the most knowledgeable person in that religion today. However, if you want to learn the knowledge of Islam, the knowledge of Torah, the knowledge of the Gospel, the knowledge of Psalms, the book of Hud and all that is revealed to any of the prophets in your time or in the times of the others, if you like to learn all that has come from the heavens in the form of information, people may have learned or not learned such information, in which there is the explanation for everything, the cures for the worlds, the spirit for those who wish to have comfort, understanding in what Allah has willed to be for their good and seek comfort with the truth, I can guide you to a person (who can teach you all such things). Go to him even if you have to walk to him on foot. If you cannot walk then you must crawl to him on your knees. If you cannot do that also then you must drag yourself on your hips. If you cannot reach him that way you must move to him on your face.'

"I (Christian man) then said, 'No, none of this is necessary. I can walk to him. Physically I am prepared and financially I am capable.' He (the scholar from upper Demascus) then said, 'Go on to him without any delay until you reach Yathrib.' I (Christian man) said, 'I do not know where Yathrib is?' He said, 'Go until you reach Madina of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who was raised among the Arabs. He was a prophet from the Arabs, from the tribe of al-Hashim. When you will arrive there ask for banu Ghanam ibn Malik ibn al-Najjar who is near the door of the Mosque in that city. Show yourself to him in the Christian dress; their governor is strict on them and the Caliph is even harsher to them. Thereafter ask for the tribe of banu 'Amr ibn Mabdhul that is in the area of al-Zubayr. Then ask for Musa ibn Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and his house and where he himself is, that is, is he on a journey or at home? If he will be on a journey then you must reach him; his destination is shorter than the distance you have to travel. When you will meet him say that the chief monk of al-Ghuta, Ghuta of Damascus, guided you to him. That he asked you to convey a great deal of greetings of peace to him and has said to him the following: "I pray to my Lord very often to make my Islam to take form in your hands.'"

"The Christian man told this story of his dream while he was standing and supporting himself with his staff. Then he said, 'My master, if you grant me permission I want to fold my hands before you and sit down.' He (the Imam) said, 'Yes, you have my permission to sit down but I will not give permission to fold your hands before me.' He sat down and removed his hat and said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, will you grant me permission to speak'? The Imam said, "Yes, you have come just for it." The Christian man said, 'Return the greetings to my friend. Do you not return the greetings of peace?' Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'The answer to your friend is that he must accept Islam. The greeting of peace will be returned when he will accept our religion.' The Christian man then said, 'I want to ask you questions, may Allah grant you well being.' The Imam said, 'Ask your questions.' He said, 'Tell me about the book that Allah has revealed to Muhammad who read, followed it and said, "Ha Mim. (44:1) I swear by the illustrious Book (44:2) that We have revealed the Holy Quran on a blessed night to warn mankind (44:3). On this night, every absolute command coming from Us becomes distinguishable." (44:4) What is its intrinsic interpretation and meaning?'

"The Imam said, 'Ha Mim stands for Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who is mentioned in the book of Hud which was revealed to him and its letters are abbreviated. The "Illustrious Book" stands for Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant. The blessed night stands for Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. ". . . absolute command coming from Us becomes distinguishable," (44:4) means that in that night there comes a great deal of good. There is the man of wisdom, the man of wisdom and the man of wisdom. (It is a reference to the first three 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority) from the descendents of Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"The man said, 'Describe to me the first and last of these men.' The Imam then said, 'qualities are similar. However I will describe the third of these people and his descendents and he is mentioned to you in the books revealed to you. If you have not altered and changed and rejected them as you have been doing for a long time.'

"The Christian man said, 'I will not hide from you what I know and will not lie to you and you already know what I will say is true and what is false. By Allah, He has granted you through His grace so much distinction and has given the opportunity through His bounties so much that people cannot even think how much they are. No one can hide them and falsify them, even those who reject (the truth). My words in the matter are true as I mentioned and it is as such that I said.'

"Abu Ibrahim (the Imam), recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said to him, 'I can tell you news that only very few people who read books know. Tell me, what was the name of the mother of Mary and when the spirit was blown in Mary and in which hour of the day? What was the date when Jesus was born and during which hour of the day?'

"The Christian man said, 'I do not know.' Abu Ibrahim then said, 'The name of the mother of Mary was Martha, and Wahiyba in Arabic. The day Mary conceived Jesus was a Friday at noontime. It was the day in which the trusted spirit descended and among the Muslims there is no holiday of greater preference than this. Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, has advanced it with greatness and Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has venerated it with greatness. He commanded it to be observed as a holiday, thus, it is the day of congregation. The day in which Mary was born was a Tuesday four and a half-hours before noon. Do you know the river on the side of which Mary gave birth to Jesus?' The Christian man said, 'No, I do not know it.' The Imam then said, 'It was Euphrates that has palm trees and vineyards on its banks. No other place is like Euphrates for vineyards and palm trees. Have you noticed the day in which her tongue was curtained in speaking and Qaydus (the king of Israel) called his sons and subjects for support to take the family of 'Imran out and look at Mary?' They asked her, 'What has Allah told you in His book and against us in His book?'

"The Imam then asked, 'Have you understood it (the book)?' The Christian man said, 'Yes, I read it this day the last time.' The Imam then said, 'Therefore, you will not rise from this meeting before Allah will grant you the right guidance.' The Christian man asked, 'What was the name of my mother in Asyrian and in Arabic.' The Imam said, 'In Asyrian it was 'Anqalia. 'Unqura was the name of your grandmother from your father's side. The name of your mother in Arabic was Mayyata.

The name of your father was ‘Abd al-Masih and it is ‘Abd Allah in Arabic. Al-Masih (Messiah) did not have any servant.’ The Christian man said, ‘You have spoken the truth and you have done a good deed. Can you tell me what the name of my grandfather was?’ The Imam said, ‘The name of your grandfather was Gabriel and I call him ‘Abd al-Rahman in this our meeting.’ The Christian man asked, ‘Was he a Muslim?’ Abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, ‘Yes, he was a Muslim and he was martyred. Soldiers attacked him and murdered him in his home senselessly and the soldiers were from the people of Damascus.’

“The Christian man asked, ‘What was my name before my Kunya (such as ‘abu’ of so and so or ‘ibn’ of so and so)?’ The Imam then said, ‘It was ‘Abd al-Salib.’ The Christian man asked, ‘What name would you like to give me? The Imam then said, ‘I will call you ‘Abd Allah.’ The Christian man said, ‘I then declare my belief in Allah the Great and testify that no one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed besides Allah Who is One and no one is His partner. He is One, self-sufficient. He is not like how the Christians describe Him. He is not like how the Jews describe Him. He is not a genus of the categories of polytheism. I testify that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is His servant and His Messenger. He has sent him with all truth. He has manifested the truth to the people of truth and has turned the people of falsehood blind. That Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is the Messenger of Allah to all mankind, red and black alike. Thus, those who have understanding have understood and those who sought guidance have received guidance. The people of falsehood have turned blind and have lost what they were calling (as their Lord).’

“I testify that His representative and His Wali (Leader with Divine Authority) have spoken with His wisdom. That all the prophets before him had spoken with pure wisdom, supported each other in obedience to Allah, stayed away from falsehood and the people of falsehood, from filth and the people of filth. That they kept aloof from error, that Allah supported them through obedience to Him, kept them infallible and sinless. Thus, they were the Awliya’ of Allah (people possessing Divine Authority) and the protectors of religion. They encouraged others to do good and commanded them to do so. I declare my belief in the small ones among them and greater ones among them, those of them whom I have mentioned as well as those that I have not mentioned. I declare my belief in Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, the Lord of the worlds.

“He then cut off his relic and the cross that was made of gold and hung from his neck. He then said, ‘Command me as you wish to whom I must pay charities due on me.’ The Imam said, ‘There is one of your brethren in religion and he is of your own people, from Qays ibn al-Tha‘laba, and is doing well financially like yourself. You must cooperate with each other and be lenient to each other. I will not allow that your rights in Islam be ignored’.

“He then said, ‘By Allah, may Allah grant you well being, I am doing very well financially. In my town I have three hundred horses male and female and a thousand camels. Your right in them is more than mine.’ The Imam said, ‘You are the slave of Allah and His Messenger and your lineage is natural.’ He improved himself in Islam and married a lady from the tribe of Fihr. Abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, paid her dowry (marriage gift), which was fifty Dinars from the charities of Ali ibn abu Talib, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He hired for him a servant and provided him accommodation until abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was taken (to Baghdad). Thereafter he died after only twenty-eight days.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim and Ahmad ibn Mihran all have narrated from Muhammad ibn Ali from al-Hassan ibn Rashid from Ya'qub ibn Ja'far who has said the following:

"Once I was in the presence of abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, when a monk and a nun from the people of Najran, Yemen, came to see him. Al-Fadl ibn Sawwar sought permission for them and the Imam said, 'Tomorrow bring them to the well of 'Umm Khayr.'

"The narrator has said that on the next day we went to see him and we found the people (the monk and the nun) there also. The Imam ordered to spread a mat that was made of palm tree fibers. He then sat down on it and the people also sat down with the Imam. The nun began asking questions. She asked many questions. The Imam answered them all. Abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asked her certain questions but she could not answer. She then accepted Islam.

"The monk then began to ask questions and the Imam answered whatever he asked. The monk then said, 'I was very strong in my religion and no one of the Christians was as knowledgeable as I. I heard of a man from India who could go for pilgrimage to the Holy House in one day and one night and then go back to India to his home. I asked, 'Where did he live'? I was told that he lived in Sibdhan. The one who informed me about him said that he knew the knowledge with which Asaf the companion of Solomon brought the throne of Sheba before Solomon. He is the one whom Allah has mentioned in your book and in the books of the followers of the Bible.'

"Abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then asked, 'How many are the names of Allah that if invoked do not leave one without the desired result?' The monk said, 'They are many but the ones with perfect effects that do not leave the person invoking them without the desired results are seven.' Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asked him, 'Tell of whichever that you know.' The monk said, 'I swear by Allah, who has sent the Torah to Moses and has made Jesus to be a lesson for the worlds and a trial for the thankfulness of the people of reason. (I swear by Allah), Who has made Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to be a blessing and mercy and has made Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, a lesson and the source of understanding, Who has made the executors of his will from his descendents and the descendents of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, that I do not know. Had I known them you would not have to ask me, I would not have to come to you and would not have asked you questions.'

"Abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, 'Tell me more about the man from India.' The monk said, 'I had heard certain names but I did not know their sense and details. I did not know what and how they were and how they were read? I journeyed to Sibdhan in India, asked about the man. I was told that he has built a monastery in the mountain and can only be seen twice a year. The people of India believe that Allah has made a stream flow through his monastery. They think that a different kind of farming is done for him therein, all is done without normal labor. I then went to his door and waited for three days without knocking and trying to open the door. On the fourth day Allah opened the door. A cow loaded with firewood came. Her breast was so heavily filled with milk that it almost touched the ground and the milk almost came out. The cow pushed the door open and I followed her. I found the man in a standing position looking toward the sky and wept. Then he looked to the earth and wept. He looked at the mountains and wept.' I said, 'glory belongs to Allah. How few are the people like you in our times.' He said, 'By Allah, I am only one good deed of the deeds of the one whom you have left behind you.' I then said, 'I am told that you know certain names of the names of Allah through which you can reach, every day and night, the Holy house that is in al-Sham (Syria). Is it true?' He asked me, 'Do you recognize the Holy House?' I replied, 'I do not know any other Holy House besides that in al-Sham.' He said, 'It is not Bayt al-Maqdis (the mosque in Jerusalem). It is the Holy House, that is, the House of the family of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"I then said, 'What I have heard up to this day is the Holy House that I just mentioned.' He said, 'That is the place where the prophets worshipped Allah. It had been called the center of the places of worship until the period between the time of Jesus and the coming of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in which the calamities approached the pagans and misfortune entered the houses of Satan. They moved, changed and transferred those names as Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, has said in His words whose intrinsic meanings stand for the family of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and its apparent meanings stand as a proverb, "These are only names given by yourselves and your fathers. Allah has not given them any authority. . . ." (53:23)

"I (Christian man) then said, to him, 'I have come to you from a faraway land. On the way I crossed oceans, sadness, anxieties and fear. I have passed days and nights in despair for failing to reach my goal.'

"He said to me, 'I do not see that your mother conceived you at any time without a noble angel with her. I never found your father without formal purification whenever he would go to bed with your mother. He went to bed with her in a purified condition. I do not think there was any other reason except his reading the fourth part of the Torah during his nightly vigil, thus, it lead him to the good end. Go back just as you came. Go until you reach Madina of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, which is also called Taybah. In the age of darkness of ignorance they called it Yathrib. Then go to a place therein called al-Baqi'. Then ask for a house called the house of Marwan. Lodge there for three days. Then ask for a black old man who works with the fibers of the palm tree (to make mats and other such things) that they call al-Khasf. Be kind to him and tell him, 'I am sent to you by your guest who would stay with you in the corner of the house wherein there are the four pieces of woods. Then ask him about so and so son of so and so. Ask him where he forms his gathering and what time he passes thereby. He will show him to you or will give a full description and you recognize him through the description as I will describe him for you.'

I said, 'After meeting him what should I do?' He said, 'Ask him of whatever happened and whatever will happen. Ask him about religious guidance of those of the past and those yet to come.' The narrator has said that abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to him, ‘Your friend whom you met has given you very good advice.’ The monk then asked the Imam, ‘What is his name, may Allah keep my soul in service for your cause?’

“The Imam said, ‘His name is Mutammim ibn Firuz, from the people of Persia. He established belief in Allah Who is only One and has no partners and worshipped Him sincerely with certainty and devotion. He ran away from his people when he was afraid of them. His Lord granted him authority and guided him to the way of right guidance and progress. He made him to be of the pious ones and granted him the knowledge of who His sincere servants are. Every year he visits Makka for Hajj. He performs ‘Umra once at the beginning of every month. He comes from his place in India to Makka because of the distinction that Allah has granted him and His support and, thus, Allah rewards those who give thanks.’

“The monk then asked him many questions. The Imam answered them all. He asked the monk certain questions, which he could not answer but the Imam himself answered them. The monk then said, ‘Tell me of the eight letters (code words) that were revealed out of which four were manifested on earth and the other four remained in space. To whom were the four that remained in space sent? Who will interpret them?’

“The Imam then said, ‘He will be our al-Qa’im (the one who will rise with Divine authority and power). Allah will send them to him and he will interpret them. He will send to him what has not even been sent to the truthful ones, the messengers and the rightly guided ones.’

“Then the monk said, ‘Tell me about the two of the four that were sent to earth. What are they?” The Imam said, ‘I will tell you about all four. The first one was, No one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed except Allah Who is One and has no partners and that He is eternal. The second was, Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah purely. The third one was we the Ahl al-Bayt (infallible members of the family of Muhammad, recipients of divine supreme covenant).The fourth one was our Shi‘a (followers) who are from us and we are from the Messenger of Allah and the Messenger of Allah is from Allah through a means.’

“The monk then said, ‘I testify that no one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed except Allah, that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah, that whatever he brought from Allah is true, that you, Ahl al-Bayt (the infallible members of the family of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant) are the chosen ones of Allah from His creatures and that your Shi‘a are pure who are the replacement (of those who oppose you). They will have the good end. All thanks are due to Allah, Lord of the worlds.’

“Abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, called to bring for him a gown, a shirt made in Gha’in Khurasan, a scarf, a shoe and a hat. He gave them to him, prayed the noontime prayer and asked him to circumcise. He said, ‘It had been done when he was seven years old.’”

"He asked, 'Will you be happy if I will bring your cow back to life?' She was just inspired to say, 'Yes, O servant of Allah I will be very happy.'

He pushed the cow with his foot or a staff and she was up straight standing. When the woman looked at the cow she cried and said, 'Jesus, son of Mary, I swear by the Lord of the Ka'ba (he is Jesus).' Ahmad ibn Mahziyar, may Allah grant him blessings, has narrated from Muhammad ibn Ali from Sayf ibn 'Umayra from Ishaq ibn 'Ammar who has said the following:

"Once I heard the pious servant of Allah giving the news of his own death to a man. I thought that he may or may not know when a person from his Shi'a (followers) dies. He turned to me as if angry and said, 'O Ishaq, Rushayd al-Hajriy possessed the knowledge of deaths and suffering, the necessity for such knowledge for the Imam is much greater.' Then he said, 'O Ishaq, do whatever you may like. Your life is destroyed and you will die within two years. Your brothers and family will very soon after you scatter in disunity and turn as traitors against each other so much so that even their enemies will scold them. Was this in your mind?'

"I said, 'I seek refuge with Allah for what went in my center (heart or chest).' After that meeting Ishaq did not live very long and he died. Very soon after banu (children of) 'Ammar began to live on loans and they became very poor and destitute."

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Musa ibn al-Qasim al-Bajali from Ali ibn Ja'far who has said the following:

"Muhammad ibn 'Isma'il came to me when we were still in Makka after completing our 'Umra in the month of Rajab. He said, 'Uncle, I intend to go to Baghdad but I want to say farewell to my uncle, abu al-Hassan Musa ibn Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and I want you also to come with me.'

"I went with him to my brother (the Imam), recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he was in his house in al-Hawba. It was just after sunset. I knocked at the door and my brother answered the door asking, 'Who is it?' I replied, 'It is Ali.' He said, 'I am just coming.' He would do his Wudu very slowly. I said, 'Be quick please.' He said, 'I will be quick.' He came out wearing dyed cloths that he had secured around his neck and sat down just below the doorsteps. I (Ali ibn Ja'far) bowed toward him and kissed his head and said, 'I have come for a matter to find out if you agree then Allah may grant him success, if you do not agree then it is one of those mistakes that we make.' He asked, 'What is it?' I said, 'This is the son of your brother. He wants to say farewell to you; he wants to go to Baghdad.' He said to me, 'Call him.' I called him and he had kept some distance. He came close to him and kissed his head and said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, please advise me.'

"The Imam said, 'I advise you to be pious before Allah and spare my life.' He in answer said, 'Whoever has bad intentions toward you, may Allah have the same for him.' He continued to pray against those who have bad intentions against the Imam. He then kissed the head of the Imam again and said, 'Please advise me.’ The Imam said, ‘I advise you to be pious before Allah and spare my life.’

“He in answer said, ‘Whoever has bad intentions against you, may Allah have the same for him, and He has already done so.’ He kissed the head of the Imam and said, ‘Please advise me.’ The Imam said, ‘I advise you to be pious before Allah and spare my life.’ He prayed against those having bad intentions against the Imam, and moved away and I left along with him.

“My brother called me and said, ‘O Ali, wait where you are.’ I waited. He went inside and then called me inside. I went inside and he gave me a bag with a hundred Dinars in it and said, ‘Tell your nephew to use it during his journey.’

“I (the narrator) secured the money in my dress and he gave me another hundred Dinars to give to him also and then he gave me one more bag to give to him. I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, ‘When you are afraid of him so much then why do you give him all this money and why do you support him against your own self?’

“He said, ‘If I maintain good relations with him and he cuts off such relationships Allah will cut his life short.’ Then he gave to me a pillow with three hundred pure Dirhams (units of money) in it and asked to also give it to him. The narrator has said, ‘I then left and gave him the first one hundred. He became extremely happy and prayed for his uncle. I then gave him the other money and he became so happy that I thought he might not want anymore to go to Baghdad. I then gave him all the Dirhams and he left for Baghdad. He greeted Harun as the Caliph and said, ‘I did not think that there could be two Caliphs on earth at the same time. I also saw my uncle Musa ibn Ja‘far being greeted as the Caliph.’

“Harun sent him one hundred thousand Dirhams. He fell sick with Diphtheria or scrofulous and died before seeing or touching any of the money.”

Sa‘d ibn ‘Abd Allah and ‘Abd Allah ibn Ja‘far all have narrated from Ibrahim ibn Mahziyar from his brother Ali ibn Mahziyar from al-Husayn ibn Sa‘id from Muhammad ibn Sinan from ibn Muskan from abu Basir who has said the following:

“Musa ibn Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, died at the age of fifty-five in the year one hundred eighty-three. He lived for thirty-five years after Ja‘far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant.”

Chapter One Hundred Twenty One

The Birth of abu al-Hassan al-Rida, Recipient of Divine Supreme Covenant

Al-Kulayni has said, “Abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was born in A.H. one hundred forty-eight He passed away in the month of Safar in the year two hundred and three at the age of fifty-five. All the views about this date are not the same but it is more accurate, if Allah so wills. He died in Tus in the town called Sanabad that is within the reach of human voice from Nawqan. He was buried there. Al-Ma’mun (an ‘Abbassid ruler) had summoned him from Madina to Marw via Basra to Persia. When al-Ma’mun left for Baghdad he took the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, along with him and he (the Imam) passed away in this town. His mother was ’Umm Walad called ’Umm al-Banin.”

Mahbub from Hisham ibn Ahmar who has said the following:

"Once abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the 2nd, asked me, 'Do you know if anyone from Morocco (or the west) has arrived?' I replied, 'No, no one has come.' He said, 'Yes, a man has come. Come with us.' He rode and I also rode and went until we reached the man. He was a man from Madina who had a few slaves with him for sale. I asked him to show the slaves for sale and he showed me seven slave-girls. Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'I do not need any of these.' Then he asked, 'Show us more.' The man said, 'There is no more except one who is ill.' The Imam asked, 'Why do you not show her to us?' The man refused and the Imam returned. The next day he sent me and said to ask him for how much is the girl who is ill and if he said for so and so amount say, 'I pay.'

"I went to him and he said, 'I will not accept less than such and such amount for her.' I said, 'I agree to take her.' He said, 'She is yours but tell me who was the man with you yesterday?' I said, 'A man from the clan of banu Hashim.' He asked, 'From which family is he?' I said, 'That is all I know.' He said, 'I want to tell you about this girl. I bought her in the far corner of the west (or Morocco). A woman from the followers of the Bible came and asked, "What is she doing with you?" I said, 'I have purchased her for myself.' She said, 'This girl should not be with one like you. This girl should be with the best of the people on earth. With such a person she will not live very long before giving birth to a boy whose like will not be born in the west or east of the earth.' I brought her to the Imam and shortly afterwards she became the mother of Imam al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from those he mentioned from Safwan ibn Yahya who has said the following:

"When abu Ibrahim, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away abu al-Hassan (al-Rida), recipient of divine supreme covenant, spoke of his Imamat (Leadership with Divine Authority) and it was troubling to us. It was said to him, 'You have declared a very great issue and we are afraid for your life from this rebel.' The Imam said, 'Allow him to strive hard but he will not find any way against me.'"

Ahmad ibn Mihran, Allah grant him blessings, has narrated from Muhammad ibn Ali from al-Hassan ibn al-Mansur from his brother who has said the following:

"Once I went to see al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in a room inside his house in the middle of the night. He raised his hand and it was as if there were ten lamps inside the house. A man asked permission for a meeting. He lowered his hand and then gave him permission."

He owed money to a man from the family of abu Rafi', slave of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, called Tays. He demanded payment and pressed me hard and people also assisted him. When I found myself in such condition I prayed the morning prayer in the Mosque of the Messenger of Allah and then headed to al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who was in al-'Arid those days. When I had almost reached his door he appeared on his donkey wearing a shirt and a gown. When I looked at him I felt shy. When he approached me he looked at me and I offered him the greeting of peace. It was the month of Ramadan. I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, I owe money to your slave, Tays, and he has defamed me. I thought he would order him to stop pressuring me and by Allah, I did not tell him how much I owed nor did I mention any amount. He ordered me to sit until he returned. I remained there until I said my sunset prayer and I was fasting. I felt depressed and I thought of returning home. At that time he appeared before me with people around him. Beggars had surrounded him and he gave them charity. He passed by and entered his house. Then he came out and called me inside. We both sat down and I began to speak to him about ibn al-Musayyib, the governor of Madina, as I used to speak to him about the governor often. When I finished he said, ‘I do not think you have ended your fast yet.’ I said, ‘No, I have not ended it yet.’ He asked for food and ordered the boy (servant) to join me at the table. The boy and I had our meal and when we finished he said to me, ‘Lift up the furnishing and pick up whatever is underneath.’ I lifted it up and found Dinars therein. I picked them up and placed them in my pocket. He ordered four of his slaves to escort me to my house. I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, the spies of ibn al-Musayyib check around all the time and I would not like them to see me with your slaves. He said, ‘You are right, may Allah keep you rightly guided.’ He ordered them to return whenever I wanted them to do so.

“When I almost reached my house and felt safe I asked them to go back. I went home and asked for a lamp. I looked at the Dinars and there were forty-eight of them. I owed twenty-eight to the man. Among them one Dinar caught my sight. I picked it up and brought it near the lamp. I found a clear mark on it that said, ‘Pay to the man twenty-eight Dinars and keep the rest for yourself.’ By Allah, I did not tell him (the Imam) how much I owed him. All praise belongs to Allah Who has granted honor to those whom He has given authority.’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from certain persons of our people who have said the following:

“Abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, came out of Madina in the year that Harun wanted to perform Hajj. When he arrived near the mountain called Fari‘ on the left going to Makka, abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, looked at it and then said, ‘The builder at Fari‘ and the demolisher will be cut in pieces.’ We had no idea what it meant. When he returned Harun arrived and camped at that place. Ja‘far ibn Yahya climbed the mountain and ordered to build a resting place for him. When he (Ja’far) returned from Makka he climbed there and ordered demolished what he had ordered to build. When he (Ja’far) returned to Iraq he was cut into pieces.’”

Ahmad ibn Muhammad has narrated from Muhammad ibn al-Hassan from Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Muhammad ibn Hamza ibn al-Qasim from Ibrahim ibn Musa who has said the following:

“I urged abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in a matter that I demanded from him and he asked to give him time. One day he went out to receive the governor of Madina and I was with him. He came near the castle of so and so and stopped for rest among a few trees. Just the two of us and not a third was there. I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, this holiday is upon us, by Allah, all I have is one

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Yasir al-Khadim and al-Rayyan ibn al-Salt and both have said the following:

"When the matter of the deposed Caliph (Amin) ended and it (rule) was established for al-Ma'mun he wrote to al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asking to come to Khurasan. Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in reply presented certain reasons to justify his disagreement with the proposal but al-Ma'mun continued writing until the Imam found it unavoidable and that he (al-Ma'mun) would not leave him alone. He, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then decided to leave for Khurasan and at that time abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was only seven years old. Al-Ma'mun wrote to him, 'Do not travel through the mountains and Qum. Take the road through Basra, al-Ahwaz and Persia.' The Imam arrived at Marw. Al-Ma'mun offered him to command and lead the task of Khilafat (leadership) but abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, declined. He then offered the Imam to accept the position of a crown prince. The Imam said that he might accept it under certain conditions. Al-Ma'mun said, 'Say whatever conditions you like.'

"The Imam wrote, 'I will assume this position with the conditions that I will not issue any order or prohibitions nor issue any fatwa or judgment nor any appointment or dismissal of officers or change anything in the current system. You must excuse me in all such matters.' Al-Ma'mun agreed to all such conditions.

"The narrator has said that Yasir narrated to me saying, 'When it was 'Id (the holiday) al-Ma'mun asked al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to attend the program, lead the prayer and deliver the sermon. Al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, replied to him saying, 'You know the conditions between us. They did not consist of any such matters. Al-Ma'mun sent the message, 'I only want thereby to build confidence in the people by knowing your distinction.' He continued insisting until the Imam said, 'O Amir al-Mu'minin, I will appreciate it greatly if you excuse me from such task and if you still insist then I will do this task in the manner that the Messenger of Allah and Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, would do.'

"Al-Ma'mun then said, 'You may do as you choose.' Al-Ma'mun ordered the servants and guides to lead a procession to the door of abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying 'Allahu Akbar,' Allah is great.

"The narrator has said that Yasir al-Khadim narrated to me, 'People lined up waiting for the Imam on the roads and roof tops, men, women and children. The guides and people from the army gathered at the door of abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant. At sunrise the Imam took a shower and wore a white turban made of cotton. He let one end of the turban hang over his chest and the other end between his shoulders on his back. He tied his belt and said to his followers, 'Do as I have done.' He picked up an arrow-shaped staff and came out and we were along with him. He was barefoot and his gown was raised halfway between his feet and knees and so were his other (long) clothes. When he walked and we walked along with him he raised his head toward the sky and said, 'Allahu Akbar' (Allah is great) four times. It seemed to us as if the sky and the walls responded to him. The guides and the people at the door were ready and armed and decorated with the best dresses. When we came out in such fashion along with al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, he stood at the door briefly. He then said, 'Allahu Akbar (Allah is great). Allahu Akbar (Allah is great). Allahu Akbar (Allah is great). Allahu Akbar (Allah is great). He has granted us guidance. Allahu Akbar (Allah is great). He has granted us the cattle. All praise belongs to Allah. He has granted us blessings.' We all raised our voices. Yasir al-Khadim has said that the whole Marw shook with the weeping cries and shouts when they looked at abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Many of the guides fell from their horses. The horses kicked. The guides threw away their boots when they saw abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, barefoot. He would walk about ten steps and pause and say, 'Allahu Akbar' three times. Yasir al-Khadim has said that to us it seemed as if the sky, earth and mountains responded along with him. The whole Marw had become one voice loud and tearful. It was reported to al-Ma'mun. Sahl ibn al-Fadl, who had two official posts, said to him, 'O Amir al-Mu'minin, if al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will reach the place of prayer in this manner people will devotedly be attracted to him. In my opinion, ask him to return home.'

"Al-Ma'mun sent his people to ask abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to return home. He asked to bring his shoes and wore them and rode back home.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Yasir al-Khadim who has said the following:

"When al-Ma'mun left Khurasan for Baghdad along with him came Fadl, Dhu al-Ri'asatayn and we came out with abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Fadl ibn Sahl had received a letter from his brother Hassan while we were on our journey. Hassan had said in the letter, 'I studied the Zodiac changes this year according to the astrological calculations. I have found out that in the month of so and so on a Wednesday you will feel the test of iron and fire. I urged you to go to a Turkish bath with al-Ma'mun and Imam al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and perform phlebotomies and stain your hands with blood, which will help remove this misfortune from you.'

"Fadl ibn Sahl wrote about it to al-Ma'mun requesting him to request His Holiness Imam Ali ibn Musa al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to also join them on the appointed day. Al-Ma'mun informed the Holy Imam of the contents of that letter and demanded the consent of His Holiness. In reply to the caliph's letter Imam al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, wrote, 'I will not go to the Turkish bath tomorrow. You and Fadl also must not go there tomorrow.' He sent that letter to the Imam twice. Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, wrote to him, 'O Amir al-Mu'minin, I will not go to the Turkish bath. I have seen in a dream the Messenger of Allah forbidding me to go to that Turkish bath. You and Fadl also must not go to the Turkish bath.'

"Al-Ma'mun replied to the letter saying, 'You have spoken the truth and so has the Messenger of Allah. I will not go to the Turkish bath tomorrow and Fadl knows best (to decide for himself).' The narrator has said that Yasir said, 'When the night fell al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, told us to say, 'We seek refuge in Allah against the misfortune in this night.' We continued saying the expression. When al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, prayed the Morning Prayer he asked

He refused to cancel his decision for the bath and he went to the Turkish bath. A group of people attacked him with swords and killed him. Three of the attackers were arrested and one of them was the son of his maternal uncle, the son of Dhu al-Qalamayn.'

"He (Yasar) then said, 'The police and the guides and the people of Fadl present at the door of al-Ma'mun said, 'He (al-Ma'mun) has murdered him. We avenge him.' They want to set the door on fire. Al-Ma'mun said to abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'My master, please come out to them to calm them down and ask them to disperse.'

"The narrator has said that Yasir said, 'Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, rode and asked me to ride also.' When we were out of the door of the house he looked at the people who were crowded there. He made hand gestures to ask them to disperse. Yasir has said, 'The people created a stampede while rushing to disperse and to whomever he made a hand gesture, he would run and pass quickly by the Imam.'"

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from Musafir and from al-Washsha' from Musafir who has said the following:

"When Harun ibn al-Musayyib decided to fight Muhammad ibn Ja'far, abu al-Hassan, al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, told me to go to him and say, 'Do not go out tomorrow. If you do so you will be defeated and your people will be killed. If he asks, 'How do you know that'? say, 'I saw it in my dream.' I (the narrator) went to him and said, 'May Allah make me of service to you; do not go out tomorrow to fight. If you do so you will be defeated and your people will be killed.' He asked, 'How do you know this?' I said, 'I saw it in my dream.' He said, 'A slave goes to sleep (to dream) and his behind is not even washed.' He went out to fight. He was defeated and his people were killed.'

"The narrator has said that Musafir narrated, 'I was in the presence of abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in Mina, Makka when Yahya ibn Khalid passed by and he covered his head from the dust. The Imam said, 'Poor people do not know what will happen to them this year and stranger than this is the case of Harun and me.' The Imam made a gesture with his two fingers side by side. I, by Allah, could not understand the meaning of his statement until we buried him (Yahya ibn Khalid)."

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from Ali ibn Muhammad al-Qasani who has said the following:

"A certain person of our people has said that he wanted to deliver an amount of property to abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant. It was a large amount. When he (al-Rida), recipient of divine supreme covenant, saw it he did not manifest any sign of happiness. I became depressed and said to myself, 'I delivered this property to him but he did not become happy.' The Imam called, 'O boy, bring water and the receptacle.'

"The narrator has said that the Imam then sat on the chair and made a hand gesture to the boy to dispense water on his hand. The narrator has said that from his hand gold began to fall in the receptacle. He then turned to me and said, 'One who is capable of doing this, he does not become happy for whatever you have delivered to him.'"

Al-Kulayni has said, "Abu Ja'far, Muhammad ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was born in the month of Ramadan in the year one hundred ninety-five and passed away in the year two hundred twenty at the end of the month of Dhu al-Qa'da at the age of twenty-five and two months and eighteen days. He was buried in Baghdad in the graveyard of Quraysh near the grave of his grandfather, Musa ibn Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Al-Mu'tasam (an 'Abbassid ruler) had summoned him to Baghdad at the beginning of the year in which he left this world. His mother was 'Umm Walad, called, Sabika Nuwbiyya. It is also said that her name was Khizuran. It also is narrated that she was from the family of Maria', mother of Ibrahim, son of the Messenger of Allah."

Ahmad ibn Idris has narrated from Muhammad ibn Hassa'n from Ali ibn Khalid who has said the following:

"Muhammad, who belonged to Zaydi sect, said this to me: 'I was in the army camp and I was told that a prisoner was brought from the area of al-Sham (Syria) tied up and that he has proclaimed himself a prophet.'

"Ali ibn Khalid has said that I went to him and found my way through the guards until I reached him. I found him to be a man of understanding. I asked him, 'O you, what is your story and your case?' He said, 'I am a man from al-Sham. I was praying to Allah at a place called the "Place of the head of al-Husayn." During my prayer a man came to me and said, "Come with me." I went with him and I found myself in the Mosque of al-Kufa. He asked me, 'Do you recognize this Mosque?' I replied, "Yes, I recognize it." He (now a prisoner) said, 'He prayed and I prayed with him. Then I found us in the Mosque of the Messenger of Allah in Madina. He offered greetings of peace to the Messenger of Allah and I did the same. He prayed and I prayed with him. He offered the special prayer for the Messenger of Allah. I was with him and found us in Makka. I continued to find myself with him until we finished all the acts to be performed there. Then I found myself with him at the place in which I was praying to Allah in al-Sham. The man left for his own destination. The next year I was with him again and we did as in the year before. When we finished all of the activities of prayers and he returned me to my place of prayer in al-Sham and was about to leave I

He sent his people who arrested me and tied me up in chains and transferred me to Iraq.’

“I (the narrator) then asked him to send a petition to Muhammad ibn ‘Abd al-Malik. He did so explaining the whole story but the answer to his petition bearing the signature of Muhammad ibn ‘Abd al-Malik said, ‘He should ask the one who took him from al-Sham to al-Kufa, then to al-Madina then to al-Makka then back to al-Sham to release him from prison also.’ I felt very sad for him with a great deal of sympathy. I tried to cheer him up and asked him to exercise patience. Next early morning when I went to see him I found people from the army, the chief of the security men, the prison guard and the crowd of creatures of Allah around and in the area. I asked, ‘What is the matter?’ They said, ‘The prisoner from al-Sham who had proclaimed himself a prophet has disappeared and no one knows if the earth has swallowed him up or birds have snatched him away.’”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Ash‘ari has said that a shaykh from our people called ‘Abd Allah ibn Razyn narrated to me the following:

“I lived in al-Madina of the Messenger of Allah. Abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, would come every day to the mosque at noontime. He would enter the compound, turn to the shrine of the Messenger of Allah and offer his greeting of peace. He would then turn to the house of Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, take off his shoes, stand up and pray. Satan induced temptation in my heart and said, ‘When he (the Imam) comes, go and pick up the dust on which he has just stepped.’ I waited that day for that purpose. When it was noontime he came riding on his donkey but he did not dismount at the place where he had done so before. He came and dismounted on the rock in front of the door of the Mosque. He then entered the Mosque, turned to the Shrine of the Messenger of Allah and offered his greetings of peace to the Messenger of Allah. He then turned to the place where he would pray. He did the exact thing for several days. I then said to myself, ‘When he will come this time and remove his shoes I will go and pick up the gravel on which he has just stepped.’ When he came the next day at noontime he dismounted on the rock then entered the Mosque, turned to the Shrine of the Messenger of Allah and offered his greetings of peace. He then came to the place where he would pray but prayed without removing his shoes and did the same thing for several days. I then said to myself, ‘I could not succeed this way but now I must find which public bathhouse he uses to take a shower. I must wait at the door of the place and when he comes to enter the public bathhouse I can pick up the dust from the place on which he steps. I asked about such public bathhouse and found out that it is such a place in al-Baqi‘ that belongs to a man from the family of al-Talha. I found out about the day that he comes to this bathhouse. I then, on that day, went to the place, met the man from the family of al-Talha and began to talk to him while waiting for him (the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant) to come. The owner of the place said to me, ‘If you want to use the bathhouse you must do so now; later on it will not be available.’ I asked, ‘Why is that?’ He said, ‘Ibn al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will come to use it.’ I then asked, ‘Who is ibn al-Rida?’ He said, ‘A man from the family of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He is very pious and well disciplined.' I then asked, 'Is it unlawful to use the public bathhouse at the time that he is there?' He said, 'We just vacate the place and leave it that way just for him.'

"The narrator has said that at that time he came with a few of his slaves. In front of him there was a slave who carried a piece of mat and brought it in all the way to the dressing room where he spread it down. He (the Imam) also came in, offered his greetings of peace and entered the dressing room while still riding on the donkey. He then dismounted on the mat. I then said to the man from the family of al-Talha, 'Is this the one whom you mentioned with all the superlative words in his praise?' He said, 'O you, by Allah, he has never done this before. It only has happened today.' I said to myself, 'This is because of what I have committed against my own soul.' I then said to myself, 'I will wait until he comes out, perhaps I will succeed in my plan.' When he came out he asked his people to bring the donkey. The donkey was brought into the dressing room and he rode on the donkey while over the mat and left. I said to myself, 'By Allah, this is enough. I have troubled him so much, I will not do any such thing again and will not even think about doing such things.' My decision was complete and solid. When it became noontime of that day he came to the Mosque while riding on his donkey and dismounted on the exact spot in the compound of the Mosque where he had normally been doing. Then he turned to the shrine of the Messenger of Allah and offered his greetings of peace and went to the place where he prayed in the house of Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He took off his shoes and stood up for prayer.'"

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn Asbat who has said the following:

"Once he (abu Ja'far Muhammad ibn Ali al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant) came out to me and I looked at his head and legs so I could describe him physically to our people in Egypt. I kept looking until he sat down and said, 'O Ali, Allah's presentation of proofs in support of 'A'immah's Imamat (Leadership with Divine Authority) is the same as those in support of the prophet-hood of a prophet. Allah has said, ". . . we gave knowledge and wisdom to John during his childhood." (19:12) ". . . When he attained maturity, Allah gave him strength, wisdom and knowledge. Thus, do We reward those who do good." (12:22) ". . . When he grew up to manhood and became forty years old. . . ." Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from certain persons of our people from Muhammad ibn al-Rayyan who has said the following:

"Al-Ma'mun did all he could to prove that abu Ja'far, Muhammad ibn Ali al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was only a young man with worldly desires. However, al-Ma'mun could not succeed. When he became frustrated he gave his daughter in marriage to abu Ja'far, Muhammad ibn Ali al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant. For the ceremony he sent two hundred most beautiful entertaining girls each with a bowl in her hand with a precious pearl in it to welcome abu Ja'far, Muhammad ibn Ali al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, when he would sit on the special seat prepared for him. They, however, were not of any attraction to the Imam to

He sat in front of abu Ja'far, Muhammad ibn Ali al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and began to bray, which made all the people of the house gather around him. He began to play his guitar and sing. He did it for an hour but abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, did not pay any attention to the right or left. Then he, recipient of divine supreme covenant, raised his head and said, 'O you, long-bearded one, be pious before Allah.'

"The narrator has said that the musical instrument and guitar fell off his hand and he could not use his hands thereafter until he died. When al-Ma'mun asked him about his condition he said, 'When abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, expressed his disappointment at me it struck me with a huge degree of fear from which I have not been able to relieve myself ever since.'"

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from Dawud ibn al-Qasim al-Ja'fari who has said the following:

"Once I went to see abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and I had a few questions on three pieces of material with improper markings and they were mixed as such that I could not distinguish. I felt sad. He picked one and said, 'This is the letter of Ziyad ibn Shabib.' Then he picked up the other one and said, 'This is the letter of so and so.' I became awestruck. He looked at me and smiled.

"The narrator (Dawud) has said that the Imam then gave me three hundred Dinars and asked me to deliver them to certain persons of the sons of his uncle. He said, 'He will ask you to show him a professional person who could help him to buy goods, help show him one.' I (Dawud) then went to him and gave him the Dinars and he asked me, 'O abu Hashim, can you show me a professional person who may help me to buy goods?' I said, 'Yes, I can do so.'

"The narrator has said that once a camel man asked me to speak on his behalf to abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to take part in certain matters of his affairs. I went to see him (abu Ja'far), recipient of divine supreme covenant, to speak to him but he was having a meal with a group of people and I did not get a chance to speak to him. He (abu Ja'far), recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'O abu Hashim, eat.' He placed food before me. Then he said, initiating and without any question from me, 'O boy, take good care of the camel man that abu Hashim has brought for us. Keep him with you.'

"The narrator has said that one day I entered a garden along with him and said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, I am addicted to eating fig. Pray to Allah for me.' He was calm and then after three days on his own initiation he said, 'O abu Hashim, Allah has removed your addiction.' It (fig) ever since, is the thing that I hate most."

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from Muhammad ibn Ali from Muhammad ibn Hamza al-Hashimi from Ali ibn Muhammad or Muhammad ibn Ali al-Hashimi who has said the following:

"Once I went to see abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in the morning of his marriage to the daughter of al-Ma'mun. The night before I had taken medicine and I was the first to meet him that morning. I was thirsty but did not like to ask for water. Abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, looked at me and said, ‘I think you are thirsty.’ I said, ‘Yes, I am thirsty.’ He called, ‘O Ghulam (male slave or servant) or Jariya (female slave or servant) bring us water.’ I said to myself, ‘They may poison the water.’ For this reason I felt depressed. The servant then came with water. He (abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant) looked at me with a smile and said, ‘O Ghulam, give the water to me.’ He drank from it and gave the rest to me and I drank. I was thirsty again and did not like to ask for water. He then did as he had done before. When the Ghulam (servant) came with the bowl of water I thought as I did before. He then took the bowl, drank from it and gave the rest to me with a smile.’

“Muhammad ibn Hamza has said that this Hashimi told me, ‘I think what they (Shi’a) say (that the Imam possesses Divine Authority) about him is true.’”

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Di‘bil ibn Ali who has said the following:

“Once I went to see abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he ordered his people to give me a certain gift, but I did not thank Allah. The Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then asked, ‘Why did you not thank Allah?’ I went again to see abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he ordered his people to give me a gift and I said, ‘All praise belongs to Allah.’ The Imam said, ‘Now you have learned discipline.’”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu‘alla ibn Muhammad from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah from Muhammad ibn Sinan who has said the following:

“Once I went to see abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He said, ‘O Muhammad, has something happened to the family of al-Faraj (the governor of al-Madina)?’ I said, ‘Yes, ‘Umar (a member of al-Faraj family) has died.’ The Imam then said, ‘All thanks and praise belong to Allah.’ He said it twenty-four times. I then said, ‘My master, had I known it could make you this happy I should have come to you running and barefoot with the news (to congratulate you).’ The Imam said, ‘Do you not know what he, may Allah condemn him, once had said to Muhammad ibn Ali, my father?’ I (the narrator) then said, ‘No, I do not know it.’ The Imam said, ‘He spoke to my father about an issue and then said to him, “I think you are drunk.” My father then said, “O Lord, if you know that I have been fasting this day, then make him feel the wrath of war, and the humiliation of captivity.” By Allah, in just a few days his belongings were looted and he was captured. Now he is dead, may Allah deprive him of His mercy. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, has exacted revenge from him and He continues to exact revenge for His friends from His enemies.’”

Ahmad ibn Idris has narrated from Muhammad ibn Hassa'n from abu Hashim Al-Ja'fari who has said the following:

"Once I prayed with abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in the Mosque of al-Musayyib. He led the prayer with us and for the direction of Makka he stood up facing straight. He also has said that a berry tree that was in the Mosque had dried up and had no leaves. The Imam asked for water and prepared himself under that tree for prayer. The berry tree came alive with leaves and fruits in that year."

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from al-Washsha' from Khayrana al-Asbati who has said the following:

"Once I went to al-Madina to see abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He asked me, 'What is the news from al-Wathiq (Abbassid ruler)?' I said, may Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, I left him in good health and I am of all people the last who met him. I met him just ten days ago.' The Imam then said, ‘People of al-Madina say that he has died.’ When he said, ‘People say’ I understood that it is he himself. He then said, ‘What has Ja‘far (an Abbassid man) done?’ I said, ‘I left him in the worst condition of all people. He was in prison.’ He (the Imam) then said, ‘He has become the ruler. What has ibn al-Zayyat (the Vizier of Wathiq) done?’ I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, people are with him and whatever he says it takes place.’ The Imam then said, ‘His progress has proved to be a misfortune for him.’

“The Imam then paused for a while and said to me, ‘The measures of Allah, the Most High, and His decrees must go on. O Khayaran, al-Wathiq has died, Al-Mutawakkil, Ja‘far has replaced him and ibn al-Zayyat is killed.’ I then asked, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, when has this happened?’ He said, ‘Six days after the time you left.’”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu‘alla ibn Muhammad from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah from Muhammad ibn Yahya from Salih ibn Sa‘id who has said the following:

“Once I went to see abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, they wanted to extinguish your light by all means and be unjust to you. It is so much so that they have lodged you in this disgraceful place for the homeless.’ He said, ‘O ibn Sa‘id, look here. He pointed out with his hand and said, ‘Look there.’ When I looked I saw gardens. I saw very delightful gardens. There lived lovely boys and girls as if they were well-protected and secure pearls. There lived birds and beautiful deer. It had fountains and rivers that poured out and gushed forth. My sight was bewildered and my eyes turned dull. He then said, ‘Wherever we may live, these are for us. We are not in the lodging for the homeless.’”

“Once I bought a large number of sheep for abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He called and admitted me into the barn area of his house into a vast location that I could not recognize. He ordered me to distribute the sheep among certain people and of such people were abu Ja‘far (his son) and his mother and others. Thereafter I requested permission to leave for Baghdad to see my father. It was the day of Tarwiya (eighth of the month of Dhi al-Hajj). He wrote to me, ‘Stay with us tomorrow and thereafter leave.’ I stayed that day and then it was the day of ‘Arafah (ninth of Dhi al-Hajj) but I stayed with them that day as well as the tenth night in the balcony of his house. At dawn he came to me and said, ‘O Ishaq, wake up.’ I then got up. I then opened my eyes and found myself at my own door in Baghdad. I went inside and met my father among my people and told them that I spent the day of ‘Arafah (ninth of Dhi al-Hajj) in the army camp (Samarra) and for ‘Id (tenth of Dhi al-Hajj) I am in Baghdad.’” own property if her son recovered. Fath ibn Khaqan had advised him (Al-Mutawakkil) to ask him (the Imam) about it saying, ‘He might know something that could help relieve you.’ He (Al-Mutawakkil) sent the message to him (the Imam) and explained his illness. The messenger returned with a message that said, ‘Warm up oil residue from sheep mixed with extracts from roses and place it on the boil.’ When the messenger explained it to them they laughed at his words. However, al-Fath said, ‘He, by Allah, knows best about what he has said.’ They brought the oil and prepared it as explained and placed it on the boil. The patient soon after was fast asleep and his active pain had calmed down. Afterwards it opened up, the substance in it was discharged and his mother was given the glad news of his recovery. She sent ten thousand Dinars to him (abu al-Hassan), recipient of divine supreme covenant, marked with her own insignia. He had fully recovered from his illness, al-Bat ha’i al-‘Alawi acting as a spy reported to him, ‘Large sums of money and weapons are delivered to him (abu al-Hassan), recipient of divine supreme covenant.’ He (al-Mutawakkil) ordered Sa‘id, the police chief, to search his (Imam’s) house during the night, confiscate whatever money and weapons were found therein and bring them to him (al-Mutawakkil).’ Ibrahim ibn Muhammad has said, ‘Sa‘id, the chief of police, told me that when I went to his house during the night I had a ladder to climb over the wall. When I climbed on the roof and then climbed down few steps in the dark I did not know how to reach the house. He (abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, called me, ‘O Sa‘id, hold on until they bring you candles. In a little while they brought me a candle, I climbed down and found him with a woolen gown on him and woolen cap. In front of him there was a prayer rug with a mat on it. I then had no doubt that he was praying. He said to me, ‘There are the rooms.’ I then searched them and did not find anything there but I found the bag of money in his house that was sealed with the insignia of the mother of al-Mutawakkil on it and another sealed bag of money. He said to me, ‘There is the prayer rug.’ I lifted it up and there was a sword underneath in a sheath. I took them to al-Mutawakkil. When he saw the insignia of his mother on it he called her for inquiry and she came to him. Private servants informed me that she said to him, ‘When you were very ill, I had vowed out of frustration that if you recovered I would pay him (the Imam) ten thousand Dinars from my own properties. I paid him and this is my own seal.’ He opened the other bag and there were four hundred Dinars in it. He added another bag of money to it and asked me to deliver them to him (abu al-Hassan), recipient of divine supreme covenant. I returned the sword and the bags of money to him saying, ‘My master, (I wish you knew) how much this assignment has depressed me.’ He said, ‘The unjust ones will find out very soon at what kind of destination they will end up.’”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu‘alla ibn Muhammad from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah from Ali ibn Muhammad al-Nawfali who has said the following:

“Muhammad ibn al-Faraj told me that abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had written to him this. ‘O Muhammad, organize your affairs and be careful.’ He (Muhammad ibn al-Faraj) said, ‘I began to organize my affairs and did not know what the Imam meant thereby until police came to me and took me out of Egypt as a captive. All of my belongings were confiscated and I remained in prison for eight years. In the prison I received a letter from him that said, ‘O Muhammad, do not reside in the western location.’ I read the letter and said to myself, ‘He writes me this and I am in prison. This is strange.’ Shortly afterwards, I was released, thanks to Allah.

“The narrator has said that Muhammad ibn al-Faraj wrote to him about his properties. The Imam wrote to him (Muhammad ibn al-Faraj) in response, ‘Your properties will soon be returned to you and even if they are not returned to you it will not harm you.’ When Muhammad al-Faraj left for the army camp (Samarra) an order was issued to release his properties but he (Muhammad ibn al-Faraj) died before receiving them.

“The narrator has said that Ahmad ibn al-Khadib wrote to Muhammad ibn al-Faraj asking him to come to the army camp. He wrote to the Imam, abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, for his advice in the matter and the response was this, ‘Go out. In it there will be happiness and relief for you, by the will of Allah, the Most High.’ He left for the journey but very shortly afterwards he died.’”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from a man from Ahmad ibn Muhammad who has said the following:

“Abu Ya‘qub informed me saying, ‘I saw him (Muhammad ibn al-Faraj) before his death in the army camp in an evening. Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, received him and looked at him and he became ill the next day. After several days I went to visit him during his illness and his illness was worsening. He informed me that he (abu al-Hassan), recipient of divine supreme covenant, had sent him cloths which he had folded to use as a pillow. The narrator has said that he was shrouded in that cloth. Ahmad has said that abu Ya‘qub said, ‘I saw abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, with ibn al-Khadib who said to him, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, go ahead.’ The Imam said, ‘You go first.’ Only after four days he was put in shackles and the news of his death was given out.

“The narrator has said that it is narrated that when ibn al-Khadib insisted in his demanding the house from him (the Imam), he sent him this messages: ‘I will ask Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, to place you as such that not even your traces could be found.’ Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, took him away in those days.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from a number of our people the following:

“I took a copy of the letter of al-Mutawakkil to abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the 3rd, from Yahya ibn Harthama in the year two hundred forty-three that read as follows: ‘(I begin) in the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful. Thereafter, Amir al-Mu’minin acknowledges your position, takes good care of you as a relative, and deems it obligatory to observe your rights. He pays attention toward your welfare and the well being of your family through the means with which Allah will grant wellbeing to you and to them and establish your honor and honor to them, grant blessings and security to you and to them. He seeks thereby the pleasure of his Lord and to fulfill his obligations toward you and to them. Al-Husayn ibn al-Hassan al-Hassani has said that narrated to me abu al-Tayb al-Muthanna, Ya'qub ibn Yasir the following:

"Al-Mutawakkil would say, 'Woe is you (people). Ibn (the son of) al-Rida, (Ali al-Hadi), recipient of divine supreme covenant, has frustrated me. He refuses to share a drink (liquor) with me and associate with me and I never get a chance in it.' They (al-Mutawakkil's associates) told him, 'If he does not give you a chance, his brother Musa plays music, sings, eats, drinks and seeks carnal love.' He asked them to call him so that we may confuse people with ibn al-Rida (by considering Musa, as Ali al-Hadi, recipient of divine supreme covenant) an associate of al-Mutawakkil. He wrote to Musa and invited him honorably. All the people from the clan of Hashim present, the officials and people received him with the condition that on his arrival a piece of land would be given to him on which proper accommodations would be built for him. People who love to drink liquor and the singers will come to meet him there. He (al-Mutawakkil) maintained good relations with him cared for him and prepared a gorgeous lodging for him where he would visit him therein. When Musa arrived, abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, met him at al-Qantra Wasif, the place where the visitors were being received. He met him, offered him the greeting of peace and observed his rights. Then he (the Imam) said to him, 'This man has invited you to insult and humiliate you. Do not confess to him that you have ever drunk any liquor.' Musa said, 'If he has invited me for this purpose then what should I do?' The Imam said, 'Do not humiliate yourself and do not drink any liquor because he wants to insult you.' He (Musa) refused and he (abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant) repeated his advice. When he found out that he (Musa) did not agree, he said, 'Remember, this is a place where you will never be able to meet him (al-Mutawakkil).' He (Musa) lived there for three years. Every day he would wake up and his people tell him that al-Mutawakkil is busy today; you can meet him next time. He would go and they tell him that he (al-Mutawakkil) is drunk. He would go again and they say he (al-Mutawakkil) has just had medicine. It continued this way for three years until al-Mutawakkil was killed and Musa never had a chance to meet him.'"

Certain persons of our people have narrated from Muhammad ibn Ali that Zayd ibn Ali ibn al-Husayn ibn Zayd narrated to me the following:

"Zayd ibn Ali has said, 'I became ill and a doctor came to see me at night. He prescribed a medicine for me to be taken at night for so and so many days. I could not find the medicine that night. The physician was still there that Nasr (the servant of Imam) came in with a bottle containmg the medicine that the physician had prescribed for me and said, 'Abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has sent you the greeting of peace and has asked you to take this medicine for so and so many days.' I took the medicine and recovered from my illness.

"Muhammad ibn Ali has said that Zayd ibn Ali told me, 'The critics refused to accept this Hadith saying, 'Wherefrom the extremist have brought this Hadith?'"

The Birth of abu Muhammad, al-Hassan ibn Ali, Recipient of Divine Supreme Covenant

بَابُ مَوْلِدِ أَبِي مُحَمدٍ الْحَسَنِ بْنِ عَلِي ع

Al-Kulayni has said, "Abu Muhammad al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was born in the month of Ramadan (in another copy it is in the month of Rabi' al-Awwal) in the year two hundred thirty two. He died on a Friday on the eighth of the month of Rabi' al-Awwal in the year two hundred sixty at the age of twenty-eight. He was buried in the house where his father was buried in the city of Surra man Ra'a (Samarra), Iraq. His mother was 'Umm Walad called Hudayth (or Suwsan)."

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Ash'ari and Muhammad ibn Yahya and others have narrated the following:

"Ahmad ibn 'Ubayd Allah ibn Khaqan was in charge of collecting property and other taxes in the city of Qum. One day in his presence the 'Alawids and their beliefs were mentioned. He was a hardheaded Nasibi (abusive of 'Alawids). He said, 'In the city of Surra man Ra'a, I never saw a man from the 'Alawids like al-Hassan ibn Ali ibn Muhammad ibn al-Rida, recipients of divine supreme covenant, in guidance, calmness, piety, nobility and generosity to his family and among banu Hashim. They as well as the official, the ministers and common people gave preference to him over their elders and the noble ones.

"One day I was standing next to my father (as an assistant or guard) and it was the day of his meeting people. His guards came and said; 'Abu Muhammad ibn al-Rida is at the door.' He said loudly, 'Allow him to come in.' I was surprised at their mentioning so boldly someone with his Kunya (i.e. father of so and so) before my father while only a Caliph, a crown Caliph or one who by the command of the Sultan were to be addressed that way could have been treated as such. A man with a fair complexion came in. His height was good and his face looked handsome, physically very good and young. He looked majestic and awesome. When my father looked at him he stood up and walked toward him several steps. I had not seen him doing this to a person from the clan of banu Hashim and the officers. When he (my father) approached him (ibn al-Rida) he embraced him, kissed his face and chest and holding his hand led him to sit on his own place for prayer and himself sat next to him turning his face toward him. He talked to him and said often, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause.' I was surprised at what I saw. At this time the servant came and said, 'Al-Muwaffaq (brother and commander in chief of the Caliph) has come.' Whenever he (al-Muwaffaq) came to my father he received preference over the officers and other personalities. They stood up in the presence of my father between the door and the seat of my father until he came in and left. My father was still paying attention to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and was talking to him until he looked at his special servants and said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, now you may leave if you so wish.' He then said to his guards to lead him through the back so that he (al-Muwaffaq) would not see him. He stood up and my father also stood up and embraced him and he left. I asked the guards of my father and his servants, 'Woe is you, who was the man whom you addressed by his Kunya before my father and my father treated him as he did?' They said, 'This 'Alawid man is called al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, known as ibn al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant.' This surprised me even more. The whole day I thought anxiously about his affairs and the behaviors of my father and I did not see him until it was night. He usually said his 'Isha (late evening) prayer and studied the things that he needed of the issue to present before the Sultan. When he prayed and began to study I went and sat before him while he was alone. He asked, 'O Ahmad, do you need something?' I said, 'Yes, my father. If you allow me I want to ask.' He said, 'You have permission, my son, say whatever you like.' I said, 'Father, who was the man you met in the morning and behaved with him the way you did toward him with so much glorification, greatness and reverence with such expressions as, "May Allah keep my soul and the soul of my parents in service for your cause?" He said, 'My son, he was the Imam (Leadership with Divine Authority) of the al-Rafida (those who refuse to accept the leadership of people other than Ali ibn abu Talib and his infallible descendents). He is al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, known as ibn al-Rida.' He remained quiet for a while and then said, 'My son if the Imamat (leadership) would be removed from the Abbassid Caliphs no one from the clan of banu Hashim could deserve to become the Imam except this man. He deserves it because of his distinctions, piety, guidance, safety (from mistakes), his chastity, his worship, his beautiful moral characteristics and perfection. Had you had a chance to see his father you would have seen a man of great intelligence, nobility and excellence.' This increased my anxiety, thinking with anger toward my father and I thought his dealing and behavior toward him and his words for him were excessive.

"Thereafter, there was nothing more important to me than to ask more about him and investigate his affairs. Whoever of the members of Hashimit clan or the guards, the clerks, the judges, the scholars of the law (Fuqha') and other people I asked I found him being glorified, mentioned with greatness and high position. I would hear very beautiful words about him and see him given preference over all members of Hashimit clan and their elders.

The feeling of greatness for him increased in my heart because I did not find anyone of his friends or foe that did not speak well of him and praise him.

"A certain person from the al-Ash'ari beliefs present asked him, 'What is the news about his brother, Ja'far, O abu Bakr?' He said, 'Who is Ja'far that you ask about or compare him with al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant? Ja'far was an evildoer in public, polluted with sins, an addict drunkard, the lowest of all man and the most humiliating of his own self among men. He was worthless and mean to his own self. What happened during the time of the death of al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to the Sultan and his people astonished me and I did not think such a thing could happen. When he became ill my father was informed that ibn al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had become ill. He immediately rode to reach the capital of the Caliphate. He came back in a hurry with five people of the servants of the Amir al-Mu'minin. They all were of his confidants and trustworthy ones among whom one was Nihriyr. He (my father) commanded them to stay close to the house of al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to learn about him and his conditions. He called a few physicians and commanded them to maintain contact with him and be around him mornings and evenings. After two or three days he was informed that he (the patient) was weakening. He commanded the physicians to remain around his house and sent for the chief judge who came in his presence. He then commanded him (the judge) to select ten people from his most trustworthy ones in the matters of their religion, trust and restraint in the worldly matters. They were called in his presence and he sent them to the house of al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He commanded them to be there day and night and they were there until he, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away. The city of Surra-man-Ra'a turned into one huge voice of weeping and lamentation. The Sultan sent people to search his house and search all the rooms therein and seal the contents thereof. They searched for his son and called certain women with knowledge to deal with pregnancy. They examined his ladies. A certain woman had said that one of the ladies is pregnant. She was accommodated in a certain quarter and Nihriyr, al-Khadim, and his people and the women with him were ordered to stay guard around her. Thereafter they began to prepare for the burial. Markets were to remain closed. Members of the clan of al-Hashim, the guards, my father and other people formed the burial procession. The city of Surra-man-Ra'a on that day had turned into a day similar to the Day of resurrection. When the body was readied for burial the Sultan sent a message to abu 'Isa ibn al-Mutawakkil and commanded him to lead the prayer. When the body was placed at the prayer area abu 'Isa went close and uncovered his face. He then asked all members of al-Hashim clan of the 'Alawid and 'Abbassid branch, the guards, the clerks, the judges and juries to bear witness that al-Hassan ibn Ali ibn Muhammad ibn al-Rida, recipients of divine supreme covenant, had died a natural death in his own bed. That this had taken place in the presence of the servants of Amir al-Mu'minin, his confidants, so and so persons of the judges and so and so persons of the physicians. He (abu 'Isa) then covered his face and ordered to pick up the body. The body was then picked up from the central area of the house and was buried in the room where his father was buried."

"After his burial, the Sultan and people began to search for his son. The search was carried out extensively. All the houses and rooms were searched. The distribution of his legacy was suspended. The people appointed to guard one of the ladies who was thought of as pregnant continued their task until it was found out that such thought was invalid. When pregnancy was proved invalid they distributed his legacy between his mother and brother, Ja‘far. His mother claimed to be the executor of his will and her claim was confirmed before the judge. The Sultan, even after searching so much for his son continued his search to find traces of his son.

“Thereafter, Ja‘far came to my father and asked, ‘Assign the position of my brother to me. I will pay you twenty thousand Dinars every year.’ My father treated him harshly and rebuked him saying, ‘You are a fool. The Sultan puts to the sword whoever he just thinks is a Shi‘a, follower and supporter of your father and brother to stop them from holding such belief but he fails to achieve such goal. Had you been considered an Imam among the Shi‘a of your father and brother you would not need any help from the Sultan or others to give you such position as that of your father and brother. If you are not considered an Imam among the Shi‘a of your father and brother you will not have such position from us.’ My father belittled him, considered him weak and ordered his people to keep him away from his office. My father did not give him permission for a meeting as long as he lived. We left and he remained in the same condition. The Sultan continued his search for the traces of the son of al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’”

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Muhammad ibn ’Isma‘il ibn Ibrahim ibn Musa ibn Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Once, abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, wrote to abu al-Qasim Ishaq ibn Ja‘far al-Zubayri before the death of al-Mu‘tazz by about twenty days as follows: ‘Stay home until what is to happen will happen.’ When Burayha was killed he wrote to him (the Imam), recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘A happening has happened. What do you command me to carry out?’ He wrote back, ‘This is not the happening. It is another happening.’ Then there was the case of al-Mu‘tazz the way it was.”

“It is narrated from the same narrator that the Imam wrote to another person, ‘Ibn Muhammad ibn Dawud ibn ‘Abd Allah will be killed.’ It (the writing) was ten days before his assassination. On the tenth day he was killed.”

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Muhammad ibn Ibrahim, known as ibn al-Kurdiy, from Muhammad ibn Ali ibn Ibrahim ibn Musa ibn Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“We were under pressure and constraint. My father said, ‘We should go to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, for help. People describe him as very generous and considerate.’ I asked, ‘Do you know him?’ He said, ‘No, I do not know him and I have not even seen him as yet.’ We decided to go and meet him. My father said on the way, ‘I hope he will grant us five hundred Dirhams. Two hundred for clothes, two hundred to pay the debts and one hundred for expenses. We need this much very badly.’ I then said to myself, ‘I hope he will grant me three hundred Dirhams, one hundred to buy a donkey, one hundred for expenses and one hundred for clothes and I will go to the mountains.’

“The narrator has said that when we arrived at the door a slave came out and said, ‘Ali ibn Ibrahim and his son Muhammad, please come inside.' When we were in his (the Imam's) presence we said the greetings of peace. He (the Imam) said to my father. 'O Ali, what held you back from coming to us until now?' He said, 'My master, I felt shy to come to you in this condition.' When we left him his slave came to us and gave a bag of money to my father saying, 'This is five hundred Dirhams. Two hundred for clothes, two hundred to pay debts and one hundred for expenses.' He gave me a bag and said, 'This is three hundred Dirhams, one hundred for the donkey, one hundred for clothes and one hundred for expenses. Do not go to the mountains. Go to Sawra.' He then went to Sawra' and married a woman and now his income from properties is a thousand Dinar. Despite this he belongs to the waqifi sect in matters of beliefs. Muhammad ibn Ibrahim has said that I said to him, 'Woe is you! What more clear proof do you want to believe in him as your Imam?' He said, 'This (belief in Waqifi sect) is a habit that has been with us (and it does not go away).'"

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from abu Ali Muhammad ibn Ali ibn Ibrahim who has said that narrated to me Ahmad ibn al-Harith al-Qazwini who has said the following:

"I was with my father in the city of Surra man Ra'a. My father was a veterinarian at the animal farm of abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Al-Musta'in (the 'Abbassid ruler) had a mule the like of which in beauty and size has not been seen. No one could touch that mule to ride, saddle or harness. He had called all the trainers and they had failed to ready the mule for riding. Certain people close to him had said, 'O Amir al-Mu'minin, why do you not ask al-Hassan, ibn al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who may either ready it for riding or get killed in which case it will be a great relief for you?' The narrator has said that he sent for abu Muhammad, al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and my father went with him (the Imam). My father has said, 'When abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, entered the compound of the Sultan, he, recipient of divine supreme covenant, looked at the mule that was standing in the facility. He went forward and placed his hand over the rear of the mule. I (the narrator) then saw the mule perspire and perspiration began to flow down. Then he, recipient of divine supreme covenant, went to al-Musta'in. He offered him greeting of peace and received welcome. The Sultan asked him to sit just next to him and asked abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to harness the mule (that has become obstinate).' Abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to my father, 'Young man harness the mule.' Al-Musta'in said, '(please) you harness the mule.' The Imam took off his gown, harnessed the mule and returned back to his place. Al-Musta'in asked him to saddle the mule but he said to my father, 'Young man, saddle the mule.' Al-Musta'in asked him (the Imam) to saddle the mule. He stood again, saddled the mule and returned back to his place and said, 'Do you want that I ride it also?' He said, 'Yes, please do so.' He (the Imam) rode the mule without any resistance. The mule ran in the facility and then he took the mule for an amble, which the mule performed in the best way that can be. He came back and dismounted. Al-Musta'in said to him, 'O abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, how was the mule?' He said, 'O Amir al-Mu'minin, I had not seen like it before in beauty and skill. Only Amir al-Mu'minin deserves to have such a mule.'

"I requested abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, for something that I needed. He scratched the earth with his whip. Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from abu 'Abd Allah ibn Salih from his father from abu Ali al-Mutahhar the following:

"Once He (abu Ali al-Mutahhar) wrote to him (abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in the year of Qadisiyya, the year of draught that forced people to return home without performing Hajj for fear of thirst. He wrote back in reply, 'Continue your journey and you will have no fear by the will of Allah.' They continued their journey to Hajj safely and all thanks belong to Allah, Lord of the worlds.'"

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Ali ibn al-Hassan ibn al-Fadl al-Yamani who has said the following:

"Al-Ja'fari from the family of Ja'far (al-Tayyar) was attacked by such a large number of people that it seemed impossible for them to defend themselves. He wrote to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about his endangered condition. He (abu Muhammad), recipient of divine supreme covenant, wrote back to him in reply, 'You will be adequately defended by the will of Allah, the Most High. He came out with just a few people to defend themselves against the attackers who were in excess of twenty thousand while on his side there were fewer than a thousand but the attackers all vanished.'"

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Isma'il al-'Alawi who has said the following:

"Abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was imprisoned under the supervision of Ali ibn Narmasha who was extremely hostile toward the descendents of abu Talib, peace be upon him. He was told to treat him (abu Muhammad), recipient of divine supreme covenant, as he (the guard) wished. He stayed with him only for a day and the guard who was hostile toward him, turned into such a submissive person before him that he could not even dare to look up into his face out of glorification and reverence. He (abu Muhammad), recipient of divine supreme covenant, came out from his prison and he (the guard) had found the highest degree of understanding of him and spoke the best words about him."

Ali ibn Muhammad and Muhammad ibn abu 'Abd Allah have narrated from Ishaq ibn Muhammad al-Nakha'i who has said that narrated to me Sufyan ibn Muhammad al-Duba'i who has said the following:

"Once I wrote to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and asked him about the meaning of the word al-Walija (relying) in the words of Allah, the Most High: 'Do you think that Allah will not make any distinction between those of you who have fought for His cause and have relied on no one other than Allah, His Messenger, and the believers, and other people?' (9:16) I said to myself, not in the letter, 'To whom does the "believers" refer in this verse?' The answer came as this: 'Walija refers to a person who is appointed in place of the Leader with Divine Authority. You have said to yourself, 'To whom does the "believers" refer in this verse?' They are the 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority) who ask Allah to grant security to the people and He grants their request.'"

Ishaq has said that abu Hashim al-Ja'fari has said the following:

"Once I complained to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the constraining cell of the prison and the weight of the shackles on me. He wrote back in reply to me, 'Today you will pray your noontime prayer in your own home.' I then was released that day and prayed the noontime prayer in my own home as he had said. I was under financial constraints and I decided to ask him for a certain amount of Dinars in writing but I felt shy. When I was going to my home he sent me a hundred Dinars and had written to me this: 'If you need anything do not feel shy or embarrassed. Ask and you will find it as you wanted, by the will of Allah.'"

Ishaq has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad al-Aqra' who has said that narrated to me abu Hamza, Nasir al-Khadim the following:

"I had heard many times that abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, spoke to each of his Roman, Turkish and Saqaliba slaves in their own languages. It was astonishing to me and I would think that he was born in al-Madina and had not been exposed to anyone until abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away and no one had seen him. How is it that he speaks such languages? I was talking to myself when he came to me and said, 'Allah, the Most High, the Most Holy, grants distinction to Leaders with Divine Authority over the other creatures in all matters. He gives them distinction in the matters of languages, knowledge of the genealogical issues, of the duration of lives and events. Without such distinctions there will be no difference between Leaders with Divine Authority and others.'"

Ishaq has narrated from al-Aqra' who has said the following:

"Once I wrote to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asking him if 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority) experience wet dreams? I said to myself after the letter had gone, 'Wet dream is something Satanic, and Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, has protected those whom He has given authority against such things.' The answer came. 'The conditions of 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority) when asleep are the same as when they are awake. Sleep does not change anything in them. Allah has given protection to those whom He has given authority from Satanic encounters as you spoke to yourself.'"

You also wanted to ask about alternating fever but you forgot to do so. Ishaq has said that narrated to him ’Isma‘il ibn Muhammad ibn Ali ibn ’Isma‘il ibn Ali ibn ‘Abd Allah ibn ‘Abbass ibn ‘Abd al-Muttalib who has said the following:

“Once I sat on the side of the road waiting for abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to pass by so that I could present before him my complaint against a need. When he was passing by I presented my complaint before him and swore that I did not have even a Dirham, and nothing for lunch or dinner. The narrator has said that the Imam said, ‘You falsely swore by Allah. You have buried two hundred Dinars. My words are not to deny you any grants. Young man, give him whatever is with you. His servant gave me one hundred Dinars. He then turned to me and said, ‘You will be deprived of it in your worst days.’ He meant those Dinars that I had buried for a difficult day. What he said was true. I had buried two hundred Dinars thinking that they would only be used in a very difficult day. When I faced such a difficult day and all the ways to find a living were closed I went to take out the two hundred Dinars but soon I found that there was not even a single Dinar left. In fact, my son had learned about where the Dinars were buried and he had taken them and had run away. I could not benefit from any of those Dinars.’”

Ishaq has said that narrated to me Ali ibn Zayd ibn Ali ibn al-Husayn ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the following:

“I had a horse that I liked very much and I admired it often in social gatherings. One day I went to see abu Muhammad recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he said, ‘How is your horse doing?’ I said, ‘I still have it and it is in front of your door. I just dismounted it.’ He said, ‘Change it before this evening if you can and if you find a buyer do not delay.’ Someone came in and our conversation discontinued. I then left anxiously for home and informed my brother about it and he said, ‘I do not know what to say about it.’ I felt covetous about it and procrastinated in offering for sale until it was evening. We had just prayed the late evening prayer when the horse trainer came in saying, ‘My master your horse has died.’ I felt sad and realized that this was what abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, meant. After several days I went to see abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and I was saying to myself, ‘I wish he would replace my horse with another one. It was his words that made me so sad.’ When I sat down he said, ‘Yes, we will replace your horse. Young man, give to him my dark brown bay (type of horse) which is better than his horse to ride and will live longer.’”

Ishaq has said that Muhammad ibn al-Hassan Shammun has said that Ahmad ibn

Muhammad narrated to me the following:

"Once I wrote to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, when al-Muhtadi (an 'Abbassid ruler) had begun to kill the Turkish Mawali (slave or supporters), 'My master, we thank Allah for diverting his (al-Muhtadi's) attention from us. I have heard that he had threatened you and has said, "By Allah, I will wipe them out from the face of the earth."

"Abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, sent in response with his own signature. 'This will be shortening his life very much. Count five days from today. On the sixth day he will be killed, humiliated, with insults and suffering that he will go through.' It then happened exactly as he had said.'"

Ishaq has said that Muhammad ibn al-Hassan Shammun narrated to me the following:

One of my eyes had gone and the other was about to go. He wrote back to me in reply, 'Allah has kept your eye for you.' My painful eye then recovered. He had signed at the end with these words, 'May Allah grant you good rewards and best recompense.' I felt sad and I did not know anyone just passed away from my family. After a few days I received information of the death of my son, Tayyib. I then realized what his condolences to me were for."

Ishaq has said that narrated to me 'Umar ibn Muslim the following:

"We were in the city of Surra man Ra'a when a man, called Sayf ibn al-Layth, from Egypt came with a complaint to al-Muhtadi against Shafi' al-Khadim who had usurped his property and expelled him from the city. We hinted to him to write to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and request him to facilitate his affairs. Abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, wrote back to him, 'You will be fine. Your property will be given back to you. Do not forward your complaints to Sultan. Go and meet the agent (of Shafi' al-Khadim) who has your property and frighten him with the power of the Greatest Sultan, Allah, Lord of the worlds.' He met the agent. The agent who had the property with him said, 'It was written to me at the time of your leaving Egypt to find you and return your property to you. He returned the property by the order of the judge, ibn abu al-Shawarib, in the presence of witnesses and he did not have to present his complaints to al-Muhtadi. He procured his property and nothing was heard about him thereafter."

"The narrator has said that it was Layth who said the following also.

"When I left Egypt one of my sons was ill and my elder son was the executor of my will and the supervisor over my family in case I died. I wrote to abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, requesting him to pray for my son who was ill. He wrote back to me in reply, 'Your son has recovered but your elder son, the executor of your will and the supervisor over your family has died. Pay thanks to Allah, do not be impatient lest your rewards will be withheld.' The news came to me that my son who was ill has recovered and my elder son died on the day I received the reply letter from abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant."

Ishaq has said that narrated to me Yahya ibn al-Qushayri from the town called Qira, the following:

"Abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had an agent who lived in a room in the house with the white servant of the Imam. The agent invited the servant to have evil activities with him and the servant refused to do so unless he brought him wine. The agent managed to find wine and took it to him. There were three closed doors between them and the quarters of the Imam. The narrator has said that the agent narrated to me that I was awake and I saw the doors open until I saw the Imam in person standing at the door. He then said, 'O you, have fear of Allah and be pious before Him. In the morning he ordered the servant sold and discharged me from the job.'"

Ishaq has said that narrated to me Muhammad ibn al-Rabi' al-Sa'i the following:

"I debated a man who believed in dualism in Ahwaz, then I went to Surra man Ra'a. However, his words were stuck in my heart. I was sitting in front of the door of Ahmad al-Khadib when I saw abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, coming from the house for public gathering. It was the house wherein on a certain day the Sultan allowed the common people to visit him. The Imam looked at me and made a gesture with his forefinger, saying, 'One, single and only One.' I fainted and fell on my face.'"

Ishaq has narrated from abu Hashim al-Ja'fari who has said the following:

"One day I went to see abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and I wanted him to give me a certain amount of silver so I could make a ring out of it and keep it for blessing. I sat down but forgot to ask what I had come for. When I was leaving and said farewell to him he threw a ring to me and said, 'You wanted silver and we could give you a ring. You profited the gems and the cost of the goldsmith works. May Allah grant you blessings, O abu Hashim.' I then said, 'I testify that you are the Wali (Leader with Divine Authority) from Allah, and my Imam through my obedience to whom I follow the religion of Allah.' He then said, 'May Allah grant you forgiveness, O abu Hashim.'"

"Oftentimes I went to see abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. When in his presence I felt thirsty but I, due to shyness and respect for him, could not ask for water but he would call the people of his household to bring water for me. Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Isma'il ibn Ibrahim ibn Musa ibn Ja'far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, from Ali ibn 'Abd al-Ghaffar who has said the following:

"When abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was imprisoned in the control of Salih ibn Wasif, the 'Abbassids, Salih ibn Ali and others who were not Shi'a all came to Salih ibn Wasif asking him to exert more pressure on abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Salih told them, 'What should I do? I managed to find two people who were of the harshest manners and appointed them to guard him. They both turned into most assiduous worshippers in prayers and fasting. When I asked them about their behaviors they replied, ‘What can you say about a man who fasts every day, worships the whole night and does not speak or busy himself with anything? When we look at him a feeling of trembling and shivering overtakes us and we lose control over our own selves.’ When they heard this they returned in despair.’”

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from al-Hassan ibn al-Husayn who both have said that narrated to us Muhammad ibn al-Hassan al-Makfuf that certain persons of our people have narrated from a Christian cupping expert who served in the army the following:

“One day at noontime abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, sent for me at the time of noon prayer and told me to perform cupping on this vein. He showed me a vein that was not known to me as one of the veins used for cupping. I thought to myself, ‘I have not seen anything stranger than this: To perform cupping at noontime which is not the time for it and on a vein that I do not know.’ He then told me, ‘Wait in the house.’ When it was evening he called me and said, ‘Open the vein.’ I opened the vein. He said, ‘Hold it’ I held the vein and stopped the blood. He then told me to remain in the house. At midnight he called me and said to open the vein. It increased my astonishment, but I did not want to ask him. I opened the vein and white blood like salt came out. He has said that he (the Imam) told me to stop it and I stopped it. He has said that he (the Imam) told me to remain in the house. In the morning he (the Imam) ordered his clerk to pay me three Dinars. I took the Dinars and left. I then went to see Bakhtishu‘ who was a Christian and told him the whole story. The narrator has said that he (Bakhtishu‘) said, ‘By Allah, I do not understand what you say and I do not know anything about medicine. I have not read any such thing in the books. I do not know anyone more knowledgeable in Christianity than so and so, a Persian man. Go to him.’ He has said that I then hired a boat and went to Basra then to Ahwaz and to Persia to the man I was looking for. I explained to him the story. He has said, ‘He asked me to give him time.’ I waited for few days and then went to him for an answer. He said, ‘What you say this man did is something that Jesus had done only once in his life.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Ishaq who has said the following:

"Once I went to see abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and asked him to write for me few lines so that whenever I see his handwriting I can recognize it. The Imam said, 'Yes,' and then said, 'O Ahmad the writing with a fine pen and with thick pen will look different to you. Do not have doubts He then asked for a pen and inkpot and began writing. He made the pen to have ink from the bottom of the inkpot. I thought to myself when he was writing, 'I will request him to gift me the pen with which he is writing.' When he finished writing he turned to me and began speaking while he was wiping the pen with the handkerchief of the inkpot for a while and then said, 'Here, O Ahmad it is for you.' He gave it to me. I then said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, I feel sad about something that is in my soul. I wanted to ask your father about it but I did not have the chance.' He asked, 'What is it, O Ahmad?' I said, 'My master, it is narrated to us from your holy ancestors that the prophets sleep on their backs, the true believers sleep on their right side, the hypocrites sleep on their left side and Satans sleep on their belly.' He, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'That is how it is.' I then said, 'My master I struggle to sleep on my right side but I cannot do so and I cannot go to sleep on my right side.' He remained calm for a while and then said, 'O Ahmad, come close to me.' I went close to him and he said, 'Place your hand under your clothes.' I did so. He then took his hand from under his clothes and placed under my clothes. He wiped with his right hand my left side and with his left hand my right side three times. Ahmad has said that ever since I have not been able to sleep on my left side and cannot go to sleep on my left side.'"

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Ash'ari has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from Ahmad ibn Muhammad who has said the following:

"When al-Zabayri was killed this letter came from abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Such as this is the retribution for those who lie against Allah in the matters of those who possess Authority from Him. He thought that he would kill me and I would leave no children behind. How has he then experienced the power of Allah?' A child was born to him, whom he named M.H.M.D, in the year two hundred fifty-six A.H.'"

Ali ibn Muhammad has said that narrated to me Muhammad and al-Hassan sons of Ali ibn Ibrahim in the year two hundred seventy nine saying that narrated to them Muhammad ibn Ali ibn 'Abd al-Rahman al-'Abdi of 'Abd Qays from Daw' ibn Ali al-'Ijli from a man from Persia, whose name he mentioned, who has said the following:

"Once I went to the city of Surra man Ra'a and kept myself at the door of abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He called me inside without any request from me. When I went inside and offered greeting of peace, he said to me, 'How are you, O father of so and so?' Then he told me, 'Sit down O so and so.' He then asked me about a group of men and ladies from my family. He then said to me, 'What brings you here?' I said, 'It is the wish to serve you.'

"The narrator has said that he said, 'Alright, stay here.' I then remained in the house with the servants. Then I would do the purchases for them from the market. I could go in his presence without first requesting permission when he was present in the men's quarters. One day I went to him when he was in the men's quarters. I heard the sound of movement in the house and he said, 'Do not move from your place.' I could not dare to go out or inside. Then a female servant came out to me who had something with her, which was covered. He then called me inside and I went inside. He called the female servant and she came back. He told her to uncover what she had with her. She uncovered the very handsome face of a white baby boy. And she uncovered his chest. A line of hairs had grown from his neck down to his bellybutton, which seemed to be greenish in color and not totally black. He said, 'This is your master (Leader with Divine Authority).' He then ordered her to take the baby inside and after that I could not see him until abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away."

"Daw' ibn Ali has said, 'I asked the man from Persia, 'How old do you think he was?' He said, 'Two years old.' Al-'Abdi has said, 'I asked Daw', 'How old do you think he was?' He said, 'Fourteen years old.' Abu Ali and abu 'Abd Allah has said that we think he is twenty one years old.'"

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from more then one person of our people of Qumm from Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-'Amiri from abu Sa'id Ghanim al-Hindi who has said the following:

"I lived in interior Kashmir, India. My friends would sit on chairs on the right and left of the King. They were forty people and all of them read the four books, Torah, Gospel, Psalms and the books of Abraham. We judged among the people, provided them understanding of their religion and issued legal opinions for them in the lawful and unlawful matters. All people sought assistance from us including their King. Once we discussed about the Messenger of Allah and said that this prophet who is mentioned in the books has remained unidentified to us. We must investigate about him and lead a fact-finding task in his affairs. We agreed that I should go out and lead the fact-finding task. I then set out with a large amount of money and journeyed for twelve months until I reached near Kabul. Turkish bandits robbed and wounded me seriously. They sent me to Kabul where their King saved my life. When he learned about my case, he sent me to Balkh which was under the control of Dawud ibn al-'Abbass ibn abu al-Aswad. Information had reached him that I have come out of India in search of religion and that I have learned Persian and have debated the scholars of law and theology. Dawud ibn al-'Abbass summoned me to his presence. He gathered the scholars of law against me. They debated me. I then informed them that I have come in search of the prophet about whom we have learned in the books.

"He asked, 'Who is he and what is his name?' I said, 'His name is Muhammad.' They said, 'You are searching for our prophet.' I asked them about his laws and they provided me information. I said, 'I know that Muhammad is the prophet but I do not know the one you describe to me. Is he the one I search for or not? You should show where he is so I can go and find out whether the signs that I have are found in him or not. If he is the one I am looking for I will accept his religion.'

"They said, 'He has passed away.' I asked them, 'Who is the executor of his will and his successor?' They said, 'Abu Bakr was his successor.' I asked them, 'Tell me about his name. This is (Abu Bakr) his Kunya?' They said, 'It is 'Abd Allah ibn 'Uthman.' They ascribed him to Quraysh. I then asked them to tell me about the genealogy of your prophet, Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. They informed me of his genealogy. I said, 'This is not the person I am looking for. The one I am searching for is the one whose successor is his brother in religion and his cousin genealogically, the husband of his daughter and the father of his sons. This prophet will have no children on earth except the sons of this man who is his successor.'

"He has said that they attacked me and said, 'O commander, this man has come out a polytheist and has entered disbelief. It is lawful to tip out his blood.' I said to them, 'O people, I already have a religion and I strongly believe in it. I do not want to give it up until I find a religion stronger than this. I have found the description of this man in the books that Allah has revealed to His prophets. I came out of my country, India, leaving behind all the honor and respect that I had only to find him. When I examined your prophet the way you described him to me I found out that it did not match the description of the Prophet mentioned in the books. So leave me alone.'

"The agent (of the government) sent for a man called al-Husayn ibn Eshkib and said to him, 'Debate this Indian man.' He said, 'May Allah grant you well-being. There are the scholars of the law and the other scholars. They know better how to debate him.' He said to him, 'Debate him as I say, and you can meet privately and be kind to him.' Al-Husayn ibn Eshkib said to me after our consultations, 'The prophet that you are looking for is the one these people have described for you but their description of his successor is not the true describtion. This prophet is Muhammad ibn 'Abd Allah ibn 'Abd al-Muttalib. His successor is Ali ibn abu Talib, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ibn 'Abd al-Muttalib. He is the husband of Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, daughter of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and the father of al-Hassan and al-Husayn, the grandsons of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'

"Ghanim abu Sa'id has said that I then said, 'Allahu Akbar, (Allah is great). This is the one I have been looking for.' I then returned to Dawud ibn al-'Abbass and said to him, 'O commander, I have found what I was searching for. I testify that no one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed besides Allah and I testify that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah.'

"The narrator has said that he treated and helped me with kindness and asked al-Husayn to look after me. Thereafter I went to him until we were acquainted properly and he taught me understanding of the law of the matters that I needed such as prayer, fasting and the obligations.

"I (the narrator) then said to him, 'We read in our books that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is the last of the prophets and there will be no other prophets after him. The task (Leadership with Divine Authority) after him will be with the executor of his will, his successor and heir. Thereafter it will be with the executor of the will of the preceding one and so on in their descendents until the end of the world. Who is the executor of the will of the executor of the will of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant?' He said, 'They are al-Hassan then al-Husayn, recipients of divine supreme covenant, the grandsons of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant.' He then continued speaking of the executors of the will of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, until the Sahib al-Zaman (the one who possesses Divine Authority today). Then he explained to me what had happened (with 'A'immah, the Leaders with Divine Authority). Thereafter I had no other goals but to search for the Holy Location. He ('Amiri) has said that he came to us in Qum. He sat with our people in the year two hundred sixty-four A.H. He then left with them and arrived in Baghdad with his friend from al-Sind who had accompanied him in religion. 'Amiri has said that Ghanim said to me, 'I disliked certain things about my companion and I departed him and went out to al-'Abbassia and prepared myself for prayer. I began the prayer but I was anxious and thinking about my goal. At this time someone came to me and called me with my Indian name. I replied, 'Yes, it is I.' He said, 'Your master is calling you.' I went with him and he walked from this to that street until he came to a house and a garden and I saw him, recipient of divine supreme covenant, sitting. He said, 'Welcome, O so and so,' in Indian language. 'How are you? How was so and so,' until he mentioned all the forty people (mentioned in the beginning of the Hadith). He then asked me about every one of them. Then he told all that had happened among us, all in Indian language. Then he asked, 'did you want to perform Hajj with people of Qum?' I said, 'Yes, my master.' He then said, 'Do not go to Hajj with them this year. Go back and perform Hajj in future.' He then gave me a bag of money that was in front of him. He said to me, 'Spend it for your needs and do not go to Baghdad to so and so.' He mentioned his (so and so's) name and said, 'Do not tell him anything.'

"'Amiri has said that he came to us at Qum. He then informed us of the triumph and that our people had returned from al-'Aqaba. Ghanim went to Khurasan. Next year he went for Hajj and sent us souvenirs from Khurasan. He lived there for some time and then he died. May Allah grant him blessings."

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Sa'id ibn 'Abd Allah who has said the following:

"Al-Hassan ibn al-Nadr and abu Sidam and a group of people, after abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had passed away spoke about the property (of religious dues) in their possession and how to find out (who should they give it to). Once al-Hassan ibn al-Nadr came to abu Sidam and said, 'I want to go for Hajj this year.' Abu Sidam said, 'Postpone it this year.' Al-Hassan ibn al-Nadr said, 'I experience nightmares in my sleep. I must go this year for Hajj.' He prepared his will and appointed Ahmad ibn Ya'li ibn Hammad as the executor of his will. He said in his will to pay a certain amount of money to the Holy Location with his own hand into his (Imam's) own hand when he might appear in public. The narrator has said that al-Hassan has said, 'When I arrived in Baghdad I rented a house and a certain person of the representatives came to me with clothes and Dinars and left them with me. I asked him, 'What is all this?' He said, 'It is, as you know, what it is.' Others also came to me with such properties until the house was filled up.

Then Ahmad ibn Ishaq came with all that was with him. I was astonished and remained thinking. A letter came to me from the man, recipient of divine supreme covenant, that said, ‘When it will become such and such hours of the day then take all (money and property) with you.’ I then left with what was with me and on the way there was a robber that looted the travelers with his sixty men thieves. I passed him safely by the help of Allah. I arrived at the army camp and stopped there. A letter came that told me to take everything along with me. I loaded everything in the carriages of the porters and when I reach the corridor a black man was standing there. He asked, ‘Are you al-Hassan ibn al-Nadr?’ I said, ‘Yes, I am he.’ He then said, ‘Enter.’ I then entered the house and then a room and unloaded the goods from the carriages of the porters therein. In a corner of the room there was a large quantity of bread. He gave two loaves to each of the porters and told them to leave. Then I found out that there was a room behind the curtain and someone called me therefrom: ‘O al-Hassan ibn al-Nadr, thank Allah for the favor that He has done to you and do not complain. Satan loves that you doubt. He gave me two pieces of cloth and said, ‘Take these; you will soon need them.’ I took them and left.’

“Sa‘d has said, ‘Al-Hassan ibn Nadr came back, died in the month of Ramadan and was shrouded in the pieces of cloth the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had given to him.’”

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Muhammad ibn Hamawayh al-Suwaydawiy from Muhammad ibn Ibrahim ibn Mahziyar who has said the following:

“At the time abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away I had doubts. Large quantities of commodities (of religious dues) were accumulated with my father. He loaded them in a boat and he also embarked. I was with him to say farewell to him. He began to feel severe fever and asked me to take him back home; he said, ‘It is death.’ He then said to me, ‘Be pious before Allah about these commodities.’ In his will he appointed me to watch over the commodities. He then died. I then said to myself, ‘My father was not such a person to make a will for an incorrect cause. I must take these commodities to Iraq and rent an accommodation on the bank of the river and I will not tell anyone of anything with me. If the matter becomes clear to me as it was at the time of abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, I will deal accordingly, otherwise, throw them into the river.’

“I then went to Iraq, rented a place on the bank of the river and stayed there for several days. Then I received a letter with a messenger. The letter said, ‘O Muhammad, there is so and so things inside so and so thing with you. It explained to me everything in detail even about the things of which I had no knowledge. I then submitted everything to the messenger and remained there for several more days. No one asked who I was. I felt depressed and sad. Then a letter came that said, ‘We have appointed you in the place of your father. Therefore be thankful to Allah.’”

Muhammad ibn abu ‘Abd Allah has narrated from abu ‘Abd Allah al-Nisa’iy who has said the following:

“I delivered certain items from al-Marzabani al-Harithi to the Holy Location (the house where Imam al-Hassan ibn Ali al-Hadi, recipient of divine supreme covenant, lived). One item was a gold bracelet. Other items were accepted but the bracelet was returned. I was ordered to break it. When I did so inside there were certain amounts of iron, brass and zinc. I took them out and sent the gold back. It was accepted."

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from al-Fadl al-Khazzaz al-Mada'ini, the slave of Khadija daughter of Muhammad, abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Certain people of the city of al-Madina belonged to al-Talibiyin group who believed in the truth (about Ahl al-Bayt). They would receive their financial grants regularly on time. When abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away a few of them disregarded the belief that abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has left behind a son. The financial grants thereafter came only to those who still believed in the son of abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and stopped coming to the others. They are mentioned no more along with those who are mentioned. All praise belongs to Allah, Lord of the worlds."

Ali ibn Muhammad has said the following:

"A man from Bedouins sent a certain quantity of commodity (as religious dues) but it was returned to him and he was told, 'Pay first the rights of the children of your uncle. It is four hundred Dirhams.' The property of the children of his uncle was in his possession in a sharing manner and he had withheld their property. When he did the accounting, their right in that shared property was four hundred dirhams. He paid that amount and sent the rest to the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and it was accepted."

Al-Qasim ibn al-'Ala' has said the following:

"Several boys were born to me and each time I would write (to the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and request for prayer. Nothing in response had ever been written to me about them. Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from 'Abd Allah ibn Salih who has said the following:

"I lived in Baghdad and during one year I requested permission (from the twelfth Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant) to travel out but permission was not granted. I waited for twenty-two days and the caravan had already left for al-Nahrawan, then I was granted permission. It was a Wednesday and I was told to leave. I then left but I did not have any hope of reaching the caravan. I arrived at al-Nahrawan and the caravan was still there. I then had enough time to feed my camels only and then the caravan left. I journeyed with the caravan and he, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had prayed for my safety. I did not face any difficulties. All praise belongs to Allah."

Ali has narrated from Ali ibn al-Husayn al-Yamani who has said the following:

"I lived in Baghdad. Once the caravan for the people of Yemen was about to leave, I also decided to leave with them. I then wrote to him (the twelfth Imam), recipient of divine supreme covenant, requesting his permission. The response came, 'Do not leave with them. There is nothing good for you in leaving with them. Stay in al-Kufa.'

"The narrator has said, 'I stayed in al-Kufa and the caravan left but the tribe of Hanzala attacked and looted them. I then wrote for permission to leave by ships on water. Permission was denied. I then found out that of the ships that had traveled that year, none reached the destination safely. Indian groups called al-Bawarij had looted the ships. I then visited the army camp. Near sunset I went to the door (of the shrine of the two Imam) quietly. I did not speak to anyone nor did I introduce myself to anyone. I was praying in the mosque after offering my greeting of peace (to the tenth and eleventh Imam). A servant came and said, 'Rise up and come with me.' I asked him, 'Where should we go?' He said, 'We will go home.' I then asked, 'Do you know who I am? Perhaps you are sent for someone else.' He said, 'I have been sent for you only. You are Ali ibn al-Husayn, the messenger of Ja'far ibn Ibrahim.' He took me to the house of al-Husayn ibn Ahmad. He then spoke to him secretly and I did not hear what they spoke about. Everything that I needed was brought for me. I stayed with him for three days. I asked his permission to offer my greetings of peace from inside the house. He granted me permission and I offered my greetings of peace during the night.'"

Al-Hassan ibn al-Fadl ibn Yazid al-Yamani has said the following:

"My father wrote (to the sacred location) in his own handwriting and he received a response. I then wrote in my own handwriting. I also received a response. One of our Fuqaha' (scholar of law) wrote in his own handwriting but he did not receive any response. We then began to think about it and we found out that the man had changed his belief into that of the Qirmati sect.

"Al-Hassan ibn al-Fadl has said, 'I visited (the holy places in Iraq) and arrived at Tus. I decided not to leave until I experienced evidence in support of my belief and success in achieving my needs even if it took my staying until I received confirmation.' He has said, 'In the meantime I felt depressed because of fear that I might lose the opportunity to perform Hajj.' He has said, 'One day I went to see Muhammad ibn Ahmad for help.' He said to me, 'Go to so and so mosque. A man will meet you there.' I then went to the mosque and a man came to me. He looked at me and laughed and said, 'Do not be sad and depressed. You will perform Hajj this year and will return back to your wife and children safely.'

"The narrator has said, 'I gained confidence and my heart felt at peace. I say that is how my wish came true. All praise belongs to Allah. I then went to the army camp (city of Surra man Ra'a) and a bag of money with few Dinars and a piece of cloth were sent to me (from the Imam's office). I felt depressed and said to myself, 'Is this how these people treat me and this is how much my reward is with them?' I used ignorance and returned the gift and wrote a letter. The person who brought them to me did not explain or say anything. I then felt very strongly regretful and said to myself, 'I have become ungrateful to my master in rejecting his gift.' I wrote a letter and begged for forgiveness of my misbehavior. I confessed my sins and begged for pardon. I sent the letter and remained rubbing my hands against each other (in despair). In such condition I was thinking and saying to myself, 'If the money is sent to me I will not open the bag and will not say anything about it. I will take it to my father. He knows more than me and will do whatever he will like. At that time a letter had come to the messenger who had brought the bag of money. He was told, 'What you did was wrong. You did not inform the man that we sent gifts to our friends and followers and sometimes they ask us for such gifts for blessings.' A letter came to me also and it said, 'You made a mistake in rejecting the gift but when you asked Allah to forgive you, Allah will forgive you. It was your intention not to open the gift or spend it; we have spent it on your behalf. However, you must take the cloth so you can use it for Ehram (during performing certain acts of Hajj).'

"The narrator has said, 'I wrote him about two issues and I wanted to write about a third issue but I did not do so for fear that he, recipient of divine supreme covenant, might not like it.' The answer for the two issues came back and the meaning of the third one was also explained. All praise belongs to Allah.

"Once I made a contract with Ja'far ibn Ibrahim al-Naysaburi in Naysabur to share a ride on our journey to Makka. When we arrived in Baghdad I decided to change our agreement. I then went around to find another person for sharing a ride. Ibn al-Wajna' came to see me after I had already proposed to him to share a ride and hiring a ride and he had expressed his dislike to my proposal. He said, 'I am looking for you and I am told (by the people of the sacred location), "He will accompany you. Treat him kindly, find for him ride sharing and hire for him a ride."'

"When my father died and the task (of working as representative of the 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority), recipients of divine supreme covenant, was left to me, with my father there were promissory notes from those who owed (religious dues). I wrote to him (the Imam) about the case. He wrote back to me, 'Demand from them and make them pay.' I rode my horse and said, 'Very nice of you people of Baghdad. You support the unjust against a lonely stranger. I am a man from the Sunni sect and he calls me a man from Qum and a Rafidi so that he can destroy my rights.'

"The narrator has said that people then turned against him and they wanted to enter his store. I then calmed them down. My part of the stipulation was to ask the people to leave his place.'"

Ali has narrated from a number of our people from Ahmad ibn al-Hassan and al-'Ala' ibn Rizq Allah from Badr Ghulam Ahmad ibn al-Hassan who has said the following:

"I began to live in al-Jabal (a town between Baghdad and Azarbayjan) and I did not believe in Imamat (the Divine Authority of al-Mahdi, recipient of divine supreme covenant, but I loved them (descendents of Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant). When Yazid ibn 'Abd Allah (a representative of al-Mahdi, recipient of divine supreme covenant) died he said in his will that I must deliver his Shahri Samand (famous Persian horse), sword and belt to his master (al-Mahdi), recipient of divine supreme covenant. I was afraid that if I did not give the horse to Edhkutakin (a Turkish official of 'Abbassid rulers) he might harm me. I by myself then evaluated the items at seven hundred Dinars and no one knew about it. A letter then came from Iraq that said, 'Send us our seven hundred Dinars that are with you for the Shahri (famous Persian horse), the sword and the belt.'"

Ali has narrated from the one who narrated to him the following:

"A boy was born to me. I wrote to him (al-Mahdi), recipient of divine supreme covenant, for his permission to give the baby a special bath for the ceremony on the seventh day of his birth. The answer came back and it said, 'Do not do so.' The boy died on the seventh or the eighth day. I then wrote to him about the death of the boy. He wrote back to me, 'He will be succeeded by another and another. Let his name be Ahmad and the name for the one after Ahmad will be Ja'far.' It came to be as he, recipient of divine supreme covenant, had said.

"The narrator has said, 'Once I made preparation for the journey to Hajj, said farewell to (my) people and I was about to leave. The message came to me that said, 'We do not like it but it is up to you.' I felt depressed and sad and I wrote, 'I am steadfast to obey your commands and listen to your words except that I feel sad for missing Hajj.' He then had signed (a note to me) that said, 'Do not be depressed. You will soon perform Hajj by the will of Allah.' The next year I wrote to ask his permission and the permission came. I then wrote that I had chosen Muhammad ibn al-'Abbass as a ride sharing partner and that I trusted him for his religion and safety. The message that then came said, 'Al-Asadi is a good ride sharing partner. If he will come do not choose anyone else besides him.' Al-Asadi came and I chose him as the ride sharing partner."

“When abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away a man from Egypt came to Makka with a certain amount of commodities that were due to the Holy Location (office of the Imam). People expressed different opinions on the issue. Certain persons said, ‘Abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has passed away and has left no one behind as his successor and Ja‘far is his successor.’ Others said, ‘Abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, passed away and he has left his successor behind.’ A man called abu Talib was sent to the army camp (the city of Surra man Ra’a) with a letter. He went to see Ja‘far and ask him for the evidence to prove that he is the successor of abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and Ja‘far said, ‘It is not available at this time.’ He then went to the door (of the house where al-Hassan ibn Ali al-Hadi, recipient of divine supreme covenant, lived) and gave the letter to our people. The response that came said, ‘We present our condolences to you for the death of your friend (the man from Egypt). He has died and he has a will in which he has said that the commodities must be given to the trustworthy person to deal with in a proper manner. His letter was answered.’ (When he came back to Makka it was just the way he was informed by the Holy Location (the office of the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant).”

“A man who was an informer for Ruz Hassani with another man with him once said to Ruz, ‘This man (al-Mahdi), recipient of divine supreme covenant, is out there. Money is collected for him. He has representatives in many places. They mentioned his representatives by their names in different areas. This news reached ‘Ubayd Allah ibn Sulayman, the Vizier. The Vizier decided to arrest these representatives. The Sultan said, ‘Find out. Where is this man? This is a serious matter.’ ‘Ubayd Allah ibn Sulayman then said, ‘We will arrest the representatives, the agents.’ The Sultan said, ‘No, you must send your undercover agents who should pose to them as devotees ready to pay their dues to their Imam. If they accept the funds then arrest them.’ The narrator has said that a message came out from the Holy Location (office of Imam al-Mahdi, recipient of divine supreme covenant) to inform all the representatives not to accept any dues from anyone, deny knowing anything about the Imam and say that they have no information. A man who was an undercover agent came to Muhammad ibn Ahmad whom he did not know. The undercover agent spoke to him privately and said, ‘I have certain funds with me and I want them to be delivered to the Holy Location (office of Imam al-Mahdi, recipient of divine supreme covenant).’ Muhammad said to him, ‘You have made a mistake. I do not know anything about it.’ He insisted and tried to show kindness and Muhammad denied having any knowledge of it. The spies spread to all places but the representatives would refuse to accept any funds because of the message that was delivered to them beforehand.”

Chapter One Hundred Twenty Six

The Statements and the Explicit Texts that Confirm Leadership With Divine Authority of the Twelve Imam (Leaders with Divine Authority), Recipients of Divine Supreme Covenant

H 1377, Ch. 126, h 1

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad al-Barqi from abu Hashim Dawud ibn al-Qasim al-Ja'fari from abu Ja'far al-Thani who has said the following:

"Once Amir al-Mu'minin Ali came, with al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipients of divine supreme covenant, and he was holding the hand of Salman for support. He entered the sacred Mosque (in Makka) and sat down. Then a handsome and well-dressed man came. He offered the greeting of peace to Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who answered his greetings likewise and he sat down. He then said, 'I will ask you, O Amir al-Mu'minin, three questions. If you answer them I then acknowledge that the people who have acted against you in the matters of leadership after the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, have acted against their own selves. Their actions have taken away peace from them in this world as well in the next life. Otherwise (if you cannot answer) you and those people will be the same.'

"Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'Ask whatever you like.' He said, 'Tell me about the man who sleeps. Where does his spirit go? Tell me about the man, how he remembers and forgets? Tell me about the man, how do his children become similar to the aunts and uncles?'

"Amir al-Mu'minin Ali turned to al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and said, 'O abu Muhammad, answer him.' Al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, answered his questions. The man then said, 'I testify that no one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed besides Allah and I continue to testify to this fact. I testify that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah and I continue to testify to this fact. I testify that you are the executor of the will of the Messenger of Allah and that you are the person in charge of this task (Leadership with Divine Authority) with His authorization.' He pointed out to Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant, with his hand. He then said, 'I continue to testify to this fact. I testify that you are the executor of his (Amir al-Mu'minin's will and the person in charge of this task (Leadership with Divine Authority) by His authorization after him (Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant).'

"He pointed out with his hand to al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Then he said, 'I continue to testify to this fact. I testify that al-Husayn ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will be the executor of the will of his brother and the person in charge of this task (Leadership with Divine Authority) with His authorization after him. I testify in support of Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, that he will be the person in charge of the task of al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, after him.

"I testify that Muhammad ibn Ali will be the person in charge of the task of Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, after him.

"I testify that Ja'far ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will be the person in charge of the task of Muhammad ibn Ali, recipients of divine supreme covenant.

"I testify that Musa ibn Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will be the person in charge of the task of Ja'far ibn Muhammad after him.

"I testify that Ali ibn Musa, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will be the person in charge of the task of Musa ibn Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant.

"I testify that Muhammad ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will be the person in charge of the task of Ali ibn Musa, recipient of divine supreme covenant, after him.

"I testify that Ali ibn Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will be the person in charge of the task of Muhammad ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, after him.

"I testify that al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipients of divine supreme covenant, will be the person in charge of the task of Ali ibn Muhammad, recipients of divine supreme covenant, after him.

"I testify in support of a man from the children of al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who will not be mentioned by his Kunya (father or son of so and so) or his name until he will rise with Divine Authority and power to fill the earth with justice after its being filled with injustice.

"I offer you my greeting of peace O Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and pray to Allah to grant you blessings and holiness.' He then stood up and left.

"Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'O abu Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, follow him to look where he went.' Al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, went outside to find out (and came back) and said, 'As soon as he stepped out of the Mosque I could not figure out in which direction of the earth of Allah did he disappear. Thus I have returned to Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and informed him (what I saw).' He said, 'O abu Muhammad, do you know him?' I (al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant) said, 'Allah, the Messenger of Allah and Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant, know best.' He said, 'He was al-Khidr, peace be up on him.'"

Also Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn al-Hassan al-Saffar from Ahmad ibn abu 'Abd Allah from abu Hashim a similar Hadith.

٢- و حدثَنِي محمد بْن يحْيى عنْ محمدِ بْنِ الْحسنِ الصفارِ عنْ أَحْمد بْنِ أَبِي عبْدِ اللهِ عنْ أَبِي هاشِمٍ مِثْله سواءً قَالَ محمد بْن يحْيى فَقُلْت لِمحمدِ بْنِ الْحسنِ يا أَبا جعْفَرٍ ودِدْت أَن هذَا الْخبر جاءَ مِنْ غيْرِ جِهةِ أَحْمد بْنِ أَبِي عبْدِ اللهِ قَالَ فَقَالَ لَقَدْ حدثَنِي قَبْلَ الْحيْرةِ بِعشْرِ سِنِين

"Muhammad ibn Yahya has said, 'I said to Muhammad ibn al-Hassan, 'O abu Ja'far I wish this was narrated through a chain of narrators other then Ahmad ibn 'Abd Allah.' He said, 'He, Ahmad ibn 'Abd Allah, had narrated this to me ten years before the confusion.'"

Note: Ahmad ibn abu 'Abd Allah is Ahmad ibn Khalid Barqi who is one of the trusted narrators of Hadith. He has written many books of which only "Mahasin" is available. He narrated from weak narrators also for which reason Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa sent him away from Qum. However, later they made peace and apologized. "Confusion" is a hint of his very old age or to his sending him out of Qum.

Muhammad ibn Yahya and Muhammad ibn 'Abd Allah have narrated from 'Abd Allah ibn Ja'far from al-Hassan ibn Zarif and Ali ibn Muhammad from Salih ibn abu Hammad from Bakr ibn Salih from 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Salim from abu Basir from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Once, my father said to Jabir ibn 'Abd Allah al-Ansari, 'I need your help in a certain issue. When do you think it will be convenient for you that we meet privately and I will ask you about it?' He (Jabir) said, 'Whenever you like it will be alright for me.' divine supreme covenant, said, ‘O Jabir, tell me about the tablet that you saw in the hand of my great-great-great grandmother, Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, daughter of the Messenger of Allah. Tell me of what she said to you about the tablet and the writing on it?’

“Jabir then said, ‘I ask Allah to testify (to the truth of what I experienced that day). Once I went to see your great-great-great grandmother, Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in the lifetime of the Messenger of Allah. I congratulated her for the birth of al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and I saw in her hand a green tablet that I think was made of Emerald (precious gem). I saw on it a white writing that was shining like the color of sun.

“I then said to her, ‘May Allah keep my soul and the souls of my parents in service for your cause, O daughter of the Messenger of Allah, what is this tablet?’ She said, ‘This is a tablet that Allah has given as a gift to His Messenger. In it there is the name of my father, the name of my husband, the names of my two sons and the names of the executors of the wills of my (special) descendents. My father gave it to me as a gift and glad news.’

“Jabir then said, ‘Your great-great-great grandmother, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then gave the tablet to me. I read it and made a copy of it.’ My father then said, ‘O Jabir can you show that copy (that you made from the tablet) to me?’ He said, ‘Yes, I can show it to you.’ My father went with him to his house and he brought to light a tablet of parchment. He then said, ‘O Jabir, look carefully at your writing to see how I read it for you.’ Jabir then kept looking at his handwriting while my father read and his reading was exactly letter by letter the same as what Jabir had in his copy. Jabir then said, ‘I ask Allah to testify to the truth of my words that this is what I saw was written on the tablet:

بِسْمِ اللهِ الرحْمنِ الرحِيمِ

(I begin) in the Name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.

هذَا كِتاب مِن اللهِ الْعزِيزِ الْحكِيمِ لِمحمدٍ نبِيهِ و نورِهِ و سفِيرِهِ و حِجابِهِ و دلِيلِهِ نزلَ بِهِ الروح الْأَمِين مِنْ عِنْدِ رب الْعالَمِين عظِّمْ يا محمد أَسْمائِي و اشْكُرْ نعْمائِي و لَا تجْحدْ آلَائِي إِني أَنا الله لَا إِلَه إِلا أَنا قَاصِم الْجبارِين و مدِيلُ الْمظْلُومِين و ديانُ الدينِ إِني أَنا الله لَا إِلَه إِلا أَنا فَمنْ رجا غَيْر فَضْلِي أَوْ خاف غَيْر عدْلِي عذَّبته عذَاباً لَا أُعذبه أَحداً مِن الْعالَمِين فَإِياي فَاعْبدْ و علَي فَتوكلْ إِني لَمْ أَبعثْ نبِياً فَأَكْمِلَتْ أَيامه و انْقَضتْ مدته إِلا جعلْت لَه وصِياً و إِني فَضلْتك علَى الْأَنبِياءِ و فَضلْت وصِيك علَى الْأَوْصِياءِ و أَكْرَمتك بِشِبْلَيْك و سِبْطَيْك حسنٍ و حسَيْنٍ فَجعلْت حسناً مَعْدِنَ عِلْمِي بَعْد انْقِضاءِ

This is a document from Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Wise, for Muhammad, His Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, His light, His ambassador, His barrier (Hijab) and His guide (for people). The trusted Spirit has brought it from the Lord of the worlds. O Muhammad, acknowledge the greatness of My names and pay thanks for My bounties. Do not hide My favors. I Am Allah and no one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed besides Me. I break down the transgressors and grant wealth to the oppressed. I Am the One Who has established the religion. I Am Allah. No one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed besides Me. Whoever expects to receive any distinction from someone other than Me or have fear of the justice of someone other Me I will cause him to suffer a torment the like of which I will cause no one else of the creatures of the worlds to suffer. Worship only Me and place your trust only in Me.

“I have not sent any prophet without, upon the completion of his days, appointing the executor of his will. I have given preference to you over the prophets and I have given preference to the executor of your will over the executors of the wills (of the other prophets). I have granted you honor through your two brave grandsons, al-Hassan and al-Husayn, recipients of divine supreme covenant. I have made al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to be the treasurer of My knowledge after the completion of the time of his father. I have made al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to be the keeper of My revelation Wahy (inspiration). I have granted him nobility through martyrdom and made his end triumphant. He will be the best of the martyrs and of the highest degree in the rank of the martyrs. I have kept My perfect word with him and My extremely clear authority and proof available for him. Through his descendent I will give good rewards to people or cause them to suffer torments. The first of them will be Ali (ibn al-Husayn), master of the worshippers, and the beauty of My friends of the past. Then will be his son who will be very similar to his grandfather, the praised one, Muhammad al-Baqir, the one very deeply founded in My knowledge and the source and mine of My wisdom. Those who have doubts about Ja'far will soon be destroyed. Whoever rejects him will be like one who rejects Me. The true words have already come from Me that I will dignify the position of Ja'far and will grant him joy and happiness for his followers, supporters and friends.

"After him Musa will live at the time of a blind, confusing and dark mischief. (He will live among the people) because the system of obedience to Me does not break down and my authority (proof of My existence) does not remain obscure. The thirst (for knowledge and guidance) of My friends will be quenched with sufficient measures. Whoever rejects any one of them has rejected my favors. Whoever changes my signs and verses of my book has accused Me with lies.

"Woe is to those who fabricate lies and reject (the truth) after the completion of the time of Musa, My servant, My beloved, My chosen one about Ali (al-Rida). (Ali al-Rida) who is My wali (the one who possesses Divine Authority), My supporter, the one on whom I will place the task of prophet-hood and examine how he will deal with it. An arrogant devil will murder him. He will be buried in the city built by the virtuous servant (of Allah) next to the worst of My creatures. The words of truth have already been established that I will grant him joy and happiness with the birth of his son, Muhammad, his successor and the heir of his knowledge. He is the source and fountainhead of My knowledge, the right place for My secrets and My authority over My creatures. Whoever believes in him I will make paradise his dwelling and will grant him the ability to intercede for seventy people from his family of whom everyone may have become subject to hell-fire.

"I will make the end for his son, Ali, to arrive at salvation. Ali is My wali (the one who possesses Divine Authority), My supporter, the testimony in My creatures and My trustee in My revelation. From him I will make to come out a preacher to My way and a treasure of My Knowledge, al-Hassan. I will complete it with his son (M.H.M.D.), a blessing for the worlds. One will be able to find in him the perfection of Musa (Moses), the beauty of Jesus and the patience of Ayyub. My friends in his time will become weak. Their heads will be sent as gifts like the heads of the Turks and Daylam. They will be murdered and burned. They will live in fear, frightened and fearful. The earth will be stained with their blood and wailing and lamentations will become widepread in their women. These will possess My authority and through them I will remove the blind and dark mischief. Through them I will remove uncertainties, sufferings and shackles. These are the ones upon whom the blessings and forgiveness of their Lord descend and they are the ones who provide guidance.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Hammad ibn 'Isa from Ibrahim ibn 'Umar al-Yamani from Aban ibn abu 'Ayyash from Sulaym ibn Qays and Muhammad ibn Yahya from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from ibn abu 'Umayr from 'Umar ibn 'Udhayna and Ali ibn Muhammad from Ahmad ibn Hilal from ibn abu 'Umayr from 'Umar ibn 'Udhayna from Aban ibn abu 'Ayyash from Sulaym ibn Qays who has said the following:

"I heard 'Abd Allah ibn Ja'far al-Tayyar say, 'Once al-Hassan, al-Husayn, recipients of divine supreme covenant, 'Abd Allah ibn 'Abbass, 'Umar ibn 'Umm Salama and 'Usama ibn Zayd and I were in the court of Mu'awiya. A conversation started between Mu'awiya and I. I said to Mu'awiya, 'I heard the Messenger of Allah say, "I have more authority over the believers' souls than they themselves do. Then my brother Ali ibn abu Talib, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will have more authority over the believers' souls than they themselves will have. When Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, will become a martyr al-Hassan ibn Ali will have more authority over the believers' souls than they themselves will have. Thereafter my son al-Husayn after him (al-Hassan) will have more authority over the believers' souls than they themselves will have. When he will become a martyr, his son Ali ibn al-Husayn after him (al-Husayn) will have more authority over the believers' souls than they themselves will have. O Ali, you will see him (Ali ibn al-Husayn). Thereafter his son Muhammad ibn Ali will have more authority over the believers' souls than they themselves will have. O al-Husayn, you will see him. Then the twelve will complete the number of 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority). Nine will be of the descendents of al-Husayn.'

"'Abd Allah ibn Ja'far said, 'I asked al-Hassan, al-Husayn, recipients of divine supreme covenant, 'Abd Allah, ibn 'Abbass, 'Umar ibn 'Umm Salama and 'Usama ibn Zayd to bear witness. They all bore witness for me before Mu'awiya.'

"Sulaym ibn Qays has said, 'I heard such Hadith from Salman, abu Dhar and al-Miqdad who said that they heard such Hadith from the Messenger of Allah.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid his father from 'Abd Allah ibn al-Qasim from Hanan ibn al-Sarraj from Dawud ibn Sulayman al-Kisa'i from abu al-Tufayl who has said the following:

"I was present in the funeral procession of abu Bakr the day it took place. I was also present when 'Umar took oath of allegiance and Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was sitting on the side. A young, handsome, well-dressed Jewish boy came. He was a descendent of Harun and he stood (on a place that was) above 'Umar and asked, 'O Amir al-Mu'minin, are you the most knowledgeable person in this nation in their book and the commands of their prophet?'

"The narrator has said that 'Umar kept his head down. He then said, 'I meant you.' He repeated his words. 'Umar said, 'Why is that?' He said, 'I have doubts about my religion and I have come to you for guidance.' He ('Umar) said, 'go to this young man.' He said, 'Who is this young man?' He said, 'He is Ali ibn abu Talib, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the cousin of the Messenger of Allah and he is the father of al-Hassan and al-Husayn, recipients of divine supreme covenant, the grandsons of the Messenger of Allah and he is the husband of Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, daughter of the Messenger of Allah.'

"The young Jewish man then went to Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and said, 'Are you such a person?' He said, 'Yes, I am such a person.' He said, 'I want to ask you about three and three and one.' The narrator has said that Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then smiled a different smile and said, 'O Haruni, what prevents you from saying seven?' He said, 'I ask about three. If you answer me then I will ask you about the rest. If you cannot answer then I will assume that there are no scholars among you.'

"Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'I swear you to the Lord in whom you believe, if I answer whatever you will ask, will you then leave your religion and accept our religion?' He said, 'I have come for no other reason but that.' Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'Ask your questions.' He said, 'Tell me about the first drop of blood that was spilled on earth, what drop was that? Tell me about the first fountain that gushed out of earth, which one was it? Tell me about the first thing that moved on earth, what was that?' Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, answered him. He then said, 'Tell me about the other three. Tell me about Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. How many Imam (Leaders with Divine Authority) who possess the quality of justice will be there as his successors? In which paradise will he be? Who will be with him in paradise?' He said, 'O Haruni, there will be twelve just Imam (Leader with Divine Authority) as successors of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. No one's betrayal will harm them and they will not feel frightened because of people's opposition to them. In the matters of religion they will be stronger than the firm mountains on earth. In paradise Muhammad will dwell with the twelve Imam who possess the noble quality of justice.' He then said, 'You have spoken the truth by Allah, besides whom no one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed. I find them in the book of my father Harun. He has written it in his own handwriting. My uncle Moses had dictated to him.' He then said, 'Tell me about the "one." Tell me about the executor of the will of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. For how long will he live after him? Will he die or will he be killed?' He (Ali), recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'O Haruni, he will live after him thirty years, not one day less and not one day more. Then he will be hit with an strike here, meaning over his head, and then this (beard) will be stained with this (blood from his head).'

"The Jewish man screamed loudly and broke his Kustija (a Jewish religious object) and he said, 'I testify that no one deserves to be worshipped and obeyed besides Allah Who is One and has no partner and I testify that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is His servant and His Messenger and that you are the executor of his will. You must be above all and no one must be above you. Your greatness must be acknowledged and you must not be weakened.' The narrator has said that Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then took him to his house and taught him the Divine guidance."

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn Ahmad from Muhammad ibn al-Husayn from abu Sa'id al-'Usfuriy from 'Amr ibn Thabit from abu Hamza who has said the following:

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn al-Husayn from Mas'ada ibn Ziyad from abu 'Abd Allah and Muhammad ibn al-Husayn from Ibrahim from ibn abu Yahya al-Madyani from abu Harun al-'Abdi from abu Sa'id al-Khudriy who has said the following:

"I was (in the city of al-Madina) when abu Bakr was no more and he had appointed 'Umar as his successor. Once, one of the great Jewish men of Yathrib came to 'Umar. The Jewish people in the city of al-Madina thought that he, 'Umar, was the most knowledgeable person of his time. He came to 'Umar and said, 'O 'Umar, I have come to accept Islam if you can answer what I will ask. Are you the most knowledgeable person among the companions of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in the matters of the book, the Sunnah (his traditions) and all that I want to ask from you?'

"The narrator has said that 'Umar than said to him, 'I am not the one you are looking for. However, I can guide you to the one who is the most knowledgeable person in our nation in the matters of the book, the Sunnah (traditions of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant) and all that you would like to ask.' He pointed out Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant. The Jewish man then said, 'If what you say is true then why have you taken the oath of allegiance from people? The most knowledgeable among you is that man.' 'Umar then treated him harshly. The Jewish man went to Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and said, 'Are you as such as 'Umar has said?' He (Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant) then asked, 'What has 'Umar said?' He then informed him of what 'Umar had said. The Jewish man said, 'If you are as he has said you are, I would like to ask you certain questions to know if anyone of you knows the answer so I will know that your claim is true that you are the best and the most truthful among the nations. In such case I will accept your religion, Islam.

"Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'Yes, I am as 'Umar has said I am. Ask whatever you want to ask. I will give the answer by the will of Allah.' He said, 'Tell me about three and three and one.' Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'O Jewish man, why do you not say, 'Tell me about seven?' The Jewish man then said, 'If you can tell me the answer to the three then I will ask you other questions, otherwise, I will abstain. If you provide me the answer to these seven you then are the most knowledgeable person on earth, the best of them and have more authority over the people than they themselves do.' He then said, 'Ask your questions O Jewish man.' He said, 'Tell me about the first stone that was placed on the face of earth, the first tree that was planted on earth and the first water fountain that gushed out of earth.'

"Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant, answered his questions. The Jewish man then said to him, 'Tell me how many Imam (Leaders with Divine Authority) will this nation have? Tell me about your Prophet: where will be his place in paradise and who will be with him therein?'

"Amir al-Mu'minin, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'This nation will have twelve 'A'immah. All of them will be from the descendents of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, of this nation. They will be from my descendents. The place of our Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in paradise will be the best and holiest of them in Eden. Those who will be with him therein in his dwelling will be these twelve people from his descendents. Their mother and grandmother and the mother of their mother and their descendents will live with them therein. No one else will live therein as their partner.'"

Also do not fast when you are on a journey or when you will have an illness. It is because when al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was murdered, the heavens and the earth and all the angels in them mourned and lamented before the Lord. They said, "Lord, grant us permission to destroy the creatures and purge the earth from them because of their disregard of Your reverence and their murdering Your chosen people." Allah then inspired them, "My angels, My heavens and My earth be patient and relieved." He then removed a barrier of the barriers and there appeared Muhammad and the twelve executors of his will. He held the hand of so and so (al-Qa'im, the one who will rise with Divine Authority and power) from among them. He (the Lord) said, "O My angels, My heavens and My earth through this I will grant support for this (cause of al-Husayn)." He said it three times.'"

What Applies to a Man May Apply to His Descendents Also

If a man is promised to find something with his son but it is found in his sons or grandsons then it still is the same promise.

H 1397, Ch. 127, h1

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad and Ali ibn Ibrahim from his father both from ibn Mahbub from ibn Ri'ab from abu Basir from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Allah sent revelation to 'Imran saying, 'I will grant you a perfect and holy son who can cure the blind and the lepers and bring the dead back to life by My permission and I make him a messenger to the Israelites.' 'Imran then told it all to his wife, Hanna, mother of Mary. When she conceived with the baby Mary, she believed it would be the birth of baby boy. When she gave birth to Mary she said, 'Lord, I have given birth to a girl and boys are not like girls. A girl can not be a messenger.' Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Gracious, said, 'Allah knows to whom you have given birth.' Allah, the Most High, granted Jesus to Mary. He was the boy promised to 'Imran. He promised Jesus to 'Imran. When we say something about a man from us and that thing is found in his sons or grandsons then you must not deny it.'"

Muhammad ibn 'Isma'il has narrated from al-Fadl ibn Shadhan from Hammad ibn 'Isa from Ibrahim ibn 'Umar al-Yamani from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from al-Washsha' from Ahmad ibn 'A'idh from abu Khadija who has said the following:

"I heard abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, say, 'Sometimes a man is considered as practicing justice or acting unjustly and such acts are ascribed to him even if he may not have committed them but such acts are found in his son or his grandson after him. Therefore, he, the son or grandson is the one, in reality (who has, in fact, practiced such acts).'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Zayd ibn abu al-Hassan from al-Hakam ibn abu Nu‘aym’ who has said the following:

“Once I went to see abu Ja‘far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, when he was in the city of al-Madina and I said to him, ‘I decided to make a vow and a covenant, while I was between the corner of the Ka‘ba and the place where Abraham had prayed, that when I might meet you I would not leave al-Madina until I knew with certainty that you were al-Qa’im (the one who will rise with Divine Authority and power) from the family of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’ The Imam did not say anything. I then stayed in the city of al-Madina for thirty days. One day he came face to face with me on a road. He said, ‘O al-Hakam, are you still here?’ I said, ‘Yes, I am still here. I had explained to you about my vow and commitment and you did not command me anything or prohibit from anything nor did you answer me with anything.’ The Imam then said, ‘Early tomorrow, come to my house.’ Next morning I went to see him and he said to me, ‘Ask what you need.’ I said, ‘I have a commitment of vow, of fasting and paying charity. I made a decision while I was between the corner of the Ka‘ba and the station of Abraham. Its object was that after my meeting with you I would not leave until I knew with certainty that you were al-Qa’im (the one who rises with Divine Authority and power) from the family of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, or not. If you were he I would then maintain relations with you, otherwise, I should go in the land to find how to make a living.’

“The Imam then said, ‘O Hakam, we all are al-Qa’im (the one who rises with Divine Authority and power) because of the commands of Allah.’ I then asked, ‘Are you al-Mahdi (the guide)?’ He said, ‘We all guide to Allah.’ I asked, ‘Are you the owner of the sword?’ He said, ‘We all are owners of the sword, the heirs of the sword.’ I asked, ‘Are you the one who does away with enemies of Allah, through whom honor will come to the friends of Allah and with whom the religion of Allah will stand supreme?’ The Imam said, ‘O Hakam how could I be he. I have already become forty-five years old while the master of this task will be much younger than I and much lighter for the saddle of the horse.’”

بَابُ الْفَيْءِ وَ الْأَنفَال وَ تَفْسِيرِ الْخُمُسِ وَ حُدُودِهِ وَ مَا يَجِبُ فِيهِ

Al-Kulayni, May Allah grant him blessing, has said the following:

"Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, has invented the whole world for His deputy as He said to His angels. 'When your Lord said to the angels, "I am appointing someone as my deputy on earth. . . ."' (2:30) The whole world was for Adam and after him it belonged to the good ones among his descendents and his successors. Whatever their enemies had taken away from them and came back to them through war or conquest is called "Fay'." It is the property that comes to them as a result of conquest or war. The rules for such properties in it (the Book) are as Allah, the Most High, has said: 'You must know that whatever property you may gain, one fifth belongs to Allah, the Messenger, the kindred, orphans, the needy and those who need money while on a journey . . .' (8:41)

"Such properties belong to Allah, the Messenger and the relatives of the Messenger. Such properties are called "al-Fay'" (taken back). It is the property taken back from others by force. However, whatever may come to them without the use of force and resources such as horses and man, it is called 'al-Anfal'. Such properties belong to Allah and the Messenger only and no one else will have any share in it. Others can have shares only in what is acquired through fighting. All those who take part in the struggle will have certain shares. Properties taken in such way are divided into four portions out of which one belongs to the Messenger of Allah. The portion that belongs to the Messenger of Allah is divided into six portions. Three will be for him and the other three for the orphans, the destitute and those left without means on a journey.

"However, the case of 'al-Anfal' is different. It belongs to the Messenger of Allah only. Of such properties was Fadak that belonged to the Messenger of Allah only. It is because he and Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, conquered it and no one else took part. The name "al-Fay' " therefore does not apply to it. The term 'al-Anfal' applies to it. Similar to 'al-Anfal' are such properties as the marshes, mines, oceans and the wilderness. They all belong to Imam exclusively. If people work in them by the permission of the Imam four fifths will belong to them for labor and one fifth will belong to the Imam. Such one fifth is like al-Khums. If people work in such properties without the permission of the Imam, the Imam will have all of it and no one will have anything in them.

"The same is the case if someone works, revives, improves, develops and builds on a land without the permission of the Imam. It is up to the Imam to leave it with him or take it away from him or settle it differently."

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Hammad ibn 'Isa from Ibrahim ibn 'Umar al-Yamani from Aban ibn abu 'Ayyash from Sulaym ibn Qays who has said the following:

"I heard Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, say, 'We, by Allah, are the ones to whom Allah has referred by the words Dhi al-Qurba' (relatives) and He has brought us near to Himself and His Holy Prophet saying, "Whatever Allah grants to His Messenger (out of the property) of the people of the towns, belongs to Allah, the Messenger, the Dhi al-Qurba' (relatives), the orphans, the destitute . . ." (59:7) It (Dhi al-Qurba') applies to such persons from us exclusively. In the charity no portion is appropriated to us. It is the way Allah has honored His Holy Prophet and has honored us instead of feeding us the filthy things in the hands of people.'"

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from al-Washsha' from Aban from Muhammad ibn Muslim from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following about the words of Allah, the Most High:

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'You must know that whatever property you may gain, one fifth belongs to Allah, the Messenger (of Allah), the Dhi al-Qurba' (relatives)," (8:41)

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn abu 'Umayr from Hafs ibn al-Bakhtari from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Al-Anfal is such property for the acquisition of which no camels or horses are used and no armed expeditions are undertaken. It is the property that may come as a result of negotiated settlement or certain people may give (to us) with their own hands or it may come from a barren land or from inside the valleys. Such properties belong to the Messenger of Allah and they will belong to the 'A'immah (Leaders with Divine Authority), recipients of divine supreme covenant, after the Messenger of Allah. The Imam will spend them as he may consider proper."

Ali ibn Ibrahim ibn Hashim has narrated from his father from Hammad ibn 'Isa from certain persons of our people from the virtuous servant of Allah who has said the following:

"Al-Khums (one fifth tax) is due on five categories of properties. It is due on (1) spoils of war or general net income, (2) properties acquired from diving deep waters, (3) the treasures found, (4) the mines and (5) salt mines. On each of such categories al-Khums is due. Al-Khums, such one fifth, is distributed just as Allah, the Most High, has done. The remaining four portions are distributed among those who have taken part in the actual fighting or those lending support behind the front. The one fifth is distributed in six portions as follows: One portion for Allah, one for the Messenger of Allah, one for the relatives (of the Messenger of Allah), one for the orphans, one for the destitute and one portion for those who become needy on a journey.

"Thus, the portion for Allah and the Messenger of Allah belongs to Leadership with Divine Authority after the Messenger of Allah as the portion of inheritance. He (Leader with Divine Authority) will have three portions. Two portions are inheritance and one is that which Allah has granted to him.

"Fifty percent of al-Khums (one fifth) belongs to him, the Imam (Leader with Divine Authority). The other fifty percent of al-Khums belongs to his (the Holy Prophet's) family members. One portion is for the orphans thereof, one portion for the destitute thereof, one portion for those of them who become needy while on a journey. It is distributed among them according to the rules in the Book and the Sunnah. The limit is an amount that can suffice for their expenses for a whole year. If anything is left extra it will go to the Wali, (Leader with Divine Authority). In the case of deficit the Wali is responsible for providing and paying the deficit to meet their needs.

"Wali is responsible for paying the deficit; the extra is given to him. Allah has given this one fifth exclusively to them, not to the destitute from the masses. It is also given to those of them (relatives) who become needy on a journey as a replacement for the charities due on people. It is a sign of distinction from Allah for them because of their being the relatives of the Messenger of Allah and an honor from Allah to keep them secure from the filth in the hands of people. Thus, it is for them only as sustenance to save them from humiliation and destitution. They may receive other forms of charities from each other.

"These are those for whom Allah has assigned al-Khums. They are the relatives of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, as Allah has mentioned in His words, 'Warn your close relatives.' (26:214) They are the children of 'Abd al-Muttalib themselves, male and female. No one of the families of Quraysh or the Arabs is of them. Among them or from them also is none of their slaves to have a portion in al-Khums. The charities of the masses of people are lawful for their slaves to consume. Their slaves and the masses of people are the same. One whose mother is from the family of Hashim and his father from the masses of Quraysh, the charities are lawful for such person to consume. Such person is not entitled to receive from al-Khums; Allah, the Most High has said, 'Call them sons of their own fathers.' (33:5)

"The properties of the best quality in the taxable properties are as the portion of the Imam. The female slave, the best horse, the best clothes and other items that are liked and desired for; such items are for him before the distribution and before the subtraction of al-Khums.

"He will pay and maintain with such properties, the causes where he may need to pay such as grants to people who are inclined to the system of belief and so forth. If anything is left extra then al-Khums is taken out therefrom and is distributed to the causes for which it is. If anything is left extra then it is given to the Wali. If nothing is left after the expenses then there is nothing for the Wali. Nothing from the land is for the fighters.

So also are the properties that are acquired by overwhelming (the enemy) except for what the army has physically captured.

"The Bedouins have no share in the distribution even if they take part in fighting in support of the Wali. It is because the Messenger of Allah reached a settlement with them. It said, 'They will not be exiled, and that if the Messenger of Allah will be attacked by his enemies they will come to help to fight the enemy but will have no share in the properties of the enemies confiscated.' This practice has been continuous ever since about them and others.

"The lands that were captured by the forces of the army will remain in the public domain. The developers may keep them and reach a settlement with the Wali who uses his discretion in the matter. They may find a fair and proportionate agreement on the basis of proper protection of all parties rights and interests. The apportionment may take shape in the form of a half, a one-third or two-thirds and so forth.

"The tax on whatever is harvested, after necessary deductions, will be ten percent if the plantation is irrigated by rain. It is five percent if irrigation is by mechanical means such as al-Dawaliy and al-Nawadih. Wali collects this tax and spends on the causes that Allah has described which are eight categories: (1) The needy, (2) the destitute, (3) the employees of the taxation office, (4) the people who sympathize with the faith, (5) to set free the slaves, (6) to help the bankrupt, (7) for the cause of Allah and (8) to help those who become needy on a journey.

"Each cause can receive an amount enough for its expenses and maintenance for up to one year in a reasonable manner. If anything is left extra it is for the Wali. If it is not sufficient the Wali must provide the needed funds from his resources. The ten-percent tax is divided between the Wali and his partners such as workers and supervisors of the land. They will receive their shares according to the standing agreements. The remaining will be spent on those who help him in the matters of religion of Allah and in the interest of Islam and the strengthening of the religion such as defense and so forth, in which there is general but not personal interest. It is not for his personal interests small or large.

"Besides al-Khums for Imam there is 'al-Anfal'. Al-Anfal is every kind of abandoned land whose owners are no more and all the lands that are acquired without the use of force and fighting but are achieved through settlement or the owners may have given them to the Imam without fight.

"To the Imam belongs the mountain, inside of the valleys, marshes and undeveloped lands that have no owners. To the Imam belong the properties of the kings (defeated) if such properties are not usurped. The usurped properties are all returned to the owner. The Imam is the heir of those who have no heirs. He supports those who have no supporters (financially).

"The Imam has said, 'There is no category of the properties that Allah may not have distributed and has given every rightful person his or her rights of the general or particular nature of the needy and the destitute and all categories of people.'

"Also the Imam has said, 'If justice is practiced among the people they will become free from want.' The Imam then said, 'Justice is more sweet than honey. No one practices it properly except those who are good in justice.'

"The Imam then said, 'The Messenger of Allah would distribute the charities of the rural areas in the rural areas and the charities of the towns to the people of the towns. He would not divide every amount of charity received into eight portions. He would divide it proportionate to the categories of the causes present before him and to the degree for each cause that would suffice it for one year. There was no limit of time or a certain date or the combination of both. He based it on what was available and who was present and how much of the need of each category could have been fulfilled. He offered the remaining to other people.

"Al-Anfal belongs to the Wali and so are all the lands that were captured during the time of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to eternity. It does not matter whether the conquest was made through the people of justice or otherwise. The responsibility of the Messenger of Allah is one and the same in the past, present or future generations. It is because the Messenger of Allah said, 'Muslims as brothers are equal in the matters of lives. Even the small ones among them strive for the fulfillment of their responsibilities.'

"There is no zakat on al-Khums property. It is because the shares of the needy from the masses are placed in the properties of the people in eight categories. No one of the needy in the masses is left out. The needy from the relatives of the Messenger (of Allah) have their share in the fifty percent of al-Khums. This suffices them and they do not need the charities of the masses, the charities of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and the charities of Wali (Leadership with Divine Authority). In this way the system leaves no one as a needy person of the masses or of the relatives of the Messenger of Allah without proper coverage and welfare benefits, so all the needy benefit. For this reason there is no zakat (tax) on the properties of the Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, or Wali. It is due to the fact that for all kinds of needs there are resources in the system to facilitate them. There are responsibilities as well as rights on the parts of the Holy Prophet and the Wali.'"

Ali ibn Muhammad ibn 'Abd Allah has narrated from certain person of our people (that I think is al-Sayyari) from Ali ibn Asbat who has said the following:

"In one of the meetings of abu al-Hassan Musa, recipient of divine supreme covenant, with al-Mahdi (one of 'Abbassid ruler) the Imam found him paying reparations (for the damages caused to people). The Imam said, 'O Amir al-Mu'minin, what has happened to the reparations due to us?' He then asked, 'What damage is caused to you, O abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant?' He (the Imam) said, 'Allah, the Holy, the Most High, granted victory to His Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and the land of Fadak and its surrounding areas came under his control without any armed struggle. Allah sent a message to His Holy Prophet, recipient of divine supreme covenant. It said, "Give the relatives their rights." The Messenger of Allah did not know who they were. He turned to Jibril to find out and Jibril turned to his Lord for the answer. Allah then sent revelation to him to give possession of Fadak to Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Thereupon, the Messenger of Allah called Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and said to her. "O Fatimah, Allah has commanded me to give possession of Fadak to you." She then said, "O Messenger of Allah, I have accepted the offer from Allah and from you." Thereafter her representatives lived there during the lifetime of the Messenger of Allah. When abu Bakr took control he expelled her representatives therefrom. She went to abu Bakr and asked him to reverse his decision and return

Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, brought Amir al-Mu'minin Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and 'Umm Ayman who both testified in favor of Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He then wrote, "Fatimah must not be disturbed in the matters of Fadak." Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then left with the document. On the way 'Umar came from the opposite direction and asked, "What is it in your hand, O daughter of Muhammad?" Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, "It is a document that ibn abu Quhafa has written for me." He said, "Show it to me." Fatimah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, refused to hand it over to him but he snatched it away from her hand and read it. He then spit on it wiped out its writing and tore it into pieces. He said, "This was not captured by forces of the camels and horses of your father so that you can tie the rope around our necks.'"

(8:41) It then was asked, 'The portion that belongs to Allah to whom is it given?'

"The Imam said, 'It belongs to the Messenger of Allah and whatever belongs to the Messenger of Allah belongs to the Imam.' Another question said, 'If one of the categories of welfare recipient is more and the other category less, how then it is dealt with?' The Imam said, 'It is left to the discretion of the Imam. Consider how the Messenger of Allah dealt with such cases. Is it not the case that he used his own discretion to distribute, as he considered proper? The Imam deals with such case in the same way.'"

Ahmad ibn Muhammad has narrated from Muhammad ibn Sinan from Yunus ibn Ya‘qub from ‘Abd al-‘Aziz ibn Na’fi‘ who has said the following:

“Once we asked permission from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and sent him a message. He then sent us a message that said two of us should meet him at one time. A man and I went to meet him. I said to the man, ‘I want you to ask permission to ask questions.’ He said, ‘Yes, I will do so.’ He then said to the Imam, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, my father was taken as a captive by the ’Umayyids. I know that ’Umayyids did not consider lawful and unlawful matters and that they did not have any right in all that was in their possession in large or small quantities but that they rightfully belonged to you. When I think how much must I return to you I get a feeling that almost destroys my power of reason.’ The Imam said, ‘You are free from such obligation as well as all those who are in the same conditions as you are. They are also free from such obligations after me.’ The narrator has said that we then left and Mu‘attib (the servant) reached the next group who were to meet the Imam and said, ‘’Abd al-‘Aziz ibn Na’fi‘ has succeeded in what no one before him had ever done.’ They asked, ‘What is it?’ He then explained it to them.

“Then two of them (people) went to see the Imam. One of them said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, my father was a captive in the hands of the ’Umayyids. I knew that the ’Umayyids had no legal control over all that they had in small or large amounts. I would like that you set me free from the liabilities.’

“The Imam said, ‘Is that up to us? It is not up us. We have no right to make things lawful or unlawful.’ The two men then left. Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, became angry. Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then, to every one who went to see him, began to say, ‘Are you not surprised at so and so? He comes to me to legalize what the ’Umayyids had done? He thinks it is up to us. That night no one benefited little or in large amounts except the first two people. They gained what they needed.’”

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'The most serious trouble that one may face on the Day of Judgment is when a person with the right to receive al-Khums will stand up and say, 'Lord, my al-Khums (was not paid).' However, we have gifted it to our Shi'a to cleanse and purify their birth."

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn al-Husayn from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn abu Nasr from Muhammad ibn Ali from abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"The narrator has said, 'Once I asked him about what is taken out of the sea, such as pearls, rubies and gems and minerals such as gold and silver and others, how much is the tax on them?' The Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'If it is worth up to a Dinar then al-Khums (one fifth) is due on it.'"

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn and Ali ibn Muhammad have narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from Ali ibn Mahziyar who has said the following:

"Once I wrote to him (the Imam, recipient of divine supreme covenant), 'My master, a man is given money to perform Hajj. Is there al-Khums on such money when he receives it or is there al-Khums only on what remains extra from the expenses after Hajj?' He wrote, 'There is no al-Khums on him.'"

Sahl ibn Ziyad has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Ali ibn al-Husayn ibn 'Abd Rabbihi who has said the following:

"Once al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, sent a gift to my father and my father wrote to him, 'Is there al-Khums on the gift you just sent to me?' He wrote back to him in answer, 'There is no al-Khums on the gift that the recipient of al-Khums has sent to you.'"

Sahl has narrated from Ibrahim ibn Muhammad al-Hamadani who has said the following:

"Once I wrote to abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Ali ibn Mahziyar read to me the letter of your father, recipient of divine supreme covenant, that said, "The owners of gardens pay three percent after deducting the expenses. They say that on the produce of the gardens there is al-Khums (one fifth) after the deduction of the expenses, the expenses of the garden, not the expenses of the owner and his family. Sahl has narrated from Ahmad ibn al-Muthanna who has said the following:
"Muhammad ibn al-Tabari has said that a businessman from Persia who was of the friends of abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, wanted permission about al-khums. The Imam wrote:
"(I begin) in the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.
"Allah increases people's sustenance and He is generous. He has guaranteed rewards for work and sadness for constraints. The use of a property is not lawful unless it is used in the way Allah has made lawful. Al-Khums helps us in our religion, in the expenses of our dependents and our friends. It helps us to gift and buy protection for our dignity against those whom we fear. Do not withhold it from us and do not deprive yourselves from our prayers as far as it is possible for you. Paying al-Khums increases your earnings, cleanses your sins and whatever you preserve for yourselves for the day when you will need help the most. A Muslim is one who fulfills his promise to Allah. One is not a Muslim if he says, 'yes' with his tongue but opposes it in his heart. With peace.'"

H 1435, Ch. 130, h 26
Through the same chain of narrators it is narrated from Muhammad ibn Zayd who has said the following:
"Once a group of people came from Khurasan to abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant. They asked him to set them free from the obligation of payment of al-Khums. The Imam said, 'What kind of plan is this? Do you try to love us purely only with your tongue and withhold from us the right that Allah has set for us? That right is al-Khums. We do not, do not, and do not relinquish it to any one of you.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father who has said the following:
"Once I was in the presence of abu Ja'far al-Thani, recipient of divine supreme covenant, that Salih ibn Muhammad ibn Sahl came and he was his supervisor of endowments in Qum. He said, 'My master, write off for me ten thousand because I have already spent it.' The Imam said, 'It is relinquished in your favor.' When Salih left then abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said as follows: 'Once one of them gets his hand on the property that belongs to Ahl al-Bayt of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to their orphans, to their destitute, to their needy and to those of them who become needy on a journey and then he comes to us and says, "Relinquish it in my favor," do you think I can say, "No, I will not relinquish it in your favor?"
"By Allah, Allah will soon question them on the Day of Judgment without any concession.'"

H 1437, Ch. 130, h 28
Ali has narrated from his father from ibn abu ‘Umayar from Hammad from al-Halabi who has said the following:
“Once I asked abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the corral (under sea treasure) and diving for pearls. The Imam said, ‘There is al-Khums due on them.’”

This is the End of First Volume of the Book About the People who Possess Divine Authority (of the Book al-Kafi) that is followed by the Book, ‘Belief and Disbelief’.
All praise belongs to Allah, Lord of the worlds. May peace and blessings be showered upon Muhammad and his family, the clean and pure ones.

The Book of Belief and Disbelief

Chapter One (a)

The Clay from Which the Believers and Unbelievers Are Made

H 1438, CH 1a, h 1

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Hammad ibn ‘Isa from Rib’i ibn ‘Abd Allah from a m an from Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, created the prophets from the clay of ‘Illiyiyyn (paradise), both their bodies and souls. He made the hearts of the believers from such clay and He made their bodies from a world lower than that world. He created the unbelievers, both their bodies and souls from the clay of Sijjin (fire). He thus mixed the two clays. For this reason children of unbelievers become believers and vice versa. For this reason the believers get afflicted with evil and unbelievers receive good things. Thus, the hearts of the believers incline to that from which they are created and the hearts of the unbelievers incline to that from which they are created.”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn al-Hassan from al-Nadr ibn Shu’ayb from ‘Abd al-Ghaffar al-Jaziyy from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, created the believers from the clay of paradise. He created the unbelievers from the clay of fire. He then said, ‘When Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, decides to grant good to one of His servants, He purifies his spirit and body. Whenever he hears any good thing he recognizes it. Whenever he hears any bad things he dislikes them.’ I (the narrator) then heard him saying, ‘The clays are of three kinds: (a) one is the clay of the prophets from which the believers are also created, except that the prophets are made of the superior kind of clay. The prophets are the roots and the believers are the branches and for this reason they are more excellent than the believers. The believers are created from a stickier kind of clay. Thus Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious will not keep them apart from their followers.’ The Imam than said, ‘The clay of those who insult (‘A’immah) are from a black clay that smells foul. The weak ones are made from soil. The believers do not change their faith nor do evil doers (those who insult ‘A’immah, recipients of divine supreme covenant) do so and Allah has a definite goal behind it.’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn Mahbub from Salih ibn Sahl who has said that I asked abu abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the following:

“May Allah keep my soul of service to you, from what kind of material has Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, created the clay of the believers? He then replied, ‘He has created them with the clay from which the prophets were made. Thus, they never become unclean.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya and others have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalaf from abu Nahshal who has said that Muhammad ibn ‘Isma’il narrated from abu Hamza al-Thumali who has the following:

“I heard abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, ‘Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, created us from the top most of paradise. He made the hearts of our followers from that which He had created us. He created their bodies from that which is below, thus, their hearts incline to us; they are made from what He had made us.’ He then recited this verse of the Holy Quran. ‘However, the records of the deeds of the virtuous ones will certainly be in Illiyin (83:18). Would that you had known what Illiyin is! (19). It is a comprehensively written Book (of records) (20). The ones nearest to Allah will bring it to the public (83:21).’ He then said, ‘Allah has created our enemies from Sijjin (the fire) and He has created the hearts of their followers from what He had created them. He created the bodies of their followers (followers of our enemies) from other matters. Thus, their hearts (the hearts of the followers of our enemies) incline to them (to our enemies) because they are created from what they (our enemies) are created.’ Then he recited this verse of the Holy Quran: ‘Let them know that the records of the sinners’ deeds are in Sijin (83:7). Would that you had known what Sijin is! (8). It is a comprehensively written Book (of records) (9). Woe, on that day, to those who have rejected Allah's revelations (10) and those who have rejected the Day of Judgment (83:11).’”

٤- مُحَمَّدُ بْنُ يَحْيَى وَ غَيْرُهُ عَنْ أَحْمَدَ بْنِ مُحَمَّدٍ وَ غَيْرِهِ عَنْ مُحَمَّدِ بْنِ خَلَفٍ عَنْ أَبِي نَهْشَلٍ قَالَ حَدَّثَنِي مُحَمَّدُ بْنُ إِسْمَاعِيلَ عَنْ أَبِي حَمْزَةَ الثَّمَالِيِّ قَالَ سَمِعْتُ أَبَا جَعْفَرٍ ع يَقُولُ إِنَّ اللَّهَ جَلَّ وَ عَزَّ خَلَقَنَا مِنْ أَعْلَى عِلِّيِّينَ وَ خَلَقَ قُلُوبَ شِيعَتِنَا مِمَّا خَلَقَنَا مِنْهُ وَ خَلَقَ أَبْدَانَهُمْ مِنْ دُونِ ذَلِكَ وَ قُلُوبُهُمْ تَهْوِي إِلَيْنَا لِأَنَّهَا خُلِقَتْ مِمَّا خُلِقْنَا مِنْهُ ثُمَّ تَلَا هَذِهِ الْآيَةَ كَلَّا إِنَّ كِتابَ الْأَبْرارِ لَفِي عِلِّيِّينَ وَ ما أَدْراكَ ما عِلِّيُّونَ كِتابٌ مَرْقُومٌ يَشْهَدُهُ الْمُقَرَّبُونَ وَ خَلَقَ عَدُوَّنَا مِنْ سِجِّينٍ وَ خَلَقَ قُلُوبَ شِيعَتِهِمْ مِمَّا خَلَقَهُمْ مِنْهُ وَ أَبْدَانَهُمْ مِنْ دُونِ ذَلِكَ فَقُلُوبُهُمْ تَهْوِي إِلَيْهِمْ لِأَنَّهَا خُلِقَتْ مِمَّا خُلِقُوا مِنْهُ ثُمَّ تَلَا هَذِهِ الْآيَةَ كَلَّا إِنَّ كِتابَ الْفُجّارِ لَفِي سِجِّينٍ وَ ما أَدْراكَ ما سِجِّينٌ كِتابٌ مَرْقُومٌ وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِلْمُكَذِّبِينَ

A number of our people have narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad, who has narrated from more than one person from al-Husayn ibn al-Hassan. All of the above have narrated from Muhammad ibn ‘Uwarma from Muhammad ibn Ali from ‘Isma’il ibn Yasar from ‘Uthman ibn Yusuf who has said that, reported to him ‘Abd Allah ibn Kaysan, from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Once I said to the Imam, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, I am your servant, abu ‘Abd Allah ibn Kaysan.’ The Imam said, ‘I know your genealogy. However, I do not know you (so well).’ I said, ‘I was born in the mountains and grew up in the land of Persia. I associate with people in business and other occasions. I, thus, associate with a man and find his appearance very good, to be of good manners and more trustworthy. When I investigate I find him to be one of your enemies. I also associate with another man who has bad manners, is less trustworthy and hot tempered. I then investigate and find him to be of your supporters and followers. Why is it so?’

“He (the Imam) said, ‘O ibn Kaysan, Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, took a clay from paradise and also from fire and then mixed them together. Then He separated this from that and that from this. The good appearances, good manners and trustworthiness that you find in them (our enemies) is because of the touch of the clay from paradise but they will return to that from which they are made. The deceitfulness, bad manners and hot-temperament that you find in them (our supporters and followers) is because of the touch of the clay from fire, however, they will return to that from which they were made.’”

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from Salih ibn abu Hammad from al-Husayn ibn Yazid from al-Hassan ibn Ali ibn abu Hamza from Ibrahim from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“When Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, willed to create Adam He sent Jibril in the first hours of the Friday. He picked up with his right hand a handful. His hand had in its reach from the seventh heavens to the heaven above earth. From each of the heavens he picked up a handful. He also picked up another handful from the seventh earth of the above-most and to the farthest seventh earth. Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, then commanded His word to hold the first handful in his right and the other in his left. The clay then was cleaved into two. It was scattered from earth and from the heavens and then said to the clay in his right hand, ‘From you will be the messengers, the prophets, their successors, the truthful ones, the believers, those who will achieve salvation and those whom I will to have honors.’ It then became necessary for them to be as He said them to be. He then said to that which was on his left, ‘From you will be the tyrants, the polytheists, the unbelievers, the devils and those whom I will to humiliate and be of the wicked ones.’ It then became necessary for them to become what He said them to become. Thereafter the two clays mixed together as Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, has said, ‘Allah makes the seed and the nuts to cleave apart.’ (6:95) The seed is the clay of the believers upon which Allah has placed His love. The nuts are the clay of the unbelievers that are far from all good. It is called nuts (al-Nawa’) because it is far away from all good and from Him. Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, has said, ‘He (Allah) brings forth the living from the dead and the dead from the living.’ (6:95) The living are the believers who come out from the unbelievers and the dead who come out of the living are the unbelievers who are from the believers. The living are the believers and the dead are the unbelievers. This is because of the words of Allah, ‘Are those whom We brought to life after their being dead . . .’ (6:122) Their death was the mixing of their clay with the clay of the unbelievers and his coming to life was when Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, caused separation between them through His word. In this way Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, takes the believers at birth out to light from darkness after their entering therein and He takes the unbelievers out of the light to darkness after their entering into the light as it is said in the words of Allah, the Majestic the Glorious, ‘So that he can give warning to those who are of the living and the word about the unbelievers truly come to pass.’” (36:70)

The Clay from Which the Believers and Unbelievers Are Made (Additional)

H 1445, CH 1b, h 1

Abu Ali al-Ash’ari and Muhammad ibn Yahya have narrated from Muhammad ibn ‘Isma’il from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Aban ibn ‘Uthman from Zurara from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Had people known how the beginning of the creation was, no one would have disagreed with another person. Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, before creating the creatures said, ‘Be a sweet water so I create from you My paradise and people who obey My commands. Be very salty water; from you I create My fire and those who disobey Me.’ He then commanded them to mix and from this the believers give birth to unbelievers and the unbelievers give birth to the believers. Then He took a clay from the surface of the earth and kneaded it very strongly whereby they (children of Adam) appeared as particles crawling about. He then said to the people of the right hand, ‘To paradise (you go) in peace.’ To the people of the left hand He said, ‘To the fire (you go) and I am not concerned.’ He then commanded a fire that began to blaze and He said to the people of the left hand, ‘Enter therein.’ They then were frightened thereby. He then said to the people of the right hand, ‘Enter the fire.’ They then entered therein and He said, ‘O fire be cool and peaceful.’ The fire became cool and peaceful. The people of the left hand then said, ‘O Lord forgive us and reduce our burden.’ The Lord said, ‘I have reduced it for you. Enter.’ They went but were afraid of it. It was there that obedience and disobedience came to take place. Thus, these will not be able to become of those and they will not be able to become of these.’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn abu ‘Umayr from ibn ‘Udhayna from Zurara who has said the following:

“Once a man asked abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the words of Allah, the Majestic the Glorious, ‘When your Lord took from the back of the children of Adam their offspring and told them to bear testimony to the words of Allah, “Am I not your Lord,” they all said, “Yes, You are our Lord. . . .”’ (7:172)

“He (the Imam), while his father, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was listening, said, ‘My father narrated to me that Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, took a handful of clay, from which He created Adam. He poured upon it sweet water from Euphrates and left it for forty mornings. Then He poured upon it very salty water and left it for forty mornings. When the clay fermented He then kneaded it strongly and they (children of Adam) appeared as particles from his right and left sides. He ordered all of them to enter the fire. The people of the right hand entered it and it became cool and peaceful for them but the people of the left hand refused to enter.’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn abu Nasr from Aban ibn ‘Uthman from Muhammad ibn Ali al-Halabi from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“When Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, willed to create Adam He sent water on the clay. He then took a handful and kneaded it and then divided it in two parts with His hands then scattered them and they began to move. He then started a fire for them and commanded the people of the left hand to enter therein. They went near but were afraid of it and they did not enter therein. He then commanded the people of the right hand to enter in the fire. They went and entered into it and Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, commanded the fire to become cool and peaceful for them. When the people of the left hand observed it they said, ‘Our Lord, forgive us.’ He forgave them and said to them, ‘Enter into the fire.’ They went but did not enter therein. He then changed them to clay and He created Adam therefrom. Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, ‘Those will never be able to become these and they will never be able to become of those.’ He, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, ‘They saw the Messenger of Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to be the first to enter that fire. For this reason is the words of Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, ‘(Muhammad), Say, “Had the Beneficent had a son then I would have been the first to worship.”’’’ (43: 81)

H 1448, CH 1c, h 1

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Dawud al-'Ijli from Zurara from Humran from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'As Allah, the Most Holy the Most High, created the creation, He created sweet water and a very salty water and then mixed the two together. Then He took a (kind of) clay from the surface of the earth and kneaded it intensely. He then said to the people of the right, as they crawled about like particles, "To paradise (you go) in peace." He then said to the people of the left hand, "To the fire (you go) and I am not concerned." Then He asked, "Am I not your Lord?" They all said, "Yes, You are our Lord we testify." Allah said, "I make you to witness this) so that on the Day of Judgment you will not say, 'We were unaware of this.'" (7:172)

'Then He made the prophets to form the covenant. He asked them, "Am I not your Lord and is not this Muhammad, My messenger and is not this Ali, the commander of the believers?" They said, "Yes, it is just as You said." This established their prophethood. He then made the 'Ulu al-'Azm messengers to testify and acknowledge this fact: "I am your Lord, Muhammad is My messenger, Ali is the commander of the believers and his successors, recipients of divine supreme covenant, after him are people who possess My Authority and are the reservoir of My knowledge. That al-Mahdi, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is one whom I will make to lend support to My religion. Through him I will establish My kingdom on earth and make My enemies to face justice for their crimes. Through him I will make them to worship Me willingly or otherwise." The prophets altogether said, "Yes, Lord we testify to these facts and bear witness." Adam did not refuse and did not affirm (verbally) the fact about al-Mahdi, recipient of divine supreme covenant, so he was not included in the group of five 'Ulu al-'Azm messengers of Allah. Adam did not have the resolve to affirm the facts about al-Mahdi, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, has said in the Holy Quran, "We had made a covenant with Adam before but he forgot all about it and we did not find in him a firm resolve." (20:115) He said that it was so but he ignored it. He then created a fire that blazed and told the people of the left hand to enter in the fire. They were afraid thereby. He said to the people of the right hand, "Enter in the fire." They entered in the fire and it was cool and peaceful to them. The people of the left hand then said, "Lord, forgive us and reduce our sins." The Lord said, "I have forgiven you but you must go in the fire." They were afraid. Thus, with this the obedience, authority and disobedience came to take place.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad and Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from Hisham ibn Salim from Habib al-Sajistani who has said the following:

"I heard abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'There was a time when Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, took the descendents of Adam from his back to establish a covenant with them to testify that He is their Lord and to believe in the prophethood of all the prophets. The first among the prophets whose prophethood Allah wanted them to accept through a covenant was Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, then said to Adam, “Look (to find) what you can see.” ‘The Imam then said, “Adam then looked and saw his descendents appearing as small particles that filled the sky. Adam then said, ‘Lord, how huge in number my descendents are! For what purpose have You created them and for what reason did You make them to establish a covenant with You?’” Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, replied, “So that they worship Me and do not consider anything else as My equal and so that they believe in My messengers and follow them (for guidance).” Adam then asked, “Lord, why is it that I see certain ones of the particles are greater, others have a great deal of lights, yet others among them have very little light and still others among them have no lights at all?” Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, replied, “Thus, I have created them to place them to test in every condition that they will live.” Adam then asked, “My Lord, will You grant me permission to speak so I may express myself?” Allah, the Majestic the Glorious said, “Speak up; your spirit is from My spirit but your nature is different from My being.” Adam then asked, “Lord, had You created them all just like each other, by the same measure, the same nature, of likewise design, of the same color, of equal life span, of equal amount of means of living they would not act against each other. No jealousy, animosity and differences would exist among them over anything.” Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, said, “O Adam, through My spirit you just spoke and due to the weakness of your nature you made an effort to give an opinion about that of which you have no knowledge. I Am the Creator of the world. I knowingly have created each one different from the others and through My Own way I will make My commands to take effect and they will continue existing through My plans and measures. There will be no changes in My creation. I have created the Jinn and human beings only to worship Me. I have created paradise for those who obey and worship Me and follow My messengers. I have no regrets in what I have done. I have created the fire for those who disbelieve, disobey Me and do not follow My messengers and I have no regrets in it. I have created you and your descendents not because I ever need you or your descendents in anyway or form. I have created you and created them to test you and test them to see which ones among you do good deeds in the worldly life before your deaths. For this reason I have created the world and the life thereafter, life, death, obedience, disobedience, paradise and the fire. This is how I willed in My measure and plan. Through My all-pervasive knowledge in them I have placed differences in their forms, bodies, colors, lifespan, means of living, obedience and disobedience. I, thus, have made certain ones of them to be unfortunate or very fortunate. Certain ones among them will have eyesight or be blind, others among them will be of short size or tall ones, beautiful or otherwise, knowledgeable or ignorant, wealthy or poor, obedient or disobedient, of good health or suffering from illness, of defective bodies or free of bodily defects. In this way those of perfect bodies will look at the defective ones and thank Me for the perfect body that I have given them and those with defective bodies will look at the perfect ones and will pray to Me and ask Me to grant them good health and exercise patience when and in the way I test them. Thus, I will grant them good rewards. The wealthy ones after looking to the poor ones will thank Me and appreciate My

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn al-Husayn from Muhammad ibn ‘Isma’il from Salih ibn ‘Aqaba from ‘Abd Allah ibn Muhammad al-Ju’fi and ‘Aqaba together from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, created the creation. He created His most beloved ones from that which He loved most. What was most beloved to Him was the fact that he created His most beloved ones from the clay of paradise. He created those whom He hated most from that which he hated most. What was most hated to Him was the fact that he created from the clay of the fire and then sent them to the shadows. I asked him, ‘What are the shadows?’ He replied, ‘Have you not seen your own shadow in a sunny day that looks like a thing but is nothing? Allah then raised from them the prophets who called them to believe in Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, as mentioned in His, words, “When you ask them who has created them they will say, ‘Allah.” (31:25) He then called them to express their belief in the prophets. Some expressed their belief as such and others among them did not do so. He then called them to express their (Wala’) belief and support to us (Ahl al-Bayt). I swear by Allah, those whom He loved expressed their belief that we were the people who possess Divine Authority and only those whom He hated refused to express such beliefs as it is said in the following verse of the Holy Quran. “They do not express faith in what they before had refused to have faith in.”’ (7:101) Abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, ‘Rejection (to have faith in us) was then.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from Salih ibn Sahl fro abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Certain persons of Quraysh asked, ‘O messenger of Allah, by what means have you surpassed the prophets in excellence while you are the last and final one among them to come (with Divine message)?’ He replied, ‘I was the first among them to express my belief in my Lord and the first one to answer the call when Allah made a covenant with the prophets. He asked them to bear testimony against their ownselves that they have answered, affirmatively to Allah’s Question, “Am I not your Lord?” I was the first among the prophets to say, “Yes, O Lord, You are the Lord.” By expressing and affirming my belief in Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, as the first one I surpassed them in excellence.’”

Ahmad ibn Muhammad has narrated from Muhammad ibn Khalid from certain persons of our people from ‘Abd Allah ibn Sinan who has said the following:

“Once I said to abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, I find certain persons of our people who seem light-minded and very temperamental and this extremely saddens me. On the other hand I find certain persons of those who do not accept our belief seem to (have very good Simt) be very dignified.’ The Imam said, ‘Do not call it Simt because Simt means straight path. Call it Dignified appearance because Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, has said, “They have marks of the effects of frequent prostration on their faces,”’ (48:29). I (the narrator) then said, ‘I see them to be of good appearance and of dignity and this makes me very sad.’ The Imam said, ‘Do not feel sad for what you see of light-mindedness and temperamental conditions of your people and the good appearance of those who do not accept your belief. When Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, willed to create Adam, He created those two kinds of clay. He then divided them into two portions. To the people of the right hand He said, “Be a creature by My permission.” They became creatures that looked like small particles running around. He then said to the people of the left hand, “Be a creature by My permission.” They became a creature as small particles that crawled. He then started a fire for them and said to them, “Enter therein by My permission.” The first one who entered therein was Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, followed by the ‘Ulu al-’Azm messengers, their successors and their followers. He then said to the people of the left hand, “Enter therein by My permission.” They said, “Our Lord, have you created us just to burn?” They disobeyed. He then said to the people of the right hand, “Come out from the fire by My permission” and the fire had caused no injuries to any of them and had left no marks on any one of them. When the people of the left hand saw this they said, “Our Lord, we see our people have come out safe and sound from the fire. Lord, forgive us and command us to enter the fire.” The Lord said, “I Have forgiven you, now you must enter the fire.” They went near the fire but when they felt the heat of the fire they turned back and said, “Our Lord, we are not able to endure the fire burning us and they disobeyed.” He commanded those ones three times to enter into the fire but every time they disobeyed and turned back. He commanded the others three times, each time they obeyed and came out of the fire. He then said to them, “Be a clay by My permission.” He then created Adam therefrom.’ The Imam then said, ‘Whoever is of those will never become of these (people of the right hand) and whoever is from these will never become of those ones (people of the left hand). When you find your people as light-minded ones and it causes sadness to you it is because of their mix with people of the left hand. The good appearance and dignity that you find in those who do not accept your belief is because of their mix with the people of the right hand.’”

He then said that every heart in which there is polytheism or doubt, such a heart is a failing heart. They (pious people) have chosen to restrict themselves from worldly matters so that their hearts are reserved for the matters of the life hereafter only.’”

It is reported through the same chain of narrators from Sufyan ibn ‘Uyayna from al-Sindy from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘If a servant maintains pure belief in Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, for forty days, Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, purifies his heart in this world and shows him his illnesses and the cure for them (illnesses).’ Also he, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, ‘Whenever a servant of Allah speaks of Him in a beautiful way for forty days Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, purifies his heart in this world and shows him his illnesses and the cure for such illnesses. He then establishes wisdom in his heart and will make his tongue to speak wisdom.' The Imam then recited this verse of the Holy Quran, 'Those who took the calf as their Lord will face anger and humiliation from their Lord in the worldly life and thus, We recompense those who forge lies.' (7:157)

"The Imam said, 'You should note that all those who forge lies are but despicable persons. So also is one who forges lies against Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, His messenger and his Ahl al-Bayt, recipients of divine supreme covenant. Such person is nothing but a despicable one.'"

Chapter Nine (a)

On the Shari'a (System of Laws)

بَابُ الشرَائِع

H 1476, CH 9a, h 1

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn abu Nasr. And a number of our people from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from Ibrahim ibn Muhammad al-Thaqafi from Muhammad ibn Marwan all of them have narrated from Aban ibn 'Uthman from those whom he has mentioned from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, granted to Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the system of laws of Noah, Abraham, Moses and Jesus, peace be upon them. The laws consisted of belief in monotheism, purity of such belief, the negation of all associates of Allah and the culture, that it is free and clean of idolatry, that it is easy to follow and that it does not allow total abandonment of the worldly life or total indulgence in it. He has made lawful in such a system of laws all that is good and clean and has made unlawful all that is filthy. Through such system He has removed all hardships and obstacles that were imposed on them (people). He then made it necessary for them, in such system of laws, to perform prayers, pay the charity (Zakat), complete the Fasting, and perform Hajj. And that they must fulfill their duty in the matters of virtue and vices (ask others to perform their duties and not to commit sins). And that they must follow the rules of lawful and unlawful matters, the rules of inheritance, penalties and compensations for losses and the obligations and the duty of Jihad (defending the faith) in the way of Allah. He has made Wuzu an additional obligation. He has granted him (the Holy Prophet), recipient of divine supreme covenant, distinction through the following revelations: the first Chapter of the Holy Quran and the last verses of Chapter Two of the Holy Quran as well as the detailed Chapters from Chapter 47 to the end of the Holy Quran. He made lawful for Prophet Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, the spoils of war and the land given to him without resistance. He supported him by giving him an awesome personality, made for him the earth to use in performing prostration before the Lord and to use it to clean himself. He was sent to all human beings, black and white, and to all Jinns. He granted him authority to receive taxes. He helped him to capture the pagans and then set them free on being ransomed. Then he imposed on him such duties that were not imposed on the prophets before. He sent down to him from heaven an unsheathed sword. He was told, 'Fight for the cause of Allah and do not hold anyone responsible besides your ownself.'" (4:84)

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from ‘Uthman ibn ’Isa from Sama'a ibn Mahran who has reported the following:
“Once I asked abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, ‘Exercise patience as the messengers who possessed determination had exercised patience. . . . ’(46:35) The Imam said, ‘They were Noah, Abraham, Moses, Jesus and Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant.’ I then asked, ‘How did they become messengers who possessed great determination?’ The Imam replied, ‘It was because Noah had received a book from Allah and a system of laws and those who came after Noah, they followed his book and his system of laws until Abraham came with books and firm determination. He left the book of Noah aside but not out of rejection. Thereafter every prophet followed the system of laws of Abraham and his books (al-Suhuf) until Moses came with the Torah, his system of laws and with firm determination. He left the books (al-Suhuf) aside. Every prophet thereafter followed the Torah and the system of laws of Moses until Jesus came with the Gospel and firm determination. He left aside the system of laws of Moses. Every prophet thereafter followed the system of laws of Jesus until Prophet Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, came. He brought the Holy Quran and his system of laws (the Shari'a). All that is lawful in his system of laws will remain lawful until the Day of Judgment and all that is unlawful in his system of laws will remain unlawful until the Day of Judgment. This is how the messengers who possessed firm determination have been.’”

“I requested abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘Teach me, please, the principles of beliefs. The Imam said, ‘They are: to testify and affirm that there is no one who deserves to be worshipped except Allah, to testify and affirm that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah and to affirm that whatever he has taught is from Allah. (It is of the principles of beliefs) to affirm and accept that there is prayer five times every day. (It is of the principles of beliefs) to pay Zakat (charity), to fast in the month of Ramadan and to perform Hajj of the House (of Allah). Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father and 'Abd Allah ibn al-Salt all of them from Hammad ibn 'Isa from Hariz ibn 'Abd Allah from Zurara from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Islam is based on five issues. It is based on prayer, charity (al-Zakat), Hajj, Fasting and al-Wilayah.' Zurara has said, 'I then asked the Imam, "Which of these is more important than the others?"' The Imam said, 'Al-Wilayah is more important. It is the key to the others. The person who possesses Divine Authority is the guide to the other principles.' I then asked, 'Which is the next important?' The Imam said, 'Thereafter is prayer. The Messenger of Allah has said, "Prayer is the pillar of your religion."' I then asked, 'Which is the next important among them?' The Imam said, 'Al-Zakat is the one thereafter. Allah has mentioned it next to prayer but He has mentioned prayer first. The Messenger of Allah has said, "Al-Zakat removes sins."' I then asked, 'Which one is important thereafter?' The Imam said, 'Hajj is important thereafter. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "It is a duty of the people to Allah to perform Hajj of the House if they are capable to do so. Whoever rejects it should know that Allah does not need anyone in the world." (3:97) The messenger of Allah has said, "Performing Hajj that is accepted is more virtuous than twenty Rak'at optional prayer. Whoever walks around the House seven times and performs the two Rak'at prayers thereafter properly Allah will grant him cover." He (The Messenger of Allah) did say on the ninth of the month of Dil Hajj and on the tenth of the month of Dil Hajj in Muzdalifa (a place in Makka), what he wanted to say.' I then asked, 'Which one is important thereafter?' The Imam said, 'It is fasting.'
"I then asked, 'Why is fasting the last of all in importance?' The Imam said, 'The Messenger of Allah has said, "Fasting is a shield against the fire."' The narrator has said that the Imam said, 'The best of all things is that for which, if you miss, you do not find an alternative accept going back to achieve it. Prayer, al-Wilayah and Hajj are not of matters replaceable with their own kind. On the other hand if fasting is missed on a journey one has the choice to fast on other days as remedy, or compensate for the sin with expiation and no fasting is necessary as a remedy. In the cases of the other four issues there is no alternative for them.' The narrator has said that the Imam then said, 'The topmost, the peak of the issue, the key and the door to

So also it is if he does not acknowledge the Divine Authority of his Imam with which all of one's deeds can take place with the guidance of the Imam. Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Safwan ibn Yahya from 'Isa ibn al-Sariyy abu al-Yasa' who has said the following:
"Once I said to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Teach me, please, the basic principles of Islam that are necessary for everyone to know to his limits of understanding, and if he fails to learn them to the necessary levels his religion is destroyed and Allah does not accept his deeds. What is the limit of learning about the deeds with which someone's religion can take proper shape and Allah may accept his deeds? What are the limits and degrees of the permissible level of ignorance and lack of knowledge of certain aspects of these principles?'
"The Imam said, 'The matters necessary to learn are to testify that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah, that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is the Messenger of Allah, that whatever he has brought from Allah is the truth and to affirm that paying Zakat (charity) is a right. (Of such necessary matters is) to affirm al-Wilayah (Divine Authority of 'A'immah) that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has made obligatory upon the other people to obey and acknowledge the Divine Authority of certain members of the family of Prophet Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant.' I (the narrator) then asked the Imam, 'Is al-Wilayah of an exclusive nature?' The Imam said, 'Yes, Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "O believers, obey Allah, obey the Messenger and those among you who possess Divine Authority." (4:59) The Merssenger of Allah has said, "Whoever dies without knowing who the Imam of his time is, he is considered as a person dying in the time of ignorance (as an unbeliever)." There was the Messenger of Allah and there was Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, but others said there was Mu'awiyah. Then there was al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and then there was al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant. Others said that there were Yazid ibn Mu'awiyah and Husayn ibn Ali. They were not equals and certainly they were not equals, meaning thereby Ali, al-Hassan and al-Husayn with Mu'awiyah and his son Yazid.' He has said that the Imam remained calm for a while and then said, 'Do you want me to tell you additional facts?' Hakam ibn al-'A'War said, 'Yes, may Allah keep my soul in service to your cause.' The Imam said, 'Then there was Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then there was Muhammad ibn Ali, abu Ja'far. The Shi'a before abu Ja'far did not know the rules of Hajj, the lawful matters and the unlawful matters until there was abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He opened it (system of religion) for them and explained to them the rules of their Hajj, the lawful and unlawful matters. People began to realize that they needed him very much while before they would ask other people for what they needed. This is how the facts are. The earth does not remain without an Imam and one who dies without knowing, who his Imam is, he is as though he was of the people of the dark ages of ignorance. The time when you need al-Wilayah most urgently is the time when your soul reaches here (pointing to his throat) and the world is cut off from you and then you say, 'I have certainly been on the good side of the affairs, (a supporter of al-Wilayah).'"

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Islam is based on five principles. They are al-Wilayah, (accepting the Divine Authority of 'A'immah), the prayer, al-Zakat (charity), fasting in the month of Ramadan and al-Hajj.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Yunus from Hammad ibn 'Uthman from 'Isa al-Sariyy who has said the following:

"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, to teach me the principles of Islam in such a way that on holding to them my deeds can take pure and correct form and thereafter the ignorance of whatever I am ignorant of cannot harm me. The Imam said, 'Of the principles of Islam are to testify and acknowledge that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah, and that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is the Messenger of Allah. Of such principles is to affirm and acknowledge that whatever he has brought is from Allah, to pay al-Zakat (charity) is a right and that al-Wilayah which Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has commanded to accept and acknowledge is al-Wilayah (Divine Authority) of Ahl al-Bayt of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. The Messenger of Allah has said, "Whoever dies while he does not know who his Imam is, he is considered as one who has died in the darkness of ignorance." Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "Obey Allah, obey the Messenger of Allah and the persons among you who possess Divine Authority." (4:59). Imam Ali was there (possessed Divine Authority) and after him were Imam Hassan, Imam Husayn and Ali ibn al-Husayn and after them was Muhammad ibn Ali, recipients of divine supreme covenant, successively and thus it will continue. It is narrated from him (Ali ibn Ibrahim) from abu al-Jarud who has said the following:
"Once I asked abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Do you know, O child of the Messenger of Allah that I love you (Ahl al-Bayt), that I have disassociated myself from other people to associate with you only and that I support you (Ahl al-Bayt)?' The Imam said, 'Yes, I know it.' I then said, 'I ask you to answer my question; my eyes are restricted, I walk very little and I am not able to visit you except every now and then.' The Imam said, 'What is your question?' I then said, 'What is the religion by which you obey Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, and the religion that your Ahl al-Bayt follow so that I will also obey Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, by the rules of your religion?' The Imam said, 'Although your introduction was brief, your question is a great question. By Allah, I will certainly teach you my religion and the religion of my ancestors by the rules of which we worship Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy. It is to testify that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah, that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is the Messenger of Allah, and that whatever (message) he has brought is from Allah. That it is obligatory to love and support those who support and love us (Ahl al-Bayt) and disassociate from our enemies. That it is obligatory to obey our commands, cherish the hope for the coming of the one from us who will rise with Divine Authority and to strive hard (Ijtihad) for progress in the matters of religion and live a life of piety, wara' (stay away from sins).'"

Teach me the religion of which they must not remain ignorant and besides which no other religion is accepted. What is this religion?' The Imam said, 'Repeat your question.' He repeated his question. The Imam said, 'It (such religion) is to testify that no one else deserves to be worshipped except Allah, that Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is the Messenger of Allah, and that it is obligatory to perform prayer, pay al-Zakat (charity), perform Hajj of the House if one has the ability and fast in the month of Ramadan.' Then he remained silent for a little while and said twice, "Al-Wilayah." He then said, 'This is what Allah has made obligatory upon His servants. The Lord on the Day of Judgment will not sk His servants why you have not done more than what I had made obligatory upon you. However, if someone does more good deeds Allah will grant him additional rewards. The Messenger of Allah has set up noble and beautiful traditions and it is very good for the people to practice them all.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father and abu Ali al-Ash’ari from Muhammad ibn ‘Abd al-Jabbar all of them from Safwan from ‘Amr ibn Harith who has said the following:
“Once I went to see abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he was in the house of his brother, ‘Abd Allah ibn Muhammad, and I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, what has brought you to this house?’ ‘Seeking privacy,’ said the Imam. I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, can I state before you my religion?’ The Imam said, ‘Yes, you may do so.’ I then said, ‘I follow a religion (that requires me) to obey Allah and testify that no one else deserves to be worshipped except Allah Who has no partners. That Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is His servant and messenger, that the Hour (of reckoning) will certainly come, that Allah will bring all people from their graves, that it is obligatory to pray, pay Zakat (charity), fast in the month of Ramadan and perform Hajj of the House. I affirm and acknowledge the Divine Authority of Ali ibn abu Talib after the Messenger of Allah, the Divine Authority of al-Hassan, al-Husayn, the Divine Authority of Ali ibn al-Husayn, the Divine Authority of Muhammad ibn Ali and your Divine Authority after him (your father), recipients of divine supreme covenant. You are my Imam. With such beliefs I live and with them I will die and such is my religion before Allah.’ The Imam said, ‘Such, O ‘Amr, I swear by Allah, is the religion of Allah and the religion of my ancestors and such is the religion that I follow to obey Allah in private and in public. Maintain piety before Allah and hold your tongue except from good and do not say, “I have guided myself.” In fact, Allah has guided you. Give thanks to Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, for the favor that He has done to you. Do not be of those who on their moving forward are hit in the eyes or when moving backwards are hit from the back. Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn al-Ni'man from ibn Maskan from Sulayman ibn Khalid from abu Ja'far recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Do you want me to teach you the root of Islam, its branch and its peak? I said, 'Yes, may Allah take my soul in service for your cause.' The Imam said, 'Its root is prayer, its branch is al-Zakat (charity) and its peak is Jihad (the hard work in defense and preaching of the belief).' The Imam then said, 'If you want I can teach you about the gates to all good.' I said, 'Yes, please, May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, do so.'
"The Imam said, 'Fasting is a shield against fire, charity removes sins and of the gates to good is to stand up (for worship) during the night to speak of Allah.' He then read (the words of Allah) 'They do not allow their sides to rest in bed (but they stand up at night to pray to Allah).'" (32:16)

Muhammad ibnYahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Sufyan ibn al-Simt who has said the following:
"Once a man asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'What is the difference between Islam and belief?' The Imam then did not answer. Again he asked and the Imam did not answer. They then met each other on the road while the man was about to leave. Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'It seems as if you are about to leave.' He said, 'Yes, I am about to leave.' The Imam then said, 'Come home for a meeting.' He met the Imam and asked him about Islam and belief and about the difference between the two. The Imam said, 'Islam is what people have publicly accepted, such as that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah, Who has no partners. That Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is His servant and His Messenger, that it is obligatory to perform prayer, pay al-Zakat (charity), to perform Hajj of the House and fast in the month of Ramadan. This is Islam.' The Imam (also) said, 'Belief is recognition of this issue (that the Imam possesses Divine Authority). In such a condition, if one affirms the other principles of Islam but does not recognize this issue (that the Imam possesses Divine Authority) he is a Muslim but is lost.'"

"I heard Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'The Arabs have said, "We have established belief." Say, "You have not established belief but say, 'We have accepted Islam.' Belief has not yet entered your hearts." (49:14) Whoever thinks that they (Arabs) had belief, his thoughts are false and whoever thinks that they had not accepted Islam he has lied.'"

H 1498, CH 11, h 6
Ahmad ibn Muhammad has narrated from al-Husayn ibn Sa'id from Hakam ibn Ayman from Qasim associate of al-Mufaddal who has said that he heard abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, say the following:

Chapter Twelve
Belief Is Inclusive of Islam but Islam Is Not Inclusive of Belief

H 1499, CH 12, h 1
Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated Ahmad ibn Muhammad from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from Jamil ibn Salih from Sama'a who has said the following:
"I requested abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Teach me about Islam and belief. Are they different?' He said, 'Belief is inclusive of Islam but Islam is not inclusive of belief.' I then asked, 'Please describe them to me.' He said, 'Islam is to testify that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah and to affirm the truthfulness of the Messenger of Allah. With it lives are protected, marriages and inheritance become lawful and a group of people acknowledge this much. Belief is guidance and that which forms in the heart of the qualities of Islam and that which takes form from its practice. Belief is a degree higher than Islam. Belief is inclusive of Islam in appearance but Islam is not inclusive of belief esoterically even though they may both apply to words and in description.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Yunus ibn 'Abd al-Rahman from Musa ibn Bakr from Fudayl ibn Yasar from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

Ali has narrated from his father from ibn abu 'Umayr from Jamil ibn Darraj from Fudayl ibnYasar who has said the following:

Belief is what sits in the heart and Islam is that which legalizes marriages and inheritance and protects lives. Belief is inclusive of Islam but Islam is not inclusive of belief.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from abu al-Sabah al-Kinani who has said the following:

"I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Which is better, belief or Islam? Certain people say Islam is better than belief.' The Imam said, 'Belief is higher than Islam.' I then said, 'Help me understand it.' He said, 'What do you say if one commits, purposely, an act of heresy in Masjid al-Haram (Sacred Mosque)?' I said, 'He should be made to suffer severe pains.' The Imam responded, 'You said the right thing. What if one commits such a thing, purposely, inside the Ka'ba?' I said, 'He must be put to death.' The Imam responded, 'You said the right thing again. Do you note that Ka'ba is better than the Sacred Mosque? The Ka'ba is inclusive of the Mosque (in excellence) but the Mosque is not inclusive of the Ka'ba in this respect. In the same way belief is inclusive of Islam but Islam is not inclusive of belief.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad and Muhammad ibn Yahya from Ahmad ibn Muhammad all of them from ibn Mahbub from Ali ibn Ri'ab from Humran ibn A'yun who has said the following:

"I heard from Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'Belief is what settles down in the heart and takes it to Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy. One's deeds testify to (its existence), (deeds) that come in the form of obedience to Allah and submission to His command. Islam is what appears through one's words or deeds and that is what a group of people of all the sects live by. Through Islam lives are protected, inheritance is settled thereby, marriages become lawful and they have the prayer, al-Zakat (charity), the fasting and al-Hajj in common. This takes them out of rejection of belief and they are ascribed to belief. Islam is not inclusive of belief while belief is inclusive of Islam, but words and deeds are common among them. Just as the case of Holy Ka'ba is in the Sacred Mosque but the Sacred Mosque is not in the Holy Ka'ba so is belief that is inclusive of Islam but Islam is not inclusive of belief. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "The Arabs have said, 'We have established belief.' Say, "You have not established belief but say, 'We have accepted Islam.' Belief has not yet entered your hearts."" (49:14) Therefore, the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, are the most truthful ones.' I then said, 'Does a believer have any distinction over a Muslim in terms of excellence, rules and judicial matters and so forth?' He said, 'No, they both in this matter walk the same path. However, a believer has distinction over a Muslim in the form of deeds through which he seeks nearness to Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy.' I said, 'Does Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, not say, "Whoever does a good deed for him the reward will be tenfold. . . ." (6:160) You just stated that they both accept the obligations of the prayer, al-Zakat (charity), the fasting and al-Hajj.' He (the Imam) said, 'Has Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, not said, ". . . He will add to his reward many additions." (2:245) Believers are the ones to whose good deeds Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, increases seventy times. Thus is the distinction of the believer. Allah increases to his (believer's) good deeds, proportionate to the degree of the correctness of his belief, many additions. Allah does good to the believer as He wishes.' I said, 'Is it not that whoever enters in Islam has entered belief?' He said, 'No, but he is ascribed to belief and has come out of rejection, and I will give you an example that will help understand the distinction of belief over Islam. Consider, if you see a person in the Sacred Mosque, do you testify that you have seen him in the Holy Ka'ba?' I said, 'No, that is not permissible for me.' He said, 'If you see a person in the Holy Ka'ba will you testify that he has entered the Sacred Mosque?' I said, 'Yes, I will do so.' He asked, 'Why do you do so?' I said, 'He cannot reach the Holy Ka'aba without entering first the Sacred Mosque.' He said, 'You said the right thing and you did well.' He then said, 'Thus, are Islam and belief.'"

Chapter Thirteen

Another Chapter on the Same Issue That Islam Is Before Belief

H 1504, CH 13, h 1

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from 'Abbas ibn al-Ma'ruf from 'Abd al-Rahman ibn abu Najaran from Hammad ibn 'Uthman from 'Abd al-Rahim al-Qusayr who has said the following:

"Abd al-Malik ibn A'yan and I wrote to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asking him, 'What is belief?' He then wrote to us. 'You, may Allah grant you favors, have asked about belief. Belief is affirmation, with the tongue, that is established in the heart and by the deeds of the body. Beliefs are from each other. Belief is a house. So also, Islam is a house. Rejection (of Islam) is a house. Sometimes a servant (of Allah) is a Muslim before he becomes a believer but he cannot become a believer before becoming a Muslim. Therefore, Islam is before belief and it shares belief. Whenever a servant (of Allah) commits one of the major sins or one of the minor sins that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has prohibited he is out of belief and belief falls off of him but the name 'Muslim' still applies to him. When he repents and asks forgiveness he returns to the house of belief. Nothing takes him out to rejection but rejection of what is lawful, such as saying to what is lawful, 'It is unlawful' or saying lawful to what is unlawful and living thereby (such attitude) as a religion. In such a case one is out of Islam and belief and is in rejection. It is like one's entering the Sacred Mosque then the Holy Ka'ba wherein he invents an act of heresy. He then is taken out of the Holy Ka'ba and the Sacred precinct and is decapitated and that turns him to hell (for his act of defiant and treachery)."

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from 'Uthman ibn 'Isa from Sama'a ibn Mihran who has said the following:

"I asked the Imam about belief and Islam, inquiring, 'Is there a difference between Islam and belief?' The Imam said, 'I can give an example.' I said, 'Please do so.' He said, 'The case of belief and Islam is like the Holy Ka'ba and the Sacred precinct. One may have entered the Sacred precinct but not the Holy Ka'ba. One cannot enter the Holy Ka'ba before entering the Sacred precinct. One may become a Muslim but he may not yet be a believer. However, one cannot become a believer before becoming a Muslim.' I (the narrator) then asked, 'Can one go out of belief to anything?' He said, 'Yes.' I asked, 'What then does one become?' He said, 'One may go out to Islam or rejection (disbelief).' He then said, 'If a man enters the Holy Ka'ba and his urine comes out he is taken out of the Holy Ka'ba but he will not be taken out of the Sacred precinct. He washes his cloth and purifies and then he is not stopped from entering the Holy Ka'ba. However, if a man enters the Holy Ka'ba and urinates therein out of animosity he is taken out of the Holy Ka'ba and the Sacred Mosque and is decapitated.'"

Chapter Fourteen

Ali ibn Muhammad has narrated from certain persons of his people from Adam ibn Ishaq from ‘Abd al-Razzaq from ibn Mihran from al-Husayn ibn Maymun from Muhammad ibn Salim from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Certain people have spoken from this Holy Quran without knowledge. It is because Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, has said, “It is Allah Who has revealed the Book to you in which certain verses are clear statements (that accept no interpretation), and these are the fundamental ideas of the Book, while other verses may have several possibilities. Those whose hearts are perverse follow the unclear statements in pursuit of their own mischievous goals by interpreting them in a way that will suit their own purpose. No one knows its true interpretations except Allah, and those who have a firm grounding in knowledge say, ‘We believe in it. All its verses are from our Lord.’ No one can grasp this fact except the people of reason.” (3:7)

‘The suspended verses are of the unclear ones and the verses whose meaning can clearly be understood are of the suspending ones. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, sent Prophet Noah to his people who said to them, “Worship Allah, have fear of Him and obey me” (71:3). He then called them to Allah alone to worship Him only and not to take any partners for Him. Thereafter He sent the prophets until (their coming ended with) Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He invited people to worship Allah only and not to take partners for Him. And He said, “He has plainly clarified the religion which is revealed to you and that which Noah, Abraham, Moses, and Jesus were commanded to follow (He has explained it) so that you may remain steadfast and united in your religion. What you call the pagans to is extremely grave for them. Allah attracts (to the religion) whomever He wants and guides to it whoever turns to Him with repentance.” (42:13)

‘He sent the prophets to their people with the testimony that stated, “No one deserves to be worshipped except Allah and that whatever every one (of the prophets) has brought is from Allah.” Those who sincerely accepted the faith and died with what they had accepted, Allah, through this will, admit them in paradise. Allah is not unjust to His servants, and Allah will not punish a servant unless he intensely sins such as committing murder or the sins for which Allah has made it clear that perpetrators thereof go to hell. When the believers of the people of each prophet followed them He gave them a system of laws and guidance. Al-Shari’a is a system, a path and tradition. Allah said to Prophet Muhammad, “(Muhammad), We have sent revelations to you just as were sent to Noah and the prophets who lived after him . . .” (4:163). Allah commanded every prophet to follow the path and the tradition. Of the traditions that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, commanded Moses to follow was al-Sabbath. Those who observed its greatness and did not violate it out of respect for Allah, Allah admitted them to paradise. Those who violated its sanctity and considered lawful what Allah had made unlawful and prohibited, Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, sent them to hellfire for their making fishing lawful. They captured fish and ate them on Sabbath. Allah showed anger toward them even though they had not taken anyone as partners of the Beneficent or doubted the truth of what Moses had brought. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, “You certainly knew about those among you who were transgressors on the Sabbath. We commanded them, 'Become detested apes . . .'" (2:65) Then Allah sent Jesus with the testimony that said, "No one deserves to be worshipped except Allah and all that he (Jesus) had brought was from Allah." He made for them a system of law and a path. He abolished the Sabbath for which they, before, were commanded to pay respect and the ways and traditions that Moses had brought. Whoever did not follow Jesus, Allah sent them to fire, although all that the prophets had said was that no one must be considered as a partner of Allah. Then He sent Prophet Muhammad and for the ten years that he lived in Makka everyone who testified to the fact that "No one deserves to be worshipped except Allah, and that Muhammad is His messenger" Allah admitted him to paradise just because of his affirmation. It was belief and affirmation. Allah did not punish anyone of those who died following Muhammad in that matter except those who took partners for the Beneficent. Evidence of this is what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has revealed in Chapter 17 in Makka). "Your Lord has ordained that you must not worship anything other than Him and that you must be kind to your parents . . . He is Well-aware and watches over His servants." (17:30)

'It (besides belief in Allah) is discipline, advice and education. It (law) is a light prohibition and there is no warning about it and there is no warning against violating what is prohibited. He has revealed prohibitions of certain matters without warning (for issues less serious than disbelief) saying:

"Do not kill your children for fear of poverty. We will give sustenance to all of you. To kill them is certainly a great sin. (17:31)

"Do not even approach adultery. It is indecent and an evil act. (17:32)

"Do not kill a respectable soul without a just cause. If anyone is wrongfully killed, We have given the heirs of that person the right (to demand satisfaction or to forgive). He must not exceed the law in having vengeance; law shall also assist his victim. (17:33)

"Do not get close to the property of the orphans (unless it is for a good reason) until they are mature and strong. Keep your promise; you will be questioned about it. (17:34)

"While weighing, use proper measurements in the exchange of your property. This is fair and will be better in the end. (17:35)

"Do not follow what you do not know; the ears, eyes, and hearts will all be held responsible for their deeds. (17:36)

"Do not walk proudly on the earth; your feet cannot tear apart the earth nor are you as tall as the mountains (17:37). All such things are sins and detestable in the sight of your Lord. (17:38)

"(Muhammad), these are words of wisdom, which your Lord has revealed to you. Do not consider anything equal to Allah lest you be thrown into hell, despised, and driven away from Allah's mercy." (17:39)

'(About more serious issues) Allah has also said, "By the night when it covers the day. (92:1) I have warned you about the fierce blazing fire (14) in which no one will suffer forever (15) except the wicked ones who have rejected the (Truth) and have turned away from it." (92:16)

'This (the wicked) is a pagan and in Chapter 84 Allah has said, "But as for those whose Book of Records will be given behind their backs, (84:10) they will say, 'Woe to us!' (11). They will suffer the heat of hellfire (12). They lived among their people joyfully (13) and had thought that they would never be brought back to life again." (84:14)

'This (one rejecting the Day of Judgment) is a pagan and in Chapter 67 Allah has said, "Whenever a group is thrown into it (hell), its keepers will ask them, 'Did no one come to warn you? (67:8)

"They will say, 'Yes, someone did come to warn us, but we rejected him saying, "Allah has revealed nothing. You are in great error."' (67:9)

'These are pagans and in Chapter 56 Allah has said, "If he is of those who have rejected the Truth and have gone astray, (56:92) the dwelling (for him) will be (in) boiling water (93) and the heat of hellfire." (94)

'These also are pagans. In Chapter 69 Allah has said, "However, one who will receive the book of the records of his deeds in his left hand will say, 'I wish that this record was never given to me (69:25) and that I never known what my records contained. (26) Would that death had taken me away for good. (27) My wealth has been of no benefit to me (28) . . . he did not believe in Allah, the Great . . .' (69:33)

'This also is a pagan, and in Chapter 26 Allah has said, ". . . hell will be left open for the rebellious ones (26:91) who will be asked, 'What did you worship (26:92) besides Allah? Will the idols help you? Can they help themselves? (26:93). The idol worshippers, the idols, the rebellious ones, (26:94) and the army of Satan will all be thrown headlong into hell.'" (26:95) The army of Satan and his descendents are of the devils (Shayatin)

'Allah's words, "Only the sinful ones made us go astray," (26:99) refers to pagans whom they had followed in their pagan manners and they were of the people of Prophet Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, of whom no one was a Jew or a Christian. Evidence of this is the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, in Chapter 38 verse 12, "The people of Noah then rejected our messengers." "The dwellers of the forest also rejected the Messengers." (26:176) "The people of Lot rejected the Messengers." (26:160)

'Among them there is no one of the Jews who considered 'Uzayr as the son of Allah or of the Christians who considered Jesus as the son of Allah. Allah will send (such) Jews and Christians to fire as well as those who had acted similarly. It comes from their own word, "Only the sinful ones made us go astray," (26:99) they invited us to their ways.

'Evidence of this (more serious sins) is the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, about them on their being brought together in fire, "The last group will accuse the first saying, 'Lord, they made us go astray. Therefore, double their torment in the Fire . . .'" (7:38) They will condemn and accuse each other. They argue in the hope of winning but there will be no winning, trial or acceptance of excuses and there will be no way to safety. Such verses and similar other ones were revealed in Makka. Allah does not send to fire anyone except the pagans.

'When Allah granted Muhammad permission to leave Makka for Madina he spoke of Islam having five principles:

'To testify that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah, that Muhammad is His servant and His messenger, that performing the prayer, paying al-Zakat (charity), Hajj of the House and fasting in the month of Ramadan are obligatory. That Allah sent to him judicial rules, and the rules for the distribution of inheritance, and informed him of the sins for which Allah has made it obligatory to punish in fire those who commit such sins. About the murder He has revealed, "The punishment for one who purposely slays a believer will be to live in hellfire forever. Allah is angry with him and has condemned him. He has prepared for him a great torment." (4:93)

'Allah does not condemn the believers. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "Allah has condemned the unbelievers and prepared for them a burning torment (33:64) wherein they will live forever without being able to find any guardian or helper." (33:65)

'Committing murder does not come from His wish; His anger and condemnation apply to the murderer by sending him to fire. In the book he (murderer) is condemned. About the properties of the orphans that are consumed unjustly He has said, "Those who wrongfully consume the property of orphans are, in fact, consuming fire in their bellies and they will suffer the blazing fire." (4:10)

'On the Day of Judgment, those who consume such properties unjustly will come when fire will be blazing in their bellies so much so that it will come out of their mouth. All the people in the gathering will learn that they are wrongful consumer of orphan's properties.

'About measurement for transactions He has said, "Wayl, a place in hell, is for those who do not maintain proper measurement." (83:2) He has not said that Wayl is for any kinds of people other than those whom He has called to be of those who reject the faith. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "*Wayl'*is for those who reject faith and belief. The unbelievers shall face a woeful condition on the great Day (of Judgment)." (19:37)

'About the covenant Allah has said: "Those who sell their covenant with Allah and their promises for a small price will have no share in the life hereafter. Allah on the Day of Judgment will not speak to them nor will He look at them nor will He purify them. They will face a painful torment." (3:77)

'If someone will have no share on the Day of Judgment then by what means would he enter paradise?

'The following was revealed in Madina. "No one should marry a (male) fornicator except a (female) fornicator or a pagan woman. No one should marry a (female) fornicator except a (male) fornicator or a pagan man. Such (marriage) is unlawful to the believers." (24:3)

'Allah has not called a male or female fornicator a believer. People of knowledge do not doubt what the Messenger of Allah has said to them: "At the time of committing fornication a male or female is not a believer, a thief, male or female is not a believer at the time of committing theft and if one does commit theft one is devoid of belief. It is like a shirt removed from one's body." The following verse of the Quran was revealed in Madina: "Those who accuse married women of committing adultery, but are not able to prove their accusation by producing four witness, must be flogged eighty lashes. Never accept their testimony thereafter; they are sinful, (24:4) except that of those who afterwards repent and reform themselves; Allah is All-forgiving and All-merciful." (24:5)

'Allah has not called an accuser a believer. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "Is a believer equal to an evildoer? They are not equal at all." (32:18)

'Allah had made him a hypocrite. As Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "The hypocrites indeed are evildoers." (9:67)

‘Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has made them of the friends of Satan as He has said, “. . . except Iblis. He was a Jinn and he sinned against the command of his Lord. . . .” (18:50)
‘Allah called him ‘condemned’ in his words, “Those who slander the unaware but chaste and believing women (of committing unlawful carnal relations) are condemned in this life and in the life hereafter. They will suffer a great punishment (24:23) on the day when their tongues, hands and feet will testify to what they have done.” (24:24)
‘Parts of the body do not testify against a believer. They testify against those who have become subject to punishment. However, the believers will receive the book of their account in their right hand as Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, “. . . those whose records of deeds are given to their right hands will read the book and the least wrong will not be done to them.” (17:71)

‘Chapter 24 was revealed after Chapter 4. There is evidence for this in what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, sent down to him (Muhammad) in Chapter 4 as follows:
“Agaisnt those of your women who commit fornication, let four (Muslim) witness testify to their act. If there is sufficient testimony, confine them to their homes until they die, or until Allah provides a way for their freedom.” (4:15)
‘The path is what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, “This is a Chapter which We have revealed to you and made obligatory for you to following its guidance. We have revealed clear verses in it so that perhaps you may take heed. (24:1)
“Flog the (female) fornicator and the (male) fornicator with a hundred lashes each. Let there be no reluctance in enforcing the laws of Allah, if you have faith in Allah and the Day of Judgment. Let it take place in the presence of a group of believers.”’’’ (24:2)

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Muhammad ibn Isma’il from Muhammad ibn Fudayl from abu al-Sabbah al-Kinani from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Amir al-Mu’minin (Ali ibn abu Talib) was asked, ‘Is one who testifies that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah and that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah, a believer?’ The Imam said, ‘Wherefore, then, are the obligations toward Allah?’
“I (the narrator) heard the Imam saying, ‘Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, would say, “Had belief been just ‘asserted words’ nothing about fasting, prayer, lawful and unlawful matters would have been needed to come down (from heaven).”’ He has said, ‘I reported to abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, “We know a people who say that upon saying, ‘No one deserves to be worshipped except Allah and Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah,’ one becomes a believer.” The Imam said, ‘Is it then that (there is no need) to apply any judicial rules to them, like the rules about theft? Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has not created any creature more honorable to Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, than a believer. The angels serve the believers; they are near Allah, that paradise is for the believers; that spouses with large black eyes are for the believers.’ He then said, ‘Do they, who reject the obligations, know that they are unbelievers?’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Yunus from Salam al-Ju'fiy who has said the following:

"Once I asked abu 'Aabd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about belief. He said, 'Belief is whereby Allah is obeyed and (with it) one does not commit sins.'"

الْجُعْفِي قَالَ سَأَلْتُ أَبَا عَبْدِ اللهِ ع عَنِ الْإِيمَانِ فَقَالَ الْإِيمَانُ أَنْ يُطَاعَ اللهُ فَلَا يُعْصَى

Chapter Fifteen
Belief Spreads In all Parts of the Body

بَابٌ فِي أَنَّ الْإِيمَانَ مَبْثُوثٌ لِجَوَارِحِ الْبَدَنِ كُلِّهَا

H 1509, CH 15, h 1
Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Bakr ibn Salih from al-Qasim ibn Burayd who has said that narrated to us abu 'Amr al-Zubayri who has said the following:
"I said to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'O scholar, tell me which deed is more virtuous before Allah?' He said, 'It is the deed without which Allah does not accept any (deed).' I asked, 'What is such a thing?' He said, 'Belief in Allah besides whom no one deserves to be worshipped. It (belief) is the highest in degree among the deeds, the most valuable among them and the topmost among them in (matters of) reward.' I then said, 'Please, tell me then about belief, is it deeds or it is words without deeds?'
"He said, 'All of belief is deeds and certain parts of such deeds are words. Allah has made it obligatory as is explained in His book. Its light is clear, its evidence well established. The (Holy) book testifies to it for one, and calls one to it.' I (the narrator) then asked, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, explain it to me so I may understand.' He (the Imam) said, 'Belief is of degrees, conditions, levels and stages. Of belief there is that which is perfect and complete in perfection. Of belief there is that which is defective and the defect is clear. Of belief there is that which is heavier on the perfection side.' I then asked, 'Does belief become perfect, decrease and increase?' He said, 'Yes, it does.' I then asked, 'How does it happen?' He said, 'It is because Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, has written belief for each part of the body of the children of Adam and has divided and distributed it among them. There is no part of thier body but that has a guard of belief different from such guard assigned to other parts. Of such part is one's heart, with which one understands and reasons to comprehend, and it is the commander of his body. It oversees the body and without its opinion no part moves to act. Of the parts of the body are one's eyes with which one sees and his ears with which one listens. There are one's hands with which one works, one's legs with which one walks, one's sexual organs from which comes carnal desires, one's tongue with which one speaks and one's head on which there is one's face. For each of these parts a different guard of belief is assigned. It is all due to what Allah, Most Blessed is Whose name, has written, to which His Holy book speaks and testifies.
'For each of these parts a different obligation is written. The obligation of the heart is different from the obligation of the ears. What is made obligatory for the ears is different from the obligation of the eyes and what is made obligatory for the eyes is different from what is made obligatory for the tongue. What is made obligatory for the tongue is different from what is made obligatory for the hands and what is made obligatory for the hands is different from what is made obligatory for the legs. The obligation of the legs is different from the obligations of the sexual organs. What is obligatory for the sexual organs is different from the obligation of the face.
'What is made obligatory for the heart of belief is affirmation, recognition and the formation of belief, consent and submission to the fact that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah Who is One and has no partner. He is the One and only. He has not taken any companion and children. That Muhammad is His servant and messenger, he and his family being recipients of Divine supreme covenant, and to affirm that whatever he has brought is from Allah, be it about a prophet or a book. That is what Allah has made obligatory for the heart; the task of affirmation and recognition, which is its deed. This is stated in the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, ". . . but his heart is confident about his faith. However, those whose breasts have become open to disbelief will be subject to the wrath of Allah and will suffer a great torment." (16:106)

'Allah has said, ". . . Remembrance (speaking) of Allah certainly brings comfort to all hearts." (13:28)

'Allah has said, ". . . They only say that they believe but, in fact, they have no faith in their hearts. . . ." (5:41)

'Allah has said, "Allah will call you to account for all that you may reveal from your souls and all that you may conceal. Allah will forgive or punish whoever He wants. . . ." (2:284)

'These are what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has made obligatory on the hearts of affirmation and recognition, and these are its deeds and this is the head of the belief.

'On the tongue Allah has made it obligatory to speak and express what the heart has established and has confirmed as Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, has said, " . . . that they should speak righteous words to people . . ." (2:83)

'Allah has said, "Tell them, we believe in Allah and in what is revealed to us and to you. Our Lord and your Lord are one. We have submitted ourselves to His will." (29:46)

'This is what Allah has made obligatory for the tongue and this is its deed. He has made it obligatory for the ears to keep it clean from what is unlawful to listen to, and to keep away from things that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has prohibited to listen to attentively; it angers Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy. And in this regard He has said, "Allah has told you (believers) in the Book that when you hear people disbelieving and mocking Allah's revelations, do not sit with them unless they change the subject . . ." (4:140)

'Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, then has made an exception for the case of forgetfulness, 'If Satan causes you to forget this, do not sit with the unjust people when you recall." (6:68)

'Allah has also said, "(Muhammad), give the glad news to those of My servants who listen to the words and follow only the best ones. Tell them that they are those whom Allah has guided. They are the people of understanding." (39:18)

'Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, "Triumphant indeed are the believers, (23:1) who are submissive to Allah in their prayers, (23:2) who avoid impious talks (23:3) and pay al-Zakat (charity)." (23:4)

'Allah has said, "When they hear impious words, they ignore them, saying, 'We shall be responsible for our deeds and you will be responsible for yours. . . .'" (28:55)

'Allah has said, ". . . when they come across something impious, they pass it by nobly." (25:72)

'This is what Allah has made obligatory for the ears in relation to belief; that they must not listen to what is unlawful to listen to, and such matters are of its deeds, which is of belief. He has made it obligatory for the eyes not to look at things He has made unlawful to look at and to stay away from what Allah has prohibited of the things that are not lawful for them. Such things are of their deeds and of belief.

‘Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, has said, “(Muhammad), tell the believing men to cast down their eyes and guard their carnal desires.” (24:30)

‘Allah has prohibited looking at the privacy of one’s brother and to keep one’s privacy protected from the onlookers. Allah has said, “. . .Tell the believing woman to cast down their eyes, guard their chastity (private parts).” (24:31)

‘They must find protection against being looked upon and keep away from looking at their sisters (private parts). The Imam said that everywhere in the Holy Quran where protection of private parts is mentioned it is a reference to fornication except this verse which is a reference to looking.

‘Allah has spoken about the obligations of the heart, tongue, ears and eyes in another verse also: “You did not (think to) hide your deeds from your ears, eyes and skin and you felt that Allah would not know all that you had been doing.” (41:22)

‘Skin is reference to private parts and thighs. Allah has said, “Do not follow what you do not know; the ears, eyes, and hearts will all be held responsible for their deeds.” (17:36)

‘This is what Allah has made obligatory for the eyes; to cast down away from what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has prohibited. This is their deed and it is of belief. Allah has made it obligatory for the hands not to move to what He has prohibited, instead move to what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has commanded to move to such as charity, good relation with relatives and striving for the cause of Allah and cleansing for prayer.

‘Allah has said, “Believers, when you are about to pray, wash your face and your hands along with the elbows and wipe your head and your feet to the ankles. . . .” (5:6)

‘Allah has said, “If you encounter the unbelievers in a battle, strike-off their heads. Take them as captives when they are defeated. Then you may set them free as a favor to them, with or without a ransom, when the battle is over. . . .” (47:4)

‘This is what Allah has made obligatory for the hands; striking is their task. Allah has made it obligatory for the legs not to walk to what is made unlawful and in disobedience to Allah. He has made it obligatory for them to walk to what makes Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, happy. Allah has said, “Do not walk proudly on the earth; your feet cannot tear apart the earth nor are you as tall as the mountains.” (17:37) “Do not walk around inflated with pride; be moderate in your walking and your talking. The most unpleasant sound is the braying of donkeys.” (31:19)

‘About the testifying of the hands and legs against their ownselves and their master for their disregard of the commands of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, and the obligation upon them, Allah has said: “. . . this Day, We seal their mouths and their hands will speak to Us and their feet will testify to what they had achieved.” (36:65)

‘This also is what Allah has made obligatory for the hands and the legs and this is their deed and it is of belief. Allah has made it obligatory for the face to prostrate before Him in the days and nights in the times of the prayers. Allah has said, “Believers, worship your Lord, bow down and prostrate yourselves before Him and do virtuous deeds so that perhaps you will have everlasting happiness.” (22:77)

‘This is an obligation that involves the face, hands and legs. In another passage He has said, ‘All the parts of the body to be placed on the ground during prostration belong to Allah. Do not prostrate before anyone other than Him. . . .” (72:18) It was in regards to the obligations upon the parts of the body in the form of purification for prayer that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, made His prophet to change facing the Holy House in Palestine to facing al-Ka’ba. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, revealed this: “Allah did not want to make your previous belief (prayers) worthless; Allah is Compassionate and All-Merciful to people.” (2:143) He has called prayer ‘Belief.’ Therefore, whoever meets Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, perfecting his belief is of the people of paradise. Whoever cheats in any of the obligations or violates the commands of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, will meet Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, with a defective belief.’

“I then asked the Imam, ‘I now understand perfect and defective belief. Where does the increase in belief come from?’ The Imam said, ‘Consider the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, “When a Chapter (of the Quran) is revealed, certain people ask others, ‘Whose belief among you people has received strength from this (revelation)?’ It (the revelation) certainly strengthens the belief of the believers and they consider it to be glad news. (9:124) But to those whose hearts are sick, it adds more filth to their hearts and they die as unbelievers.” (9:125) Allah has said, “. . .We tell you this story for a genuine purpose. They were young people who believed in their Lord and We gave them further guidance.” (18:13)

‘Had belief been the same and without any difference in defects and in perfections no one of them would have had any distinction over the others and the favors would have been equal to all. People had been all equal and excellence would become void. However, with perfection in belief believers enter paradise. By increase in belief the believers excel in degrees before Allah and for the defect in belief the extremists go in fire.’”

Abu Ali al-Ash’ari has narrated from Muhammad ibn ‘Abd al-Jabbar from Safwan or one other than him from al-‘Ala’ from Muhammad ibn Muslim who has said the following:

“Once I asked abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about belief. He said, ‘It is to testify that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah, Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is the Messenger of Allah and to affirm that whatever he (Muhammad) brought is from Allah. That which is established in the hearts through acknowledgement of such facts is belief.’ I then asked, ‘Is it not that the testimony is a deed?’ He said, ‘Yes, it is a deed.’ I then asked, ‘Is the deed of belief?’ He said, ‘Yes, belief does not shape up without deed. The deed is from belief and belief cannot stand firmly without deed.’”

Certain individuals of our people have narrated from Ali ibn ‘Abbas from Ali ibn Maysir from Hammad ibn al-Nusaybi who has said the following:
“A man asked the scholar, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘O scholar, tell me which deed is more virtuous before Allah?’ He said, ‘It is the deed without which Allah does not accept any deed.’ He asked, ‘What is such thing?’ He said, ‘It is belief in Allah (besides Whom no one deserves to be worshipped). It (belief) is the highest in degree among the deeds, the most valuable among them (in virtue) and the topmost among them in reward.’ The man then said, ‘Please, tell me then about belief. Is it deeds or it is words without deeds?’
“The Imam said, ‘All of belief is deeds and parts of such deeds are words. Allah has made it obligatory as is explained in His book. Its light is clear, its evidence well established. The (Holy) book testifies to it for one, and calls one thereto.’ I (the narrator) then asked, ‘Explain it to me so I may understand.’ He (the Imam) said, ‘Belief is of degrees, conditions, levels and stages. Of belief there is that which is perfect and complete in perfection. Of belief there is that which is defective and the defect is clear. Of belief there is that which is heavier on the perfection side.’ The man then asked, ‘Does belief become perfect, decrease and increase?’ He said, ‘Yes, it does.’ The man then asked, ‘How does it happen?’ He said, ‘It is because Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, has written belief for each part of the body of the children of Adam and has divided and distributed it among them. There is no part of the parts but that has a guard of belief that is different from such guard as is assigned to other parts. Of such part is one's heart with which one understands and rationalizes to comprehend, and he is the commander of one's body. It oversees the body and without its opinion no part moves to act. Of the parts of the body are one's hands with which one works, one's legs with which one walks, one's sexual organs from which come carnal desires, one's tongue with which one speaks of the book and testfies thereby, one's eyes with which one sees and one's ears with which one listens.

What is made obligatory for the tongue is different from the obligation of the eyes and what is made obligatory for the eyes is different from what is made obligatory for the ears. What is made obligatory for the ears is different from what is made obligatory for the hands and what is made obligatory for the hands is different from what is made obligatory for the legs. The obligation of the legs is different from the obligations of the sexual organs. What is obligatory for the sexual organs is different from the obligation of the face.

'What is made obligatory for the heart of belief is affirmation, recognition and formation of belief, consent and submission to the fact that no one deserves to be worshipped except Allah Who is One and has no partner. He is the One and only Who deserves to be worshipped. He has not taken any companion and children. Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, is His servant and messenger.'"

Muhammad ibn al-Hassan has narrated from certain individuals of our people from al-Ash'ath ibn Muhammad from Muhammad ibn Hafs ibn Kharija who has said the following:

"I heard abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying - when a man asked him about the words of al-Murji'a, a religious sect, about rejection (disbelief) and belief -, 'They argue against us and say, "Just as to us one who disbelieves is a rejecter of belief, so also is he in the sight of Allah. The same applies to a believer. We find a believer that when he affirms his belief he is a believer in the sight of Allah." He, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, "Glory belongs to Allah. How can these two be equal? Rejection of belief is an affirmation and confession of a servant, and thereafter he is not required to present any witness to prove his case. (On the other hand) belief is a claim, which is not accepted without the testimony of a witness. Witness to prove his case is his deed and intention. If they (deed and intention) agree, a servant is a believer in the sight of Allah. Rejection of belief exists in all the three things; word, deed and intention and rules of law apply to both word and deed. In of favor many persons believers testify to prove them to be believers and the rules of law applicable to believers are applied to them, but in the sight of Allah they are rejecters of belief. In certain conditions one's applying rules of law, applicable to believers, to such unbelievers is also correct according to the apparent condition of his deed and words."""

Advancement in Belief

H 1517, CH 16, h 1

ibn Burayd who has said that abu ‘Amr al-Zubayri who has said the following:
“I asked abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘Are there degrees and stages of belief in which the believers may excel in the sight of Allah?’ He said, ‘Yes, there are.’ I then said, ‘Explain to me, please, may Allah grant you favors, so I can understand.’ The Imam said, ‘Allah has set a contest among the believers like the contest set for horses. He then has given degrees of excellence for those who excel to win. For each contestant there He has set a level and everyone receives (a reward) exactly to the degree he has achieved. Those left behind do not go ahead of those who have advanced forward and have excelled others. Such was the case of the people who lived in the earliest period of the history of this nation and those who lived later. Had there been no distinction for those advanced in belief over those behind, the last of this nation could catch up with those of the earliest times of this nation. This certainly happens if those advancing in belief are given no distinction over those slow in their progress for belief.
‘In fact, by the degrees of belief Allah has given preference to the advancing ones, and due to slow progress in (matters of) belief Allah has left back those with shortcomings in belief. We find that of the believers of the later (generations) there are those who have many more (good) deeds than those of the earlier (generations), more prayer, fasting, Hajj al-Zakat (charity), hard work (Jihad) for the cause of Allah. Were it not for advancing being considered reason for distinction among the believers in the sight of Allah, those of later (generations) would have had superiority over those earlier, due to more deeds. However, Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, abstains from allowing the last, in degrees of belief, to reach the first and forward ones. It amounts to forwarding those whom Allah has made to be the last, and throwing back those whom Allah has made to be forward.
‘I then said, “Tell me about Allah’s call on the believers to advance in belief.” The Imam said, ‘It is in the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, “Compete with one another to achieve forgiveness from your Lord and to reach paradise, which is as vast as the heavens and the earth, and is prepared for those who believe in Allah and His Messenger. . . .” (58:21) Allah has said, “(The foremost ones) will be the nearest ones to Allah.” (56:11) Allah has said, “Allah is well pleased with the foremost ones of those who left their homes for the cause of Allah, those who helped them after their arrival in Medina and those who nobly followed these two groups. . . .” (9:100)
‘He (Allah) has begun with the first immigrants according to the degree of their advancing. He then has spoken of the Ansars (first Muslims of Madina) and thirdly He has spoken of the second generation who followed them in good deeds. He has placed each group according to their degrees and stages in the sight of Allah. Thereafter Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has mentioned the degrees of His friends (messengers) of whom there are those who excel over the others. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, “We gave certain ones of Our Messengers preference over others. To others of them Allah spoke and He raised the rank of a number of them. . . .” (2:253)
‘Allah has said, “We have given preference to certain prophets over others and We gave the psalms to David.” (17:55) Allah has said, “Consider how We have given preference to certain people above others, yet the life to come has more honor and respect.” (17:21) Allah has said, “People are of various grades in the sight of Allah. . . .” (3:163) Allah has said, “He (Allah) will reward everyone according to his merits.” (11:3) Allah has said,

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn abu 'Abd Allah from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from 'Ammar ibn abu al-Ahwas from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, made belief in seven shares: virtue, truthfulness, certainty, compliance, loyalty, knowledge and forbearance. He then distributed it among the people. Whoever received all seven shares is perfect and heavy. He has given to certain people one share or two or three and so on up to seven.' The Imam then said, 'Do not expect two shares from those who have been given one share or three from those who have received two shares lest you overburden them, and so on up to seven,' he added."

Abu Ali al-Ash'ari has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Abd al-Jabbar from Muhammad ibn Yahya from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa all from ibn Faddal from al-Hassan ibn al-Jahm from abu al-Yaqzan from Ya'qub ibn al-Dahhak from a man of our people, Sarraj who was a servant of abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said the following:
" Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, once sent me with a group of his followers for an errand and at that time he was in Hirah (a place near Kufa, Iraq). We left for it and returned depressed. My bed was in al-Ha'ir (a comfortable private quarter). I went there in an upset condition and threw myself thereat. At this time abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, came in saying, 'We have come to see you,' or he said, 'We have come to you.' I then sat up straight and he sat in the middle of my bed and asked me about the errand for which he had sent me. I reported to him and he thanked Allah. Thereafter, a mention of certain people came up and I said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, we disassociate from these people; they do not say what we say.' The Imam then said, 'If they love and support us, but do not say what you say, do you (still) disassociate from them?' I then said, 'Yes, we do so.'

"The Imam said, 'It is just like this ('A'immah's case). We have what you do not have. Should we disassociate from you?' I then said, 'No, may Allah keep my soul in service for your cause.' The Imam said, 'It is just like this (the case of Allah). With Him there is what we do not have. Do you think we should give it up?'

"I then said, 'No, may Allah keep my soul in service for your cause. We should not do so.' The Imam said, 'Be friends with them and do not disassociate from them. Among the Muslims there are those who have only one share, those who have two shares, three shares, four shares, five shares, six shares and those who have seven shares. It is not proper for those who have one share to blame those who have two shares, or those who have two shares to blame those who have three shares, those who have three shares to blame those who have four shares, those who have four shares to blame those who have five shares, those who have five shares to blame those who have six shares and those who have six shares to blame those who have seven shares. I will give an example:

"A man had a Christian neighbor to whom he preached Islam attractively and the neighbor accepted. It was early next morning when he knocked at his (convert's) door. He said, 'Who is it?' He (the preacher) said, 'I am so and so.' 'What do you want?' the (convert) said. 'Make Wuzu, dress up in your two cloths and join us for prayer,' said the preacher. The new convert then made Wuzu, dressed up in his two pieces of cloth and joined him. They performed prayers a great deal. Then they prayed the morning-prayer, then waited until it was light. The convert got up to go home and the man asked him, 'Where are you going? The day is short. The time left to noontime is very little.' The new convert sat down with him until noontime and they prayed the noontime prayer. Then he said that there is very little time to afternoon prayer. He prevented the new convert from going home until they said the afternoon prayer. He then wanted to go home but he (the preacher) said, 'It is the last part of the day and is less than the beginning of it.' So he (the preacher) stopped him until they performed the prayer at sunset. Then the new convert wanted to go home, he (the preacher) said, 'Only one more prayer is left.' He then waited until they performed the late evening prayer and then they departed each other. Next early morning he (the preacher) went and knocked at the door of the new convert. He (the new convert) asked, 'Who is it?' He (the preacher) said, 'I am so and so.' He (the new convert) asked, 'What do you want?' He (the preacher) said, 'Make Wuzu, dress up in your two pieces of cloth and join us for prayer.' He (the Christian man) said, 'Find other persons for this religion who have more free time. I am a poor person with a family to feed.'

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, 'He (the preacher) took him (Christian) into a thing in such a way that it took him (the new convert) out of it. Or that the Imam said, 'Took him in like this and forced him out like that.'"

ibn ‘Umar from Yahya ibn Aban from Shihab who has said the following:
“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, ‘Had the people known how Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, has created this creation no one would blame others.’ I then said, ‘May Allah grant you well being, how is that?’ The Imam said, ‘Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, created parts numbering ninety-four parts. He then made them into tenths; thus, He made one part into ten parts. He then distributed them among the creatures. In one man He placed one tenth, in another person He placed two tenths until there came a man in whom He place a whole part. In another He placed one part and one tenth, in another person one part and two tenths and in another one part and three tenths up to a man in whom He placed two whole parts and so on up to the highest one in whom He placed ninety-four whole parts. Therefore, one in whom only one tenth of a part is placed cannot be like the one in whom two tenths are placed. The one in whom two tenths of a part are placed cannot be like the one in whom three tenths are placed. So also the owner of one part cannot be like the owner of two whole parts. Had the people known that Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, has created them in this way no one would have blamed the others.’”

One who possesses two degrees of belief should never say to one who possesses only one degree that he does not have enough belief and so on up to the tenth degree or stage. One who is higher should not throw back the one below because the one above you may also fall. If you see one below, you should help him climb up higher gently and do not burden him with what he cannot lift up; he may break down and if one breaks down a believer, he will be held responsible for compensation to him.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Muhammad ibn Sinan from ibn Muskan from Sadir who has said the following:
“Abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to me,’Believers are of various positions in connection with belief. There are those who have one degree of belief, others have two degrees, still others may have three or four, five, six or seven degrees of belief. If you expect two degrees of belief from one who has only one degree of belief he is not able to bear it, or expect three degrees of belief from the one who has only two degrees of it he also is not able to bear it. Description of Islam

بَابُ نِسْبَةِ الإِسْلَامِ

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from certain individuals of our people in a marfu' manner from Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib) who has said the following:
"I will describe Islam in a way that no one could have done before or would do after me except just as my description: 'Islam is submission and submission is certainty. Certainty is affirmation (and confirmation). Affirmation is professing. Professing is action. Action and deeds are completion and remittance. A believer does not take his religion from his own personal opinion. It comes from his Lord and he accepts it. A believer finds his certainty in his deeds. An unbeliever finds his rejection in his deeds. I swear by the One in whose hands is my soul, they did not recognize their goal. Take a lesson from the case of the filthy deeds of the unbelievers and the hypocrites.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from Jamil ibn Salih from 'Abd al-Malik ibn Ghalib from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"A believer should have eight qualities. He is dignified in turbulent times. He is patient in afflicting conditions. He is thankful in prosperous life. He is content with what Allah has granted him. He does not do injustice to the enemies. He does not overburden friends. His own body is tired due to his efforts and people are comfortable with him. Knowledge is a friend of the believer, forbearance is his secretary, reason is the commander-in-chief of his army, kindness is his brother and virtuous deed is his father."

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from al-Nawfali form al-Sakuni from abu 'Abd Allah from his father, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Belief has four corner (stones): They are trust in Allah, having Allah as the person in charge of one's affairs, to agree with the decision of Allah and to submit to the command of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from his father from those whom he has mentioned from Muhammad ibn 'Abd al-Rahman ibn abu Layla from his father from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"You will not become virtuous until you learn, you will not learn until you affirm and you will not affirm until you accept four Chapters, the first of which will be of no benefit without the last one. People of three Chapters have strayed far away. Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, does not accept anything but virtuous deeds and Allah does not accept (anything) without loyalty in keeping up with one's stipulations and covenants. Whoever fulfils his stipulations toward Allah and completes whatever is in one's covenant, he will find (the reward that is) with Him and He will fulfill His promise. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has informed the people of the ways of guidance and has established for it the lighthouse. He has informed them how to behave, saying, 'I am All-forgiving to the righteously striving believers who repent and follow the right guidance.' (20:82) Allah has also said, 'Allah accepts only the offerings of the pious ones.' (5:27)
"Whoever maintains piety before Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, in the matter of His commands he will come in the presence of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, as a believer in whatever Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has brought from Him. How remote, far away and lost are the people who have died before achieving guidance, and had thought that they were believers. They had considered things as partners of Allah without knowing what they had done. Whoever comes to a house through its door finds proper guidance, and whoever looks for a way other than the door has chosen a condemned path. Allah has joined obedience to His Messenger with obedience to those who possess Divine Authority and the obedience to His Messenger with obedience to His own commands. Therefore, whoever does not obey the people who possess Divine Authority, they have not obeyed Allah and His Messenger and it (obedience to people who possess Divine Authority) is the affirmation of what has come from Allah. Dress up (in piety) before every Mosque. Find the houses through the doors to them, the houses for which Allah has granted permission to be raised high, wherein people speak of Him. He has informed you that in these houses there are men who do not become distracted because of trade and business from speaking of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, from prayer and paying al-Zakat (charity). These men fear the Day wherein the hearts and eyes undergo turbulent conditions. Allah chose and purified the messengers for His command, then He purified and chose them (people who possess Divine Authority) who are confirmed in His warnings. Allah has said, 'No nation who lived before was left without a Warner. . . .' (35:25)

"Lost are those who remained ignorant and guided are those who thought and understood. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, 'It is not their seeing ability that is blind but it is their hearts which are in their chests.' (22:46)

"How can one who does not think find guidance? How can one who has not received warnings think? Follow the Messenger of Allah, affirm whatever has come from Allah, follow the marks of guidance; they are the signs of trust and piety. You must know that if a man rejects Jesus Christ and acknowledges all the other messengers of Allah, he is not a believer. Find the way through finding the lighthouse and look for the marks from behind the curtains. Strive to perfect the affairs of your religion and believe in Allah your Lord.'"

It is narrated from him from his father from Sulayman al-Ja'fary from abu al-Hassan al-Rida from his father, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"A people came to the Messenger of Allah during one of the armed expeditions and he asked who are these people? They said, 'Believers, O Messenger of Allah.' He then asked, 'What is the degree of your belief?' They replied, 'It is patience in hardships, thankfulness in prosperous life and agreement with the decision of Allah.' The Messenger of Allah then said, 'These are forbearing and knowledgeable people. Their understanding is almost to the degree of the prophets. If you really are what you say you are, do not build what you will not use for dwelling, do not accumulate what you will not eat and be pious before Allah to whom you will return.'" people. Others have narrated that ibn al-Kawwa asked Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, to describe Islam, belief, rejection and hypocrisy. He then said, '(First I express my thanks to and praise of Allah), thereafter (I must say that) Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, established Islam and made its paths clear for the people coming in Islam. He gave strength to its corners against the enemies. He made it (to be a source of) dignity for those who love it, peace for those who enter therein, guidance for those who follow it, beauty for those who glorify it, protection for those who accept it, a stronghold for those who seek security, a rope for those who like to hold on to it, solid proof for those who speak from it, light for those who search for brightness, a rescuer for those who cry for help, a witness for those who fight for it, success for those who argue by the facts therein, knowledge for those who imbibe it, good report for those who narrate it, judgment for those who take it as the source of decrees, forbearance for those who experience it, a dress for those who contemplate on it, understanding for those who find good points in it, certainty for those who reason with it, insight for those who make a decision, a sign for those who take it as landmark, a good lesson for those who look for good lessons, salvation for those who affirm it, serenity for those who reform, success for those who come close to it, confidence for those who trust it, ease for those who make it the factor-in-charge of thier affairs, advancement for those who do it well, goodness for those who come to it fast, a shield for those who bear patience, dressing for those who observe piety, a supporter for those who take it as a guide, a cave of protection for those who seek safety, peace and comfort for those who accept it, hope for those who believe it and self-sufficiency for those who are content. That is the truth. Its path is guidance, its narratives are honorable and its description is goodness. Its system is clear, its lighthouse shines, its lamp is clean and bright, its aims are high, its training is easy and its advancing is a great deal. Its advancing is quick and its disciplining painful. Its assets are sufficient and its staff honorable. Belief is its system, virtuous deeds are its lighthouse, laws and understanding are the sources of its light, the world is its arena and death is its end, the hereafter its reward, paradise its finish line, hell its resentment, piety its supplies and people of good deeds its soldiers. Through belief good deeds are found, with good deeds good understanding is achieved and with good understanding fear for death is felt and with death the world ends. With the world one reaches the Day of Judgment. On the Day of Judgment paradise is bedecked. Paradise is (the cause of) regret for people of hell. Hell is a good lesson for the pious people and piety is the foundation of belief."

Chapter Twenty One

Description of Belief

H 1533, CH 21, h 1

Through the same chain of narrators as the above Hadith it is narrated from ibn Mahbub from Ya'qub al-Sarraj from Jabir from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, was asked about belief and he said, 'Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, made belief upon four pillars: 'Patience, Certainty, Justice and Jihad (hard work for the cause of Allah).

‘The Patience therein has four branches: nostalgia, fear, restraint and vigilance. One who has a longing for paradise forgets the worldly desires. One who has fear of hell abstains from unlawful things. One who exercises restraint in worldly matters the worldly hardships become easier for him, and one who is vigilant of death hastens to good deeds.
‘The Certainty therein is also of four branches. They consist of sharp understanding, proper application of wisdom, recognizing good lessons and knowledge of the traditions of the people of the past. One who possesses sharp understanding recognizes the matters of wisdom. One who applies wisdom properly recognizes the good lessons, and one who recognizes the good lessons recognizes the traditions, and one who recognizes traditions is like the one who has lived with the people of the past and has found proper and firm guidance. He has seen who found salvation and by what means they found. He has also seen those who were destroyed and things that destroyed them. Allah destroys only those who disobey Him and grants salvation for ones obedience to His commands.
‘The Justice therein is also of four branches. It is a matter of deep understanding, a huge body of knowledge, the bloom of wisdom and the garden of forbearance. One who has deep understanding has the ability to interpret all knowledge. One who has a huge body of knowledge knows the ways of wisdom, and one who is forbearing is not an extremist in his decrees and lives among the people with a good name.
‘The Jihad (hard work for the cause of Allah) therein, is also of four branches. They consist of helping others to perform their duties and to stay away from that which is prohibited, to speak the truth whenever needed and to shun sins and sinners. One who helps others to perform their duties has supported the believer. One who helps stop others from sinning has humiliated the hypocrites and has thwarted their wicked plans. One who speaks the truth at the right time, his is the winning side. One who shuns the sinners has used anger for Allah. One who becomes angry for Allah, Allah becomes angry for him. Such is belief, its pillars and branches.’”

Superiority of Belief over Islam and Certainty over Belief

They said, ‘Salute to you O Messenger of Allah.’ He asked, ‘Who are you?’ They replied, ‘We are believers, O Messenger of Allah.’ He then asked, ‘What is the essence of your belief?’ They replied, ‘It is to agree with the decision of Allah, allow Him be the person in charge of one’s affairs and submit to the command of Allah.’ The Messenger of Allah said, ‘They are scholars and people of wisdom who for their wisdom can almost be prophets. If what you say is true then do not build that which you do not use as dwelling, do not accumulate what you do not eat and be pious before Allah to whom you will return.’”

“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, ‘Once the Messenger of Allah after leading the morningprayer for the people looked at a young man in the Mosque whose head hung down. He looked pale and slim and his eyes sunk into his head. The Messenger of Allah asked, ‘O so and so, how is your morning?’ He (the young man) replied, ‘This morning, I, O Messenger of Allah, am in a condition of certainty. The messenger of Allah admired him for his words and he said, ‘For everything there is an essence. What is the essence of your certainty?’ The young man said, ‘My certainty, O Messenger of Allah, is that which has made me depressed. It has kept me awake all night and to endure thirst during the day. My soul is withdrawn from the world and the things in it, so much so, as if I am looking at the Throne of my Lord that is established to call everyone to Judgment, all creatures are resurrected and I am among them. It is as if I am looking at the people of paradise who enjoy therein being introduced to each other while leaning against raised couches. It is also as if I am looking at the people of hell wherein they suffer and cry for help. Right now, it is as if I hear the roaring of the fire. It is striking against my ears.’ The Messenger of Allah said to his companions, ‘This is a servant of Allah whose heart He has brightened up with belief.’ He (the Messenger of Allah) said to him (the young man), ‘Keep up with what you are in (condition of your belief).’ The young man said, ‘Pray to Allah for me, O Messenger of Allah, to grant me martyrdom (while working hard in support of your cause) along with you.’ The Messenger of Allah prayed for him. Not very long thereafter he joined the prophet in an armed expedition and he was the tenth man to become a martyr.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from al-Hatham ibn abu Masruq from Yazid ibn Ishaq Sha’ar from al-Husayn ibn al-‘Atiyah from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Noble (human) qualities are ten. If you can establish all of them so be it. Such qualities may be found in a man but may not be found in his children. They may be found in the children but not in the father. At times they are found in a slave person but not in a free one.’ It was asked, ‘What are these noble qualities?’ The Imam said they are: ‘Losing all hope in the true sense for receiving help from anyone other than Allah, truthfulness of tongue, returning the trust (safely), maintaining good relations with relatives, entertaining guests, feeding the needy, making up for favors in a proper corresponding manner, keeping up with one’s responsibilities toward the neighbors and with one’s companion, and the head of such qualities is bashfulness.’”

“Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, chose His messengers for noble moral (human) qualities. You must test yourselves. If you find the noble qualities in you then be thankful to Allah and understand that it is of goodness. If you do not find them in you, then pray to Allah to grant them to you and show Him that you are interested in having them. The narrator has said that the Imam counted the noble qualities up to ten: They consist of Certainty, Contentment, Patience, Thankfulness, Forbearance, Good Moral Behavior, Generosity, Dignity, Bravery and Kindness.
“Certain narrators have listed other qualities after the above-mentioned ones and have added to them Truthfulness and Keeping Trust.”

Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has chosen the prophets for noble moral (human) qualities. Whoever has them (noble qualities) should be thankful to Allah. Whoever does not have them he must pray humbly to Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, and request Him to grant them to him.
“I (the narrator) then said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, what are the noble qualities?’
“The Imam said, ‘They consist of restraint from indulging in worldly matters, to be content, to bear patience, to be thankful, to be forbearing, to be bashful, to be generous, to have dignity, to be virtuous, to be truthful in one’s words and to be trustworthy.’” of the greedy ones and is not pushed back due to the dislike of those who dislike. Even if one of you may run away from his share of sustenance just as one runs away from death, still his share of sustenance reaches him just as death one day will reach him.' Certain people asked him not to sit near the defective wall. Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'This is like a man's guarding his death,' (Imam's expression shows such guarding is useless). Underneath the wall there was a treasure that belonged to them. . . .' (18:82)

"The Imam said, 'It is a fact that the treasure did not consist of gold and silver. It consisted of four words: "No one deserves to be worshipped except I (Allah). Whoever has realized with certainty that death is inevitable has enough reason not to laugh for a year. Whoever has realized with certainty that accountability on the Day of Judgment is true has enough reason for his heart not to rest in ease. Whoever has realized with certainty that Allah does everything with strict measurements has enough reason not to fear anyone except Allah."'"

Strange to me is the case of a person who is certain of the strict measurement of Allah but he feels depressed. Strange to me is the case of a person who is aware of all the up and down in the world with its inhabitants but he still relies on it. If I allow him to do the way he wants to worship, he may develop a sense of conceit (unwanted pride) that can lead him to mischief in his deeds. This may bring about his destruction. It can so happen due to his happiness with whatever his soul desires. He may begin to feel as if he has excelled all worshippers and has surpassed the limits of defective worship. Abu Ali al-Ash'ari has narrated from ibn 'Abd al-Jabbar from ibn Mahbub from abu Hafs al-'Asha' from Ámr ibn Khalid from abu Hamza al-Thumali from Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Once I walked out till I reached this wall and I leaned against it. At that time a man wearing only two pieces of white cloth was looking toward my face. He then said, 'O, Ali son of al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, you look very sad, as if you have suffered a great deal. Is it because of worldly things wherein the sustenance from Allah is available for all the good and bad people?' I said, 'I am not sad because of the worldly things; they are just as you said.' He asked, 'Is it then for the matters of the life hereafter, for which the promises will all come true? The Judge therein will be the forceful ruler,' or he said, 'Powerful ruler?' I said, 'This also is not the reason; it is just as you said it is.' He then asked, 'Why are you then so sad?' I said, 'It is because of the mischief of ibn Zubayr and the conditions of the people.' The Imam said, 'He then laughed and said, 'O Ali son of al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, have you ever come to know of anyone who prayed and Allah did not listen to his prayer?' I said, 'No, I have not known anyone as such.' He then said, 'Have you come to know of anyone who trusted Allah and He did not protect him?' I said, 'No (I have not found any such person).' He then asked, 'Have you come to know of anyone who asked Allah and he was not given anything?' I said, 'No (I have not found anyone as such).'
"The Imam said, 'The man then disappeared from my sight."
Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn Mahbub a similar Hadith.

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from ibn Mahbub from 'Abd Allah ibn Sinan from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Any servan (of Allah) who comes forward to accept what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, loves, Allah comes forward with what he (the servant) loves. Whoever seeks protection with Allah, He protects him. To whoever's rescue Allah comes He will protect him even if the skies were to fall on earth or an incident involving all the inhabitants of earth were to befall them, but the person under the protection of Allah would be among the members of the party of Allah, well guarded against all misfortunes. Is it not that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, says, 'The pious people live in a peaceful place?'" (44:51)

"I asked abu al-Hassan 1st, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy: 'Whoever trusts Allah, He is enough protection against all (harms).' (65:3)

"The Imam said, 'Trust in Allah is of several degrees. One level of such trust is to trust Him in all matters. Whatever He does, you must remain happy and agree with His decision, knowing that He does not keep anything good and excellent from you and that the decision in the matter is in His hands. You then must leave all the affairs to Allah to be the person in charge (of all affairs) and have confidence in Him in this and other issues.'"

"I was at Yanbu' with Musa ibn 'Abd Allah. My supplies for my expenses were exhausted during certain journeys. A certain person of the children of al-Husayn asked me, 'Whose assistence do you hope will help out overcome your difficult conditions?' I said, 'Musa ibn 'Abd Allah will provide for my expenses.' He then said, 'He, therefore, will not provide you any help, and you will not succeed in your quest.' I then asked, 'Why it will be as such?' He said, 'It is because I have found in certain books of my ancestors that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, ". . . He mentioned a Hadith similar to the previous Hadith."' I then said, 'O descendent of the Messenger of Allah, dictate it to me.' He dictated it to me and I said, 'I swear by Allah that I will not ask him (Musa ibn 'Abd Allah) to help me.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn Hadid from Mansur ibn Yunus from al-Harith ibn al-Mughira or his father who has said the following:
"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'What did the will of Luqman (the person mentioned in Chapter 31 of the Holy Quran) contain?' The Imam said, 'It contained amazing things and the most amazing one was what he said to his son, "My son, be pious before Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, such that even if you come into His presence with the good deeds of all man and Jinn, Thaqilayn, you will still fear His punishment. On the other hand your hope in Him must be so great that even if you come into His presence with all the sins of all man and Jinn, Thaqilayn, you will still be hopeful for His kindness and mercy."'

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, ‘My father has said, “There is no believing servant of Allah without the presence of two lights in his heart. There is the light of hope and the light of fear. They are such that on weighing, no one exceeds the other in any way (in lightness or heaviness).”’”

Muhammad ibn al-Hassan has narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from Yahya ibn al-Mubarak from ‘Abd Allah ibn Jabala from Ishaq ibn ‘Ammar who has said the following:

“Once abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, ‘O Ishaq, have fear of Allah as if you see Him. Even if you do not see Him He sees you. If you think that He does not see you, you have certainly rejected belief. If you believe that He sees you and you disobey Him you have considered Him as the most insignificant observer.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from al-Hatham ibn Waqid who has said the following:

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn abu ‘Abd Allah from his father from Hamza ibn ‘Abd Allah al-Ja‘ fary from Jamil ibn Darraj from abu Hamza who has said the following:

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from ibn abu al-Najran from those whom he has mentioned and who has said the following:

“Once I said to abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘Certain people commit sins and say that they hope. They continue until their death arrives.’ The Imam said, ‘Such people have strayed away in hopes. They lie and they do not have any hope. Whoever hopes to have something, he tries to find it. Ali ibn Muhammad has also narrated the above Hadith in a mafu’ manner from who has said the following:

“I said to abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘Certain people of your supporters commit smaller sins and say that they have hope (in Allah’s forgiveness).’ The Imam said, ‘They lie. They are not our supporters. They are a people whose hope has caused them to deviate. Whoever has hope in something, he works to achieve it. Whoever is afraid of something, he keeps away from it.’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from al-Hassan ibn al-Husayn from Muhammad ibn Sinan from abu Sa'id al-Makari from abu Hamza al-Thumali from Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"A man once set sail with his people and suffered a shipwreck. Everyone on board died except his wife who clung to a board and landed on an island where there lived a robber who had left no instance of disobedience to Allah but had committed them all. Without knowing anything about the shipwreck he found the woman standing over his head. He raised his head and asked her, 'Are you a human being or a Jinni?' She replied, 'I am a human being.' He then did not say any other word but began to behave like a husband. When he advanced for a carnal relation she panicked. He asked, 'Why have you panicked?' She said, 'I am afraid of this, pointing to the heavens.' He then asked, 'Have you done any such thing wrong against Him?' She said, 'No, I swear by His Glory that I have not done any such thing against Him.' He then said, 'You fear Him this much when you have done nothing against Him and it is only I that force you into this. In fact, I swear by Allah, I am the one who must be afraid of Him more so than you are.' The robber then moved away without speaking a word and went back to his family. He then had no other aim but to repent and return to Allah. Once as he was walking on the road, a monk joined him walking in the same direction. The day was hot and the monk suggested that they should pray to Allah to send them a piece of cloud to provide shade against the hot sun. The young man (once a robber) said, 'I do not think I have any good deed with my Lord so I dare not pray to Him.' The monk said, 'I pray and you say, Amen.' He agreed and the monk began to pray and the young man said the Amen part. Quickly a piece of cloud appeared and provided them a shadow. They walked comfortably under the shadow against the sun. The road then divided and the young man walked in one road and the monk in the other one. The shadow went along over the young man. The monk said, 'You are better than me. The prayer was accepted because of you, not because of me. Now tell me what is your story?' The young man told him the story of the woman. The monk said, 'Your sins of the past are forgiven because of fear that entered in your heart. Pay proper attention to your future behaviors.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn al-Nu'man from Hamza ibn Humran who has said the following:

"I heard abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'Of the preserved speeches of the Holy Prophet one is his words as follows: "O people, for you there are the sources of knowledge. You must reach out to them. For you there are the end goals and you must reach them. You must know that a believer works between two frightening facts. On one side is the time that has passed and he does not know what Allah has done about it, and on the other is the time to come that he does not know how Allah will decide about. The believing servant (of Allah) must take from hisown soul for hisown soul and from his worldly life for his hereafter, during his youth before his getting old and in his lifetime before his death. I swear by the One in whose hand is the soul of Muhammad that after the worldly life there will be no chance to please anyone and there will be no other home except paradise or hell.'"

They cannot receive My grace and bounties in My paradise and high ranks near Me without My kindness. They must rely on My kindness, hope for My additional rewards, be comfortable in their hopefulness about Me. Ibn Mahbub has narrated from Jamil ibn Salih from Burayd ibn Mu'awiyah from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"We have found in the book of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, that the Messenger of Allah said from the pulpit, 'I swear by the One besides Whom no one else deserves to be worshipped, a believer never receives any good in this life and in the hereafter, except because of his hopefulness toward Allah, his confidence in Allah, his good moral behavior and his abstaining from backbiting the believers. I swear by the One besides Whom no one else deserves to be worshipped, Allah does not punish a believer after his repenting and asking forgiveness except because of his despair toward Allah, his shortcoming in his hope from Allah, his bad moral behaviors and his backbiting of the believers. I swear by the One besides Whom no one else deserves to be worshipped that, hope of a believer does not exist without Allah running his affairs according to the hopeful intentions of the believer. It is because nobility is of the attributes of Allah; in His hand is all good, and He considers Himself indebted toward His believing servants, who are hopeful about Him, not to allow their hope remain fruitless. Therefore, be hopeful about Allah and be interested with Him.'"

"You should say very often, 'O Lord, do not include me among those whose beliefs are temporary and do not make me feel free of shortcomings.' I (the narrator) then asked, 'I know the meaning of people whose beliefs are temporary. They come into a religion and then abandon it. What is the meaning of, "Do not make me feel free of shortcomings?"' The Imam said, 'It is when after all the worship of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, that you may do, you still think that you are falling far short of doing true worship. All people fall far short in their worshipping Allah truly except those to whom Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has granted protection.'"

Everything that may take you closer to hell and farther away from paradise I have prohibited you to do. You must know that the trusted spirit has inspired me that no soul dies before his supply of sustenance is completely exhausted. Be pious before Allah and do your best in search of means of sustenance. from Jabir from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"O Jabir, do people think just claiming to be our Shi'a and saying they love us (Ahl al-Bayt) is enough for their salvation? I swear by Allah, of our Shi'a are only those who are pious before Allah and obey Him. No one, O Jabir, would know them except by their humbleness, submissiveness, trustworthiness, their speaking frequently of Allah, fasting, prayer, virtuous deeds toward parents, good relations with neighbors, the needy, the destitute, the heavily indebted, the orphans, by their truthfulness, recitation of the Holy Quran, and restraining of their tongues except for the good of the people and their being trusted among the people of their tribe in all things. I (Jabir) then said, 'O descendent of the Messenger of Allah, today we do not find anyone with such qualities.' The Imam said, 'O Jabir, do not allow (false) religions confuse you. One should not think, since he loves Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and supports him, thereafter he does not have to be active in anything. If one says he loves the Messenger of Allah who is better than Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, but does not follow his way of life or practice his tradition, his love as such is of no benefit for him. You must be pious before Allah and work to achieve things that exist with Allah. There is no family relation between one and Allah. The most beloved one to Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, is the most noble before Him, the most pious ones before Him and the most obedient ones to Him. O Jabir, I swear by Allah, nothing helps one to become nearer to Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, except obedience to Him. There is no immunity from hell and no one possesses any authority over Allah. Only those who obey Allah, they are our supporters. Whoever is disobedient to Allah, is our enemy. Our guardianship applies only to those who do good deeds and maintain restraint over their desires for worldly things.'"

"On the Day of Judgment certain people raise their necks, approach the door of paradise and knock on it. They then will be asked, 'Who are you?' They will say, 'We are the people of patience.' They will then be asked, 'In what matters did you exercise patience?' They will answer, 'We exercised patience in obeying Allah and against disobedience to Allah.' Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, will say, 'They have spoken the truth, allow them to enter into paradise.' This is in the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, 'It is those who exercise patience that receive their reward without being asked to clear any accounts.'" (39:10)

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'O the community of Shi'a, Shi'a of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, be the central support so that both al-Ghali and al-Tali refer to you.' A man from Ansar (people of Madina) called Sa'd, said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, what is the meaning of al-Ghali?' The Imam said, 'They are the people who say about us what we do not say about ourselves. Thus, they are not of our people and we are not of their people.' The man then asked, 'Who are al-Tali?' The Imam said, 'They are those who search for good. They receive good instructions (from our Shi'a) and are rewarded for it.' The Imam then turned to us and said, 'I swear by Allah that we do not possess any amnesty from Allah and there is no family relation between Allah and us nor do we possess any authority over Allah. We do not seek nearness to Allah through any other means but obedience to Him. Whoever of you is obedient to Allah it (our guardianship, Wilayah) will benefit him, and whoever of you is disobedient to Allah our guardianship, Wilayah, will not benefit him. "Once I was in the presence of abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant. We spoke about deeds and I said, 'My deeds are the weakest.' The Imam said, 'Calm down. Ask forgiveness from Allah.' Then the Imam said to me, 'A little deed with piety is better than a great deal of deeds without piety.' I then asked, 'Can there be a great deal of deeds without piety?' The Imam said, 'Yes, it is true. It is like a man who feeds people, who is kind to his neighbors and entertains people at his home, but when a door to unlawful matters opens he enters such a door. Such are deeds without piety. There can be another person who does not have such deeds but when a door to unlawful matters opens he does not enter into such doors.'"

Chapter Forty Three Patience

H 1679, CH 43, h 1
A number of our people have narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from Ali ibn Ri’ab from ibn abu Ya’fur from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Patience is the head of belief.”

H 1680, CH 43, h 2
Abu Ali al-Ash’ari has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Muhammad ibn Sinan from al-‘Ala’ ibn Fudayl from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Patience is to belief as the head is to the body. If the head is gone the body is also destroyed. So also, if patience is vanished belief also goes away and is no more.’”

H 1681, CH 43, h 3
Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Ali ibn Muhammad al-Qasani all from al-Qasim ibn Muhammad al-Asbahani from Sulayman ibn Dawud al-Minqari from Hafs ibn Ghiyath who has said the following:
“Once abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, ‘O Hafs, whoever exercises patience does so only for a short time, and whoever expresses impatience, he does so only for a short time.’
“The Imam then said, ‘You must exercise patience in all of your affairs. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, sent Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and commanded him to exercise patience and kindness and said, “Bear patiently whatever they say, do not yield to them and distance them gracefully (73:10). Leave the prosperous disbelievers to Me. . . .” (73:11)
‘Allah, the Most Holy, the Most High, has also said, “Virtue and evil are not equal. If you respond (to evil acts) by virtuous ones, you will certainly find that your enemies will become your intimate friends (41:34). Only those who exercise patience and who have been granted a great share of Allah's favor can find such an opportunity.” (41:35) The Messenger of Allah exercised patience in suffering and hardships even when they (pagans) attacked him with bones (of large animals). He became very depressed, and Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, revealed to him, “We certainly know that you feel sad about what they say against you (15:97). Glorify and praise your Lord and be with those who prostrate themselves before Allah.” (15:98) They (pagans) rejected his message and caused him physical suffering so he became depressed. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, sent him these words, “We certainly know that you (Muhammad) are sad about what they (the unbelievers) say. It is not you (alone) who has been accused of lying. The unjust have always rejected Allah's revelations. (6:33) The Messengers who lived before you were also accused of lying, but they exercised patience. They were cruelly persecuted before We gave them victory. . . .” (6:34) The Holy Prophet held to patience firmly and they (pagans) spoke of Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, and called His words as lies. The Messenger of Allah said, “I remained patient about myself, my family and my honor, but I cannot remain quiet when they speak ill of my Lord.” Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, revealed to him these words, “We created the heavens, the earth and all that is between them in six days without experiencing any fatigue (50:38). (Muhammad), exercise patience against what they say. . . .” (50:39) The Holy Prophet thereafter exercised patience in all matters and then he was given the good news of Imamat (Divine Authority) given to his descendents who were described as (people) exercising patience. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, “We appointed from them as 'A'immah (leaders) for their exercising patience to guide the others to Our commands. They had firm belief in Our revelations.” (32:24)

‘Thereupon the Messenger of Allah said, “Patience is to belief as is the head to the body.” Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, appreciated this and He, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, revealed these words: “Thus, the promises of your Lord to the children of Israel all came true because of the patience which they exercised. He destroyed all the establishments of the Pharaoh and his people.” (7:137) The Messenger of Allah said, “This is good news and compensation.” Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, then made it lawful for him to fight the pagans. Allah then revealed these words, “Slay the pagans wherever you find them. Capture, besiege and watch out for them. If they repent, perform prayers and pay the religious tax, set them free. Allah is Allforgiving and All-Merciful.” (9:5). “Then slay them for it is the recompense that the disbelievers deserve.” (2:191)

‘Allah caused them to be killed by the (forces) of the Messenger of Allah and his friends, and made it a reward for his exercising patience in addition to the rewards reserved for him in the next life. Whoever exercises patience nobly will not leave this world before Allah grants him delight to his heart in the matters of his enemies, in addition to the reward that is reserved for him in the next life.’”

“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, ‘A free person is free in all conditions. Even if hardships strike him he exercises patience, if afflictions batter him he does not break down even if he is taken as a captive and is overpowered and his comfort and prosperity are changed into poverty and hardships, just as in the case of Yusuf (Joseph) the truthful and trustworthy one (may Allah grant him blessings), whose freedom remained unaffected even though he was enslaved, taken as a captive and overpowered. The darkness and loneliness of the well did not harm him, nor did all that he went through until Allah granted him favors. He made the insolent tyrant into a slave for him after his being his king. He set him free and made a whole nation to be kind to him. This is how patience yields goodness. You must exercise patience and settle your soul upon patience and you will, certainly, be rewarded.’”

“The Imam said, ‘Yes, there is a limit.’ I then asked, ‘What is that limit?’ The Imam said, ‘One must thank Allah for every favor that He has done, such as family and properties. If on the property one has received there is a certain right it must be paid off as is mentioned in the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, quoting certain people, “Glory belongs to Him who has made it subservient to us when we were not able to do so ourselves.” (43:13) He, the Most High, has also said quoting certain people, “Lord, grant us a blessed landing from the Ark; You are the One who provides the safest landing” (23:29). Allah has also said, “(Muhammad), say, ‘Lord, make me enter through a path that will lead to the Truth and come out of an exit that will take me to the Truth. Grant me supportive authority.’”” (17:80)

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to me, ‘O Bahr, excellent moral behavior is prosperity. Would you like me to teach you a Hadith which is not found in the hands of any of the people of Madina?’ I said, ‘Yes, please do so.’ The Imam said, ‘Once the Messenger of Allah was in the Mosque when a girl from the people of Ansar came in and he was standing there. She held to one end of his (the Messenger of Allah’s) cloth, the Holy Prophet stood up. She did not say anything and he (the Holy Prophet) also did not say anything to her (he then sat down). She repeated it three times and at the fourth time the Holy Prophet stood up for her and she was behind him. She then took a piece from his cloth and returned back. People rebuked her saying, “May Allah do to you what He may decide to do. You held the Messenger of Allah as your captive. You did it three times. You said nothing to him nor did he say anything to you. What did you want from him?” She then said, “We had a patient and our people sent me to get a piece from his (the Messenger of Allah’s) cloth to be used to cure the patient. When I wanted to get the piece he saw me and stood up. I then felt shy to take what I wanted when he would see me. I did not like to demand anything from him. At last I took what I wanted to get.”’’’

Chapter Fifty Five
Humbleness

H 1852, CH 55, h 1
Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Harun ibn Muslim from Mas'adah ibn Sadaqa from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Once al-Najashi (a king of Abyssinia) called to his presence Ja'far ibn abu Talib and his companions. When they came in, they found the king sitting on the ground wearing two old pieces of cloth.' The Imam said that Ja'far has said, 'We felt compassion for him in our hearts when we saw him in that condition. When he noticed our feelings from our faces he said, "All praise is due to Allah for his giving victory to Muhammad and delight to his heart. Should I give you good news?" I said, "Yes, O King." He then said, "This hour my informant people have come from your land and have informed me that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has granted victory to His prophet, Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and has destroyed his enemies. So and so are taken captive when they met each other in a land called Badr, which has a great many bushes of Arak as if I can see it, because I was a shepherd grazing the herd for my master who was from the tribe of Damrah." Ja'far then said to him, "O king, why do you sit on the ground wearing two pieces of old cloth?" He then said, "O Ja'far, we find in what Allah had revealed to Jesus that of the rights of Allah on his servants is to show humbleness when He does a favor for them. Since Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has done a favor for me by means of granting victory to Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant, I show humility.’” When this was mentioned to the Holy Prophet he said to his companions, ‘Charity increases the wealth of the donor, therefore, give charity. Humbleness elevates the position of a person, therefore, be humble, Allah will raise your degree in meritorious status. Forgiveness increases the respect of a person, therefore, forgive, Allah will grant you respect.’”

I will not drink it and I am not making unlawful to drink it, but I want to be humble before Allah. Whoever is humble before Allah, He raises him up, and whoever is arrogant, Allah brings him low. The ark was

Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, inspired the mountains of His decision to allow the ark of Noah, His servant, land on one of the mountains. They all raised and stretched themselves higher. It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from a number of his people from Ali ibn Asbat from al-Hassan ibn al-Jahm from abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Humbleness is a form of behavior that one expects others to behave that way toward him."

"In another Hadith the narrator asked, 'What is the definition of humbleness for which a servant (of Allah) could be considered humble?' The Imam said, 'There are several levels of humbleness. One is to know the value of one's soul to place it at the position that it deserves with a peaceful heart and should not love to behave toward others in a way different from what he loves others to behave toward him. If he may find an evil behavior he should change it to a virtuous one. Those who suppress their anger are safe from people and Allah loves those who do good.'"

"The Messenger of Allah then said, 'For everything you said there is a merit but is not such a ring. In fact the strongest ring of belief to hold on to is love for the sake of Allah, hate for the sake of Allah, support and love those who have received authority from Allah and to disassociate from the enemies of Allah.'"

They will say, "We are going to paradise without any questions asked." The Imam said,

"The angels will ask, 'What kind of people are you?' They will say, 'We are the people who loved just for the sake of Allah.' The Imam said, 'The angels will ask, "What were your deeds?" Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Muhammad ibn Ali al- Qasani from those he has mentioned (in his book) from 'Abd Allah ibn al-Qasim from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'When Allah wants good for a servant (of Allah) He makes him reduce his interest in worldly matters, grants him good understanding in religion, and shows him his shortcomings. Whoever receives these things receives the good of both this and the next life.' The Imam then said, 'For the seekers of truth no other door is better than abstinence from worldly matters and this is exactly opposite to what the enemies of the truth search for.' I (the narrator) then asked, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, abstinence in what?' The Imam said, 'It is abstinence in desire for worldly matters, except one who exercises graceful patience. It (the worldly life) is only few days. It is unlawful for you to sense the test of belief without reducing your interest in worldly things.' I (the narrator) heard abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'When the believer evacuates worldly matters from his self he gains new heights. He then senses the sweetness of the love for Allah and to the people of the world he looks like those whose power of reason is mixed and confused. In fact, they have become mixed with the love of Allah and have cut off all business with the others.' I (the narrator) heard the Imam saying, 'When a heart is cleared, the earth will look small for him until he gains real height.'"

"Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, was asked, 'Which deed is more meritorious in the sight of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy?' The Imam said, 'No deed, after knowing Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, and the Messenger of Allah is more meritorious than to dislike (and hate) the world. It has many branches. Sins have many branches. The first disobedience to Allah was because of arrogance that Satan committed when he refused boastfully and became of those who reject (the command of Allah). Greed was the sin of Adam and Eve. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, 'We told Adam to stay with his spouse (Eve) in the garden and enjoy the foods therein. We (also) told them to stay away from going near a certain tree lest they might become one of the transgressors.' (2:35) They took what they did not need and this remains in their descendents to the Day of Judgment. For this reason most of the things that the children of Adam want they do not need. Then it is jealousy because of which the son of Adam committed disobedience and murdered his brother out of jealousy. From this branch comes love for women, love for the world, love for leadership, love for comfort, love to speak, love for higher position and wealth. They are seven characteristics and all of them are gathered together in the love for the world. The prophets and scholars after knowing this have said: 'Love for the world is the head of all sins.' There are two worlds: the world of bare necessities and the condemned world.'"

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ali ibn al-Hakam from ‘Amr ibn Aban from abu Hamza from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘The world has begun to move backwards and the next world is moving forward. Each world has its sons. Therefore, you must be of the sons of the next world and not the sons of this world. You must be of those who have reduced their interest in worldly matters and of those seriously interested in the next life. You must know that those with reduced interest in worldly matters have taken the earth as their habitat, the soil as their bedding, water as their perfume and have cut themselves off this world in all seriousness.’
“Note that those who are interested in paradise have harnessed their worldly desires and those who are afraid of the fire have turned away from prohibited matters. Whoever reduces his interests in worldly matters, hardships become easy for him.
“Note that there are the servants of Allah who are as if they, actually, see the people of paradise in paradise live forever and the people of fire in the fire in huge suffering. Instead of evil coming from them it is absolute peace, the hearts of these servants of Allah are sad, their soul chaste, and their needs are very light. They exercise patience for a few short days followed by a very long lasting comfort. At night they stand up straight with their feet side by side and tears come down their cheeks. They plead before their Lord and struggle to set their neck free (of sins). In the day they are forbearing scholars, very virtuous and pious. They are slim like an arrow without fins; it is caused by their fear (for possible suffering in the next life) during their worship. On looking to them one may think they suffer from illness. They, in fact, have no illness, or any confusion in their reasoning power, but they have plunged into a tremendously great issue; it is the issue of the fire and all that it involves.”

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ali ibn al-Hakam from abu ‘Abd Allah al-Mu’min from Jabir who has said the following:

“Once I went to visit abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he said, ‘O Jabir, I swear by Allah, I am very sad and my heart is pre-occupied.’ I then asked, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, what has pre-occupied your heart and what is the reason for your sadness?’ The Imam said, ‘O Jabir, if the religion of Allah in its pure form may enter one’s heart it preoccupies the heart above everything else. O Jabir, what is the world and what can one think it can be? Is it more than food to eat, clothes to wear and a woman whom you may find?’

“O Jabir, the believers are not satisfied with remaining in it (world) and they do not feel safe from the coming of the next life. O Jabir, the next life is the permanent house and this world is finishing and passing but the people of this world are neglectful. The believers are of deep understanding, people of thinking, of learning lessons and their speaking of Allah, Most Glorious is Whose name, is not silenced by means of what their ears hear. Their eyes are not blinded in speaking of Allah due to what they see of the worldly attractions (around). They have suceeded in gaining the rewards of the next life just as they have succeeded in gaining that knowledge.

“O Jabir, you must know that people of piety are of smallest expenses and the most helpful to others. If you speak of them they will assist you and if you forget them they will speak of you. They are the most outspoken for the commands of Allah and steadfast in obeying the orders of Allah. They have discontinued their love (for others) with love for their Lord and they have cut themselves off from the world to obey their owner and king. They look to Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, and to His love with their hearts, and have learned that this is what they must look at due to its great position. Thus they have considered the world a temporary place to stay and then leave forever, or like a property that one finds in his dream and upon waking finds no trace of it. I give you this example because to people of reason and knowledge of Allah it is like fast-passing shadow. O Jabir, protect what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, expects you to protect of His religion and wisdom. Never ask of things that are for you with Him but ask of His things that are with your soul. If the world is other than what I described for you, then consider it a house (a correctional facility) where you can seek to reform yourself. I swear by my life that many are those who are greedy for a certain matter but it makes them miserable when they achieve it and many are those who dislike a certain matter but it makes them fortunate when they find it. This is mentioned in the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, ‘So that Allah would test the faith of the believers, and deprive the unbelievers of (His) blessings.’” (3:141)

Note: “House (correctional facility) and reform” is a reference to verse, 24, 84, 57, 35 and 24 of Chapters, 41, 16, 30, 45 and 41, respectively.

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ali ibn al-Hakam from al-Muthanna from abu Basir from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Abu Dhar, may Allah grant him favors, has said in his sermons, ‘O you who are found of knowledge, consider worldly things as nothing except what is beneficial in it, and its evil is harmful to people except those to whom Allah has done favors. O you who are found of knowledge do not allow your family and property to preoccupy you so you forget all about your soul. One day you will leave them like a mere guest among them does. You then will depart to be with others. This world and the next world are like two places to move from one to the other. Between death and resurrection, it is like a short nap after which you wake up. O you, who are found of knowledge, send forward supplies for yourself before Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy; you will be rewarded for your knowledge. You shall reap as you sow, O you who are found of knowledge.’”

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from al-Qasim ibn Yahya from his grand father al-Hassan ibn Rashid from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“The Messenger of Allah has said, ‘What do I have to do with the world. My case with the world is like a traveler who finds a tree in his day of journey and uses its shadow for a short rest and then continues for the rest of his journey, leaving the tree behind.’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Yahya ibn ‘Aqaba al-Azdi from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘The case of a person who is greedy in worldly matters is like the case of a silkworm. The more it wraps silk around itself the more difficult it becomes for it to get out until at last it dies therein in sorrow.’ The narrator has said that abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, ‘Of the advice of Luqman to his son was this: ‘My son, people before you collected for their children but their collection never remained in place, nor were those for whom the collection was made. You are only a servant for hire. You are ordered to perform a deed and receive payment for it. Do your deed and receive payment. Do not be like the sheep who, finds a green farm and keeps eating until fatness kills it. Take the world as a bridge to cross a river and leave it when you are on the other side. Never return to it until the end of time. Destroy it and never repair it; you are not ordered to build it.

“Bear in mind that tomorrow you will be questioned before Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, of four things. You will be asked about your youth, how you made it old, about your life span, how you finished it, and about your properties, how you earned them and how you spent them. Wake up for these questions and prepare the answers. Do not regret for what you have missed of worldly things. The little worldly things do not last very long and more of the worldly things are not without misfortune. Be cautious, work hard in your affairs, remove the curtain before you. Get involved in the lawful matters of your Lord, renew repentance in your heart, work hard when you are free and before you are targeted (by the angel of death) for dying and judgment is issued that separates you from your goal.’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn Mahbub from certain individuals of his people from ibn abu Ya'fur who has said the following:
"I heard abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'Of the things that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, spoke to Moses was this: "O Moses, do not rely upon the world like the unjust ones or like those who take it as their parents. O Moses, were I to leave you in the care of your own soul, lover of worldly things and its attraction would overcome you. O Moses, race in good, the people of goodness and compete with them in goodness; goodness is like its name. Leave alone of worldly matters what is beyond the bare necessities. Do not allow your eyes to look to every attractive matter that is left to its own self (considered as worthless). Note that every misfortune emerges from the love for the world. No one of you should feel excited for great wealth; with bigger wealth sins in the obligatory rights may increase. No one must feel happy because of people's happiness with him until he learns whether Allah is also happy with him or not. No creature must be excited about people obeying him; people's obeying him and following him on something other than the right thing is destruction for him as well as his followers.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Yunus from abu Jamilah who has said the following:
"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, wrote to one of his companions to advise him. "I recommend that you and I be pious before the One whose disobedience is not lawful. Besides Him, in no one else is placing any hope worthwhile. Sufficiency is not achieveable without Him. Whoever is pious before Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, is strong and satisfied with food and drink, his reason soars above the people of the world. His body is with the people of the world, but his heart and power of reason examine the next life. The light of his heart extinguishes what his eyes see of the love of the world. He considers unlawful things in it filthy and stays away from its doubtful things. He, I swear by Allah, suffers losses in even clean lawful matters except small pieces for the bare necessities that keep him standing to survive and clothes, to cover his privacy, of the roughest and thickest quality that he can find. He did not find anything in which to place his trust and hope in the needed circumstances, so he placed his trust and hope in the Creator of all things. He worked hard and struggled intensely, and suffered fatigue until his ribs appeared and his eyes sunk. Allah, then, in exchange for this, strengthened his body and intensified his power of reason. What He has stored for him in the next life is much greater. Reject the world. Love of the world makes one blind, deaf and dumb and it bends the necks in humiliation. Compensate for what is left of your life and do not leave your task for tomorrow or after tomorrow. Those who were before were destroyed because of their dependence on false hope and temptation, until the command of Allah came suddenly when they were neglectful. They were transferred on (pieces of) wood to their dark and narrow graves. Their children and family abandoned them there. He was then left to Allah with a submissive heart. Those who reject the world with firmness will face no defeat or betrayal. May Allah help us and you in obeying Him, and may Allah give us and you the opportunity to do what He likes.'"

"At one time, among the companions of the Messenger of Allah, the financial conditions of one man became very difficult and his wife suggested that he see the Messenger of Allah about it. He went to the Holy Prophet and, when the Holy Prophet saw him, he said, 'Whoever asks us for help, we help, but whoever appears to be rich when, in fact, he is not so, Allah will make him rich.' The man thought the Holy Prophet had addressed him only. He returned to his wife and told her the story. She said, 'The Messenger of Allah is only a man. Let him know what you need.' He went back and, when the Messenger of Allah saw him, he said, 'Whoever asks us for help we help but whoever appears to be rich when, in fact, he is not so, Allah will make him rich.' This was repeated with that man three times. Thereafter, he borrowed a pick and went to the mountains, climbed it and cut down a certain amount of firewood. He climbed down and sold the firewood for half a mud (a certain measure) of flour, came home and used it for food. The next day he did the same thing and saved a little on the side until he was able to buy a pick of his own and sometime later he bought two young camels and a slave and then he became rich until he became very affluent. One day he went to see the Holy Prophet. He informed him of his whole story. The Holy Prophet said, 'I told you, whoever asks us for help we help, but whoever appears to be rich when, in fact, he is not so, Allah will make him rich.'"

The Messenger of Allah then prayed, 'O Lord, give him many children and much wealth.' The Messenger of Allah then passed by a shepherd of sheep and sent his people to ask him for a drink. He milked them and poured it from his milk container altogether in the container for the Messenger of Allah. Along with all the milk he also sent a sheep for him, saying, 'This is what we have and we can bring you more if you like.' The Imam said, 'The Messenger of Allah prayed for him, "O Lord, give him sustenance adequate only for his bare necessities." A certain man of his companion then asked, 'O Messenger of Allah, how is it that you prayed for the shepherd who refused to give you any milk in such a way that we all love. However, for the one who readily provided what you asked, you prayed for him with a prayer that we all dislike?' The Messenger of Allah said, 'The little thing that is adequate is better than a great deal that diverts one's mind (from Allah). O

Lord, grant to Muhammad and the family of Muhammad only that much which is adequate for them.’”

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Safwan ibn Yahya from Ishaq ibn ‘Ammar who has said the following:
“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘We do not know of anything that may increase one’s lifespan like maintaining good relations with relatives does. It is so much so that a man’s life span may have only three years been left, but he maintains good relations with relatives, Allah will increase his life to last for thirty years. The total will be thirty-three years, thus the appointed time for his death will be after thirty-three years. In such case, if one is of the neglectors of good relations with relatives will live only for three years.’”
Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Mu'alla ibn Muhammad from al-Hassan ibn Ali al-Washsha’ from abu al-Hassan al-Rida, recipient of divine supreme covenant, a similar Hadith.

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from certain individuals of his people from ‘Amr ibn Shamir from Jabir from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“When Amir al-Mu’minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, left Madina for Basra, on his way he stopped at al-Rabadhah (a place near Jaddah). A man from Muharib (a tribe) came and said, ‘O Amir al-Mu’minin, I have been shouldering many responsibilities for my people and I have asked quite a few of them to help and cooperate with me, instead they have been very harsh to me. O Amir al-Mu’minin, command them to help me and encourage them to cooperate with me.’ The Imam asked, ‘Where are they?’ He said, ‘Those are a few of them as you may see.' The man has said, 'The Imam directed his horse to their direction, which began to move faster than trudge. Certain men from his companions followed, but they had difficulty catching up with him, and he would slow down for them until he reached the people and offered them greetings of peace. He asked them about their lack of cooperation with one of their own people. They complained before the Imam and he complained against them. Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'A man must maintain good relations with relatives; they are more deserving of benefitting from his virtuous deeds and achievements. The relatives must maintain good relations with one of their own in times of need when things are against him. Those who maintain good relations with relatives and help financially are rewarded. Those who cut off good relations with relatives and turn away commit a sin.' The man has said, 'The Imam then turned his horse around and directed it to move.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from 'Uthman ibn 'Isa from Yahya from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'A man must never turn away from his relatives, even if he is wealthy and has many children. He must not fail to love them, must not ignore their honor, their defense with his hands and tongue. They are the strongest defending power behind him and the most kind to him, who care the most for his affairs if a misfortune may befall him or is suffering from a hardship. One who holds back from his kin's people only holds back one hand, and they hold back many hands from him. Whoever shows kindness to his friends finds love with them. Whoever extends his hands in charitable ways when he is able to do so Allah replaces for him in this world and will grant manifold of rewards in the next life. The truthful tongue of a man is a thing that Allah makes serve him among the people better than the property that he consumes or leaves as his legacy. No one of you must ever assume boastfulness and arrogance in his soul and distance himself from his relatives, even if he is a wealthy one. No one of you must ever reduce his good relations with his brother or distance from him when he is poor. No one of you must ever neglect relatives. Kindred relation has a characteristic that holding back from it does not benefit one and spending for it does not harm a person.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa and Ali ibn Ibrahim from his father all from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from abu Wallad al-Hannat who has said the following:
“I asked abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the meaning of ‘kindness’ in the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, ‘. . . and that you must be kind to your parents. . . .’ (17:23) The Imam said, ‘It means to behave with them in a good manner, not to make them ask you for help, even though they are self-sufficient. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, “You can never have extended virtue and righteousness unless you spend part of what you dearly love for the cause of Allah.”’ (3:92)
“The narrator has said that the Imam then said, ‘The words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, “If either or both of your parents should become advanced in age, do not express to them words which show your slightest disappointment. Never shout at them but always speak to them with kindness,” (17:23) if they say harsh words to you, do not say ‘Uff (expression of disappointment) to them, and do not shout at them if they beat you. Allah has said, ‘Speak kind words to them.’ The Imam said, ‘If they beat you say to them, “May Allah forgive you,” and this will be the kind and noble word from you.’ Allah has said, “Be humble and merciful toward them. . . .” (17:24) The Imam said, ‘Do not have an eyeful look at them except with kindness and tender heart, do not raise your voice over their voice or your hands over their hands and do not walk in front of them.’”

Messenger of Allah, give me a good advice.” The Messenger of Allah said, ‘Do not consider anything as partner of Allah even if you are tortured with fire except when your heart is confident with belief. You must obey your parents and be good to them whether living or dead. If they order you to leave your property and family you must do so; it is of belief.’”

يَا رَسُولَ اللهِ أَوْصِنِي فَقَالَ لَا تُشْرِكْ بِاللهِ شَيْئاً وَ إِنْ حُرِّقْتَ بِالنارِ وَ عُذِّبْتَ إِلا وَ قَلْبُكَ مُطْمَئِن بِالْإِيمَانِ وَ وَالِدَيْكَ فَأَطِعْهُمَا وَ بَرَّهُمَا حَيَّيْنِ كَانَا أَوْ مَيِّتَيْنِ وَ إِنْ أَمَرَاكَ أَنْ تَخْرُجَ مِنْ أَهْلِكَ وَ مَالِكَ فَافْعَلْ فَإِن ذَلِكَ مِنَ الْإِيمَان

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from his father from ‘Abd Allah ibn Bahr from ‘Abd Allah ibn Muskan from those whom he has mentioned from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Once the Imam spoke to ‘Abd al-Wahid al-Ansari, while I was present, about kindness to parents mentioned in the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, ‘Be kind to parents.’ We thought it was the verse in Chapter Seventeen that says, ‘. . . the Lord has ordained that you must not worship anyone other than Him and that you must “Be kind to your parents. . . .’ (17:23) Later I asked the Imam and he said, ‘It was verse 14-15 of Chapter 31, that says, “(Concerning his parents), We advised the man, (to be good to parents). . . . (31:14) If they try to force you to consider things equal to Me, which you cannot justify to be equal to Me, do not obey them.” (31:15) The Imam then said, ‘This shows greater significance of maintaining good relations with them in all cases.’ I asked about: ‘If they try to force you to consider things equal to Me, which you cannot justify to be equal to Me, do not obey them.’ (31:15) The Imam said, ‘It, in fact, is a command to establish good relations with parents even if they struggle to make him consider things equal to Allah. It only shows the greatness of the rights of parents.’”

The man then said, 'O Messenger of Allah, my parents are old and they think my presence is a comfort for them and they do not like my going out.' The Messenger of Allah then said, 'Stay with your parents, I swear by the One in whose hand is my soul, that your parents' receiving comfort from your presence with them for one day and night is more virtuous than Jihad for one year.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Mu'awiyah ibn Wahab from Zakariya ibn Ibrahim who has said the following:
"I was a Christian, then I became a Muslim. I went for Hajj, where I met abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and I said to him, 'I was a Christian and I have become a Muslim.' The Imam asked, 'What have you seen in Islam?' I said, 'They are the words of Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, ". . . before, you did not even know what a Book or belief was, but We have made the Quran as a light by which We guide whichever of Our servants We want."' (42:52) The Imam said, 'Allah has certainly granted you guidance.' The Imam then said three times: 'O Allah, guide him. Son, ask whatever you want to ask.' I then said, 'My parents and my family are Christians and my mother is blind. I live with them. Can I eat from their utensils with them?' The Imam asked, 'Do they eat pork?' I said, 'No, they do not even touch it.' The Imam said, 'There is no offense in your eating with them. Take good care of your mother and be kind to her. When she will die do not leave her to others. You must do everything that she will need (for her funeral). Do not tell anyone of your meeting with me until you will meet me at Mina, if Allah would so will.' I (the narrator) met him at Mina and people were around him as if he were the teacher of children. He asks a question then the other asks a question and so on. I returned to Kufa and I would act more kindly toward my mother. I would feed my mother, wash her clothes, her head and would serve her in other ways.' She said, 'My son, you did not do all this for me when you followed my religion. What is all that I see from you after you left and accepted the religion of submission (Islam)?' I said, 'A man from the descendents of our prophet has commanded me to do all this.' She then asked, 'Is this man a prophet?' I said, 'No, but he is a descendent of a prophet.' She said, 'My son, he is a prophet; these are of the teachings of the prophets.' I said, 'Mother, there will be no other prophet after our prophet. He is a descendent of our prophet.' She then said, 'Your religion is the best religion. Explain it to me.' I then explained to her and she accepted Islam. I taught her more. She prayed, Zuhr, 'Asr, Maghrib and 'Isha' prayers. Thereafter something happened to her at night and she said, 'Son, explain and repeat to me what you told me about Islam and I repeated it to her. She affirmed them and then she died. In the morning the Muslims were the ones who helped with her funeral and washed her. I was the one who prayed on her body and climbed down in her grave (to place her body to rest).'"

"Once I explained to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, how kind my son Isma'il was to me. The Imam said, 'I loved him before and this has increased my love for him. Once, the sister of the Messenger of Allah (through breast-feeding) visited him. When he saw her he became very happy to see her, prepared a seat for her, began to talk to her and smiled at her. She left and her brother came. The Holy Prophet did not behave toward him as he did to her. He was asked, 'O Messenger of Allah, you behaved toward his sister differently from the way you behaved toward him, and he is a man.' The Messenger of Allah said, 'It was because she was more kind to her parents than he was.'"

Chapter Sixty Nine
The Rights of One Who Accepts the Belief and Then Severs Away

H 2041, CH, h 1
Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Harun ibn Muslim from Mas’adah ibn Sadaqah who has said the following:
“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, when he was asked about belief, and the rights of the believer, his brotherhood and how he is and by what means it is proved and is invalidated, ‘The belief is of two aspects. One is that which is manifested to you from your companion. If he manifests like what you believe in, his Wilayah (right of one guardianship) is established as well as his brotherhood unless he then manifests the opposite of what he had manifested before. He then will be out of the rights that were established. That which he manifests later suspends his rights unless he then claims it to be for purposes of protection (Taqiyah). Despite this, it is to be seen, if it is of the cases where use of protective measures (Taqiyah) is applicable or not, if not then his claim is not accepted. For use of protective measures there are specific instances. Whoever misuses them will not have the benefits thereby. Of such examples one is when there are evil people whose rules and judgments are against the judgment and actions of truth. In such conditions, if the believer may use the protective measures to the limits that do not harm ones religion, such use is permissible.’”

Chapter Seventy
Brotherhood in Belief is not Due to Religion it only is a Way of Recognition

H 2042, CH 70, h 1
Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Muhammad ibn Sinan from Hamza ibn Muhammad al-Tayyar from his father from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“You have not become brothers on the basis of this belief (of Shi’a Muslims) but you have recognized each other because of it.’”

H 2043, CH 70, h 2
It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from ‘Uthman ibn ‘Isa from ibn Muskan and Sama'a all from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“You have not become brothers on the basis of this matter (Walayah the belief of the Shi’a Muslims); it is only that you have recognized each other by means of Walayah.”

Chapter Seventy One
The Rights of a Believer on his Brother (in belief) and his duty to observe Such Rights

H 2044, CH 71, h 1
Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Sayf ibn ‘Amirah from ‘Amr ibn Shamir from Jabir from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Of the rights of the believer on his believing brother (in belief) is to satisfy his hunger, provide covering for his privacy, facilitate his hardships and pay off his debts. When he dies, look after his family and children.”

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ali ibn al-Hakam from ‘Abd Allah ibn Bukayr al-Hajari from Mu'alla ibn Khanis from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Once I asked the Imam, ‘What are the rights of the Muslim on the Muslim?’ The Imam said, ‘He has seven categories of rights that are obligatory, each of which is compulsory. If he jeopardizes a single one of them he is out of the domain of guardianship (Walayah) of Allah and obedience to Him. There will be no share for Allah in him.’ I then said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, what are these rights?’ The Imam said, ‘O Mu'alla, I am afraid you may jeopardize them and may not protect them. You learn them but do not act up on them.’ I (the narrator) then said, ‘There is no power without the power of Allah.’ The Imam said, ‘Of those rights the easiest to fulfill is to love for him what you love for yourself and dislike for him what you dislike for yourself. The second right is to avoid (stirring) his anger, follow his wishes and obey his commands. The third right is to support him with your soul, property, tongue, hands and legs. The fourth right is to be his eyes, his guide and his mirror. The fifth right is that you must not be satisfied with food while he is hungry, with drinks while he is thirsty, and that you dress up in finery while he does not have any clothes. The sixth right is not to allow yourself to have a servant while your brother in belief does not have any servant. It then is necessary to send your servant to wash his clothes, prepare food and his bed for him. The seventh right is to keep his share handsomely, accept his invitations, visit him when he is ill, attend his funeral and if he needs something, initiate to fulfill it and do not delay until he asks you for help. You must hurry quickly and when you do so you have connected your guardianship with his guardianship and vice versa.'"

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Ali ibn Sayf from his father, Sayf from 'Abd al-'Ala' ibn 'A'Yun who has said the following:

"Once certain individual of our people wrote to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, asking him about certain issues and they ordered me to ask the Imam about the rights of the Muslim on his Muslim brother and I asked the Imam but he did not answer me. When I went to say farewell to him I said, 'I asked you that question but you did not answer me.' The Imam said, 'I am afraid you may disregard them. Of the obligations most pressing that Allah has made obligatory upon His creature are three things: a man's yielding to justice against his own soul so as not to accept for his brother (in belief) what he does not accept for his own self, to assist his brother with his property and speak of Allah in all conditions. I do not mean thereby, saying, 'Glory belongs to Allah and all praise belongs to Allah. Truly speaking of and remembering Allah is to stay away from whatever He has prohibited.'"

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from Jamil from Marazim from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Allah the best way to worship is to fulfil (protect) the rights of the believer."

H 2048, CH 71, h 5

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Hammad ibn 'Isa from Ibrahim ibn 'Umar al-Yamani from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Of the rights of the Muslim on the Muslim is that he must not satisfy himself with food while his Muslim brother is hungry. One must not satisfy himself with water while one's Muslim brother is thirsty, and one must not dress up in finery while his Muslim brother is in need of clothes. How great is the right of the Muslim on his Muslim brother! The Imam then said, 'Love for your Muslim brother what you love for yourself. Ask him when you need him and when he needs you, you must help him and do not frustrate him, but be his supporter; he is your supporter. When he is absent protect his interests in his absence and when he is present visit, honor and respect him; you are from him and he is from you. If he is disappointed with you do not keep away from him before asking him to forgive you and if he gains something, thank Allah for it. If he suffers from something then support him. If he is subjected to a plot, assist him. If a man says to his brother, fie up on you, the relation of guardianship between them remains no longer. If he says, 'You are my enemy, one of them will become an unbeliever. If he accuses him, belief in his heart melts like salt melts in water.' The narrator has said that it is reported to me that the Imam said, 'The light of the believer shines to the inhabitants of the heavens like the stars shine to the inhabitants of earth.' And he said, 'The believer is the friend of Allah Who helps him and grants him favors. He does not say about Him but the truth and he is not afraid of any one other than Him.'"

Abu Ali al-Ash'ari has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Abd al-Jabbar from ibn Faddal from Ali ibn 'Uqbah from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Of the rights of Muslin on a Muslim is to offer him the greeting of peace upon meeting him, visit him when he is ill, protect his interest when he is absent, say, 'May Allah bless you' when he sneezes, accept his invitation and take part in the procession for his funeral."
A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from ibn Faddal from Ali ibn 'Uqbah a similar Hadith.

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn abu 'Umayr from Mansur ibn Yunus from abu al-Mamun al-Harithi who has said the following:
"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'What are the rights of the believer on the believer?' The Imam said, 'Of the rights of the believer on the believer is to have compassion for him in his heart, assist him with his property, protect his interests in his absence in the matters of his family and support him against those who do injustice to him. If a benefit is distributed among the Muslims in his absence his believing brother should secure his share thereof. When he dies, he should visit his gravesite, must not do injustice to him, must not deceive him, must not violate his trust, must not betray him, must not call him a liar, must not say to him, 'Fie upon you.' If he says fie up on you then no guardianship (Walayah) relations will remain between them. If he says, 'You are my enemy,' one of them becomes an unbeliever and if he accuses him, belief in his heart will melt as salt melts in water.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from ibn abu 'Umayr from abu Ali Sahib al-Kalal from Aban ibn Taghlib who has said the following:
"Once I was performing Tawaf (walking seven times around the Ka'ba) along with abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, when a man from our people came up asking me to go with him for a certain need and hinted to me for that purpose, but I did not like to leave abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and go with him. I was still performing Tawaf when he made a gesture for the same purpose and abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saw him and said to me, 'O Aban, does he want you?.' I said, 'Yes, he does so.' The Imam asked, 'Who is he?' I said, 'He is a man from our people.' The Imam asked, 'Is he of the belief that you are?' I said, 'Yes, he is.' The Imam said, 'Then go to him.' I asked, 'Should I discontinue Tawaf?' The Imam said, 'Yes, do so.' I asked, 'Even if it is a compulsory Tawaf?' The Imam said, 'Yes, even if it is such.' I (the narrator) then went with him. Later I went to meet the Imam and I said to him, 'Please tell me about the rights of the believer on the believer.' The Imam asked, 'O Aban, ignore it and do not repeat.' I said, 'Yes, may Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, but I still like to bring up the question. The Imam said, 'O Aban, are you ready to share with him parts of your property?' He then looked at me and found out what was going on in my mind and he asked, 'O Aban do you know what Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said about the self-abnegating people?' I said, 'Yes, may Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, I know about it.' The Imam said, 'If you share with him you have not practiced self-abnegation, but you both are equal. You give him preference only if you give him from the other half also.'"

H 2052, CH 71, h 9

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from his father from Fadalah ibn Ayyub from ‘Amr ibn Aban from ‘Isa ibn abu Mansur who has said the following:

“Once ibn abu Ya’fur, ‘Abd Allah ibn Talha and I were in the presence of abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who on his own initiation said, ‘O ibn abu Ya’fur, the Messenger of Allah has said, “There are six things that if found in a person, he will be before Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, to the right of Allah (to the right of the Throne of Allah).”’ Ibn abu Ya’fur then asked, ‘What are those things, may Allah keep my soul in service for your cause?’ The Imam said, ‘A man must love for his Muslim brother what he loves for the most beloved person of his family and dislike for his Muslim brother what he dislikes for the most beloved person of his family and enlighten him in Walayah (the position of people who possess Divine Authority).’ Ibn abu Ya’fur then wept and asked, ‘How does he enlighten about Walayah?’ The Imam said, ‘O ibn abu Ya’fur, if he is of the same level (of belief), he should encourage him, show happiness in his happiness and express sadness if he is sad. If he has the means to facilitate him he should do so if not he should pray to Allah for him.’

“The narrator has said that abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, ‘Three things are for you and three things are for us. What is for us is that you must learn about our excellent merits, follow our footsteps and wait for our end results (Divine Kingdom) to take place. Whoever has these facts will be before Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, and those below them will receive light from their light. On seeing those who will be to the right of Allah, the ones below will not feel happy because of the enviable merits of the persons above.’ Ibn abu Ya’fur then asked, ‘How is it that they will not see when they are on the right of Allah?’ The Imam said, ‘O ibn abu Ya’fur, they are veiled with the light of Allah. Are you not aware of the Hadith that the Messenger of Allah said, ‘Allah has a creature on the right of the Throne before Allah and on the right of Allah their faces are whiter than snow and brighter than the sun of the midday. Someone asks, ‘Who are they?’ It will be said, ‘These are the ones who loved each other in the Glory of Allah.’”

"The Messenger of Allah has said, 'Jibril spoke to me that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, sent an angel to earth and the angel began walking until he came to a door where a man was asking for permission from the people of the house. The angel asked him, 'What do you need from the owner of this house?' He replied, 'He is a Muslim brother (in belief). I have come to visit him for the sake of Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High.' The angel then asked, 'Is that the only reason for your visit?' The man said, 'Nothing else has brought me here but that.' The angel then said, 'I am the Messenger of Allah to you and He sends you the greeting of peace and says, 'I have made paradise obligatory for you.' The angel then said, 'Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, says, 'Whoever of the Muslims visits an other Muslim, in fact, has not visited him but he has visited Me and his reward from Me is paradise.'"

"'Ubaydah has said, 'Once I was a partner of abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, on a journey. During the journey, first I would take my seat in the carriage set up on the back of the carry animal and then he would take his seat. He after settling down on his place properly would offer me the greeting of peace and ask a question like a person who has never met the other person. He would also shake hands.' The narrator has said, 'He after dismounting would do so before me and after finding our places on the ground he would offer the greeting of peace and ask questions like he had never met me.' I then said, 'O descendent of the Messenger of Allah, you do things that no one before us has done. Doing (such formalities) only once is more than enough.' The Imam asked, 'Do you know what is in a handshake? The believers meet and shake hands, the sins continue falling off of them just like leaves fall off the trees, and Allah looks upon them until they depart from each other.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Yunus from Yahya al-Halabi from Malik al-Juhni who has said the following:
“Abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, once said to me, ‘O Malik, you are of our followers (Shi’a). Are you aware that you go to extremes in our cause? No one is able to describe Allah. Just as no one is able to describe Allah, no one is able to describe us. Just as no one is able to describe us, no one is able to describe the believer. When a believer meets the believer and shakes hands, Allah continues looking at them and sins fall from their faces like leaves fall from trees until they depart each other. How then is one able to describe one who is as such?’”

Did you not know that when two believing people meet and shake each other’s hands Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, sends blessings upon them and ninety-nine parts of the reward go to the one who loves his believing brother (in belief) more intensely. If they love equally blessings (of Allah) encompass them both? When they sit to speak to each other the guardian angels will say to each other, ‘Leave them alone, perhaps they have certain secret matters to discuss, and Allah has provided cover for them.’ I then said, ‘Has Allah not said, ‘. . . since the two scribes are sitting on each of his shoulders, he does not utter a word that is not recorded immediately by the watchful scribes.’ (50:17) The Imam said, ‘O Ishaq, if the scribes do not hear, the One who know all secrets hears and sees.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn al-Husayn from Muhammad ibn Isma'il ibn Bazi' from Salih ibn 'Aqabah from 'Abd Allah ibn Muhammad al-Ju'fi from abu Ja'far and abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Any believer who leaves (his home) to visit his brother (in belief) because of his knowledge of the importance of such person, Allah writes for him, for every step, one good deed, deletes one evil deed, and raises him one degree in meritorious status. When he knocks at his door, the doors to heaven open to him. When they meet, shake hands and hold each other in their arm Allah turns to them with His face and expresses pride because of them to the angels and says, 'Look at My two servants who are visiting each other and love each other for My sake. It is a right upon Me not to make them suffer in fire in the hereafter. When he returns the angels, numbering equal to the number of his breaths, steps and words, will escort him. They protect him against the misfortunes of this world and the hardships of the hereafter up to a similar night next year. If he dies in between he will be exempt from presenting an account of his deeds. If the person visited would know the importance of the visitor as he knew of his importance, he also will have the same privileges."

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from Safwan ibn Yahya from Ishaq ibn 'Ammar from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"When two believing people embrace each other, blessings engulf them. When they hold each other just for the sake of Allah and for no worldly reasons, it then will be said to them, 'You are forgiven, resume your deeds.' When they begin asking about each other the angels will say to each other, 'Keep away from them; they have secret matters and Allah has granted them cover and privacy.' I (Ishaq) then asked, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, how is it that the angels do not write their words when Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, ". . . he does not utter a word which is not recorded immediately by the watchful scribes"?' (50:17) The narrator has said that abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, took a breath of sigh and wept so much that his tears drenched his beard, and he said, 'O Ishaq, Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, commands the angels to leave the believing people who meet each other alone just because of respect for them; otherwise, if the angels do not write their words or do not know them, He knows and saves them; He knows all the secrets and the hidden things.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from his father from Fadalah ibn Ayyub from Ali ibn abu Hamza who has said the following:
“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, ‘Our Shi’a are compassionate to each other. When alone they speak of and remember Allah. To speak of us is to speak of Allah. A number of our people have narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from al-Washsha' from Mansur ibn Yunus from 'Abbad ibn Kathir who has said the following:

"I said to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'Once I passed by a storyteller who said to his audience, "This is a gathering whose attendants do not suffer wickedness."' The narrator has said that abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then said, 'How extremely far is it from reality!' You passed by the wrong gathering. (Astahahum al-Hufrah) How terribly wrong is their expresssion! Allah has certain angels who visit places, and they are other than the honorable scribes. When they pass by a people, who speak of Muhammad and Ale Muhammad, recipients of divine supreme covenant, these angels say, "Stop here. You have found what you needed." They will sit down and begin to think and understand with them. When the gathering disperses they visit their people suffering due to ill health, attend their funerals and look after those of them who are absent. That is the gathering whose attendants do not suffer wickedness.'"

I said, 'Yes, I swear by Allah, we hold private gatherings and say whatever we like to say (in praise of Muhammad and his family).' Through the same chain of narrators it is narrated from Muhammad ibn Sulayman from Muhammad ibn Mahfuz from abu al-Maghra' who has said the following:
"I heard abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'There is nothing more injurious to Satan and his soldiers than believing people's visitation of their brothers (in belief) for the sake of Allah.' The Imam said, 'When believing people meet each other, speak of Allah and speak of the praise and excellence of Ahl al-Bayt, all the flesh at the face of Satan disappear, he even cries for help due to the severity of his suffering and the angels of heaven sense it as well as the keepers of paradise and they all condemn him until all the angels close to Allah condemn him and Satan remains humiliated, frustrated and defeated.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Muhammad ibn Sinan from 'Abd Allah ibn Muskan from 'Ubayd Allah ibn al-Walid al-Wassafi who has said the following:
"I heard abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'Of the private conversations that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, made with Moses was this: 'Of my servants there are those to whom I have allotted my paradise and made them rule it.' Moses then asked, Lord, 'Who are these people to whom you have allotted your paradise and made them rule it?' The Lord said, 'They are those who bring joy to the heart of a believer.' He then said, 'A believing man once lived in the domain of a tyrant and because of fear he moved away from the tyrant into a pagan's land and he found lodging with a pagan who provided him shadow, came forward with friendly behavior and entertained him as a guest. When death approached the pagan man, Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, inspired him, 'I swear by my Majesty and Glory, had I any place for you in my paradise I would have admitted you therein, but it is forbidden for those who die as pagans. However, O fire, calm down and do not hurt him. His sustenance will be provided in both ends of the day.' I then asked the Imam, '(Does it come) from paradise?' The Imam said, 'It comes from wherever Allah wishes.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Muhammad ibn Ahmad from al-Sayyari from Muhammad ibn Jumhur who has said the following:

"Al-Najashiy, is a man of the landlords (community) and an agent in al-Ahwaz and Fars. Certain persons of his workers once said to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'In the office of al-Najashiy taxes are recorded as due by me. He is a believer and believes in obedience to you. If you consider it proper, write for me a letter to him (to relieve me of the taxes).' Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, wrote him, '(I begin) in the name of Allah, the Beneficent the Merciful. Send joy to the heart of your brother, Allah will send joy to your heart.'

"When the letter came he took it to him in his office. When it was private he gave him the letter and said, 'This is a letter from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant.' He kissed the letter and placed it on his eyes and asked, 'What do you want?' He said, 'Certain taxes are recorded in your office as due by me.' He then asked, 'How much are they?' He said, 'Ten thousand dirham.' He then called his secretary and told him to write off all the taxes due by him, and he said not to levy any taxes on him in future. Then he asked, 'Did I make you happy now?' He replied, 'Yes, may I be your servant.' He then ordered to give him an animal so he could ride, a maid servant, a male servant and a set of dress and for each item he would ask, 'Did I make you happy?' He would say, 'Yes, may I be your servant.' As long as he said, 'Yes, he increased his gifts until the last gift. He then said, 'Take the floor covering of this house wherein you gave me the letter of my master and asked me to help you in your needs.'

"I (the narrator) did so as I was told and then went to abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and informed him of his story the way it had happened. The Imam enjoyed what he had done. I then said, 'O descendent of the Messenger of Allah, it seems he has made you happy by means of his favors to me.' The Imam said, 'Yes, by Allah, he certainly has made Allah and the Messenger of Allah happy.'"

Abu Ali al-Ash'ari has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Abd al-Jabbar from al-Hassan ibn Ali ibn Faddal from Mansur from 'Ammar ibn abu al-Yaqzan from Aban ibn Taghlib who has said the following:

"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, about the rights of a believer on another believer. He has said that the Imam said, 'The right of a believer on a believer is greater than that (description). If I tell you about it you will become unbelievers. When a believer comes out of his grave a form comes out with him and says, "There is good news of honor and happiness for you from Allah." He then says to the form, 'May Allah give you good news.' He then moves with him and gives him good news as before and as they come across a frightening scene of the Day of Judgment the form says this is not against you. As they come across a good thing the form says this is for you. The form remains with him, giving him comfort and good news of what he loves until it stands with him before Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, where He orders for him to be taken to paradise. The form says to him, 'Good news for you; Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has ordered that you be admitted in paradise.'

"The Imam said, 'He asks, "Who are you, may Allah grant you favors? You have been giving me good news from the time you came out with me from my grave. On the way you have been giving me comfort and informed me of the decision of my Lord?"' The form then says, 'I am the joy that you had sent to the heart of your believing brothers (in belief) in the worldly life. I was created from it to give you good news and comfort you in frightening conditions.'"

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad has narrated from Ahmad ibn Ishaq from Sa'dan ibn Muslim from 'Abd Allah ibn Sinan who has said the following:

"Once a man, in the presence of abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, recited this verse of the Holy Quran: 'Those who annoy the believing men and women without reason will bear the sin for a false accusation, a manifest offense.' (33:58) The narrator has said that abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, then asked, 'What then is the reward for sending joy to his heart?' I said, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, ten good deeds.' The Imam said, 'Yes, by Allah, it is one million good deeds.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from his father from Harun ibn al-Jahm from Isma'il ibn 'Ammar al-Sayrafi who has said the following:
"Once I asked abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, is a believer a blessing for believers?' The Imam said, 'Yes, he is.' I then asked, 'How is he as such?' The Imam said, 'A believer who may come to his brother (in belief) for help, in fact, is a blessing from Allah whom He has lead to him and has made him a means of blessings for him. If he makes his wish come true he accepts the blessing through his help and if he refuses to help while capable to help he, in fact, has repulsed from himself blessings that Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, had lead to him and had made him (believer) a means for his receiving rewards. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, preserves that blessing to the Day of Judgment so that the needy believer who had faced refusal may decide about it. He may avail it for himself or someone else. O Isma'il, on the Day of Judgment when he will be the judge for the blessing from Allah that is appropriated to him to who do you think he will make it available?' I said, 'I do not think he will turn it away from himself.' The Imam said, 'Do you not think? Be certain that he will not turn it away from himself. O 'Isma'il, if a believer comes to his brother (in belief) for help and he refuses to help, despite being able to help, in his grave Allah will raise a snake to keep biting his thumb to the Day of Judgment wherein he may be forgiven or made to suffer torments.'"

"I heard abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, 'To whomever his believing brother (in belief) comes for help, in fact, it is a blessing from Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, that He has lead to him. If he accepts that blessing he has connected his guardianship with our guardianship (al-Walayah) that is connected to the guardianship of Allah. If he refuses to help when he is able to help, Allah assigns a snake from fire to keep biting him in his grave until the Day of Judgment wherein he will be forgiven or made to suffer torment. If in such case (in need of help) the needy accepts his excuse it will be much worse for him.'"

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Feeding a believer is, indeed, more beloved to me than setting free ten slaves and performing ten Hajj.' I (the narrator) then asked, 'Is it like setting free ten slaves and performing ten Hajj?' He has said that the Imam said, 'O Nasr, if you do not feed him he will die or you will humiliate him, then he will go to one who is a bitter enemy of the Imam and will ask him for help. Death is better for him than asking help from such enemy of the Imam. O Nasr, giving life to a believer is like giving life to all mankind. If you do not feed him you have caused his death, if you feed him you have given him life.'"

When they (believers) will look into the hell and see its terrifying condition and into paradise and all that is therein their power of reason will stop in confusion and they will refuse to eat. Today I do not invite anyone.' The Imam said, 'It is no offense to you to leave people to their Lord. Whomever Allah wants to guide and take out of darkness to light He does so.' Leave the people alone and no one of you should say: "What about my brother, the son of my Uncle and my neighbor"? When Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, wills good for a servant, He cleanses his spirit and thereafter he does not listen to any principle but that he recognizes, and acknowledges it and does not hear of a wickedness but that he hates it. Then Allah places a word in his heart that serves as a focal point in his affairs.'"

ibn Faddal from Ali ibn ‘Uqbah from his father who has said the following:
“Once abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, ‘Keep your cause (belief), for the sake of Allah and do not make it for people; what is for Allah is for Allah and what is for people cannot ascend to heaven. Do not argue with people about your religion; argumentation causes sickness to the heart. Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said to His Holy Prophet, ‘(Muhammad), you cannot guide whomever you love, but Allah guides whomever He wants. . . .’ (28:56) He has also said, ‘. . . (Muhammad), do you force people to have faith’? (10:99). Leave the people alone; they take it from people and you take it from the Messenger of Allah and from Amir al-Mu’minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipients of divine supreme covenant, and this is not equal. I heard my father saying, ‘When Allah writes for a servant to enter into this cause (belief of Ahl al-Bayt) he rushes to it quicker than a bird to its nest.’”

The Imam then said, 'What he said was: 'One day you will be told to abuse me, you must do so then you will be told to denounce me, and I follow the religion of Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. He did not say do not denounce me.' The person asking the question then asked, 'Do you say he must have chosen being murdered instead of denouncing?' The Imam said, 'By Allah, there was no such thing necessary for him to do. There was nothing for him but that which happened to 'Ammar ibn Yasir when people of Makkah forced him and his heart was confident with belief. Then Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, revealed His words about it, '. . . except those who are forced but their heart is confident with belief,' (16:106) to which the Holy Prophet said, 'O 'Ammar, if they would do such things again you also may do as you have already done; Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has revealed His words about your good excuse and has commanded you to do again what you did before if they ever repeated their misdeed.'"

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Ali ibn al-Hakam from ‘Abd Allah ibn Bukayr from a man who has said the following:
“Once we in a group went to see abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and said to him, ‘O descendent of the Messenger of Allah, we intend to travel to Iraq, and request your recommendations.’ Abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, ‘The stronger ones among you must support the weak ones, the well to do among you must reach out to the poor ones among you, do not expose our secrets and do not publicize our cause. When you receive a Hadith from us accept it only if you find sufficient, two or at least one, supporting evidence from the book of Allah, otherwise, keep it on hold and then refer it to us for verification. You must know that those waiting for this matter (coming of Imam al-Mahdi) have a reward like those who fast all the time and pray every night. Whoever will find himself with our al-Qa’im (al-Mahdi) and will come out with him to do away with our enemies he will have a reward equal to that for twenty martyrs and whoever will be killed supporting our al-Qa’im, his reward will be equal to that for fifteen martyrs.’”

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Muhammad ibn Sinan from ‘Abd al-‘Ala’ who has said the following:
“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, ‘Just to affirm our cause is not enough to carry it. To bear our cause is to keep it concealed and protect it from those who do not support it. Convey the greeting of peace to them and tell them, “May Allah grant blessings to those who attract people’s love to himself, speak to them (common people) about what they know and conceal from them what they deny.”’ The Imam then said, ‘By Allah, our bitter enemy, is not more of a problem bigger for us than those who speak of us things that we dislike. If you hear a servant (of Allah) publicizing (our cause) then walk to him and turn him away from it. If he did not accept your advice then leave him to one who might prove to be heavier for him and he would listen to him. There are those of you who on request meet the needs of a person with kindness. Be kind to me in my needs as you are kind to each other in your needs. If he accepts from you, that is fine, otherwise, bury his words under your feet and do not say, ‘He says so and so.’ This will make it difficult for you and for me. By Allah, were you to say what I say, I could confirm that you are of my companions. This is abu Hanifah and he has companions. This is al-Hassan al-Basri and he has his companions. I am a man from Quraysh of the descendents of the Messenger of Allah. I knew the book of Allah in which there is explanation for everything, the beginning of creation, the matters of heavens, the issues of earth, the matters of those in the past, the issues of the later generations, and issues of things that existed and the matters of the things that will come into existence. To me these all are as if I see them before my eyes.’”

Of the worst conditions among them and most disliked is the one who on hearing Hadith ascribes it to us and narrates it from us. Not only does he not accept it, also he abhors it and rejects it. He has made those who follow it turn to disbelief while he does not know. O Mu'alla, whoever publicizes our cause and does not conceal it, Allah humiliates him in this world, removes the light between his eyes in the next life and will make darkness to lead him to fire. O Mu'alla, al-Taqiyyah is my religion and the religion of my predecessors. There is no religion for one who does not observe al-Taqiyyah. Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Khalid ibn Nujayh from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Our cause is hidden and veiled by the (Divine) covenant. Whoever disregards it against us Allah will humiliate him.”

Al-Husayn ibn Muhammad an Muhammad ibn Yahya all have narrated from Ali ibn Muhammad ibn Sa'd from Muhammad ibn Muslim from Muhammad ibn Sa’id ibn Ghazwan from Ali ibn al-Hakam from ‘Umar ibn Aban from ‘Isa ibn abu Mansur who has said the following:
“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, ‘A breath with a sigh of concern and sadness due to injustice done to us is Tasbih (speaking of the glory of Allah) and one’s concern about our cause is worship, his concealing our secret is Jihad (hard work for the cause of Allah).’”
“Muhammad ibn Sa’id told me to write it down with gold. I then did not write anything better than that.”

A Believer’s Signs and Qualities

بَابُ الْمُؤْمِنِ وَ عَلَامَاتِهِ وَ صِفَاتِهِ

Muhammad ibn Ja’far has narrated from Muhammad ibn Isma'il from ‘Abd Allah ibn Dahir from al-Hassan ibn Yahya from Qathm abu Qatadah al-Harrani from ‘Abd Allah ibn Yunus from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“Once a man called Hammam, an assiduous worshipper practicing religious rules and a hardworking man came to Amir al-Mu’minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, during his speech and said, ‘O Amir al-Mu’minin, describe for us the qualities of the believer as if we see him before our eyes.’
“When laughing, he does not burst. When angry he does not rush. His laughing is smiles, his question is to learn, his review is to understand, his knowledge is plentiful, his forbearance is great and his blessing is a great deal. He is not stingy, he does not hasten, irritate or act as an extremist, is not unjust in his judgment, or unfair due to his knowledge. His soul is more solid than a rock, his labor is more sweet than honey. He is not greedy, intolerant, violent, conceited, pretending or exaggerating. He is graceful in disputed matters, of honorable visitation, a man of justice when angry, a friend when asked. He is not adventurous, or insulting and coercive. His love is pure, he is of solid promise, of fulfilling commitment, affectionate, a keeper of good relations, forbearing, calm, of very little that is extraneous, happy with Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, and opposes his own desires. He is not rough toward his inferiors and does not indulge in what is not his business. He is a supporter of religion, a defender of believers, a stronghold for Muslims, and admiration does not affect him negatively, greed does not hurt his heart, playfulness does not change his judgment and ignorant ones cannot find the limits of his knowledge.

"His words are many and he is a determined scholar. He is not abusive or furious. He reaches out without harshness, is generous not a spendthrift, is not deceitful or treacherous, is not a faultfinder or unjust to a human being. He is a friend of the creatures, effortful on earth, assistant of the weak and a helper of the helpless. He does not violate what is hidden or uncover secrets, his trials are a great deal and his complaints very little. He remembers the good that he had seen, covers up the evil that he may observe, hides the defects, safeguards the unseen, corrects slips and forgives mistakes. He does not walk away from an advice that he can give, and he does not give up reforming an unjust instance. He is trustworthy, steadfast, pious, clean, purified and consenting. He accepts excuses, speaks of someone with grace and he is good and expects good from people.

"He accuses his soul of defects, loves for the sake of Allah with understanding and knowledge, cuts off relations for the sake of Allah with firmness and determination. Happiness does not trespass upon him and intense happiness does not make him excited. He is a reminder for the scholar and a teacher for the ignorant. He is not expected to cause a calamity. He is not feared for causing a tragedy, every effort to him is more sincere than his own and every soul is more correct than his own. He knows his defects. He is busy with his own sadness. He does not trust anyone except his Lord. He feels a stranger, lonely, dispossessed and sad. He loves for the sake of Allah, strives for the sake of Allah to follow His happiness. He does not revenge by himself for his own self. He does not make friends to make his Lord angry. He sits with the poor, is a friend of the truthful ones, a supporter of the people of truth and an assistant for those near to him. He is like a father for the orphans, like a husband for the widows, the first hope for the destitute, expected to remove every resentful matter and to relieve every difficulty.

"He is light and happy, is not frowning or sly, is strong, controlling of anger, smiling, sharp-sighted and greatly cautious. He does not ignore, and if ignored, he is forbearing. He is not stingy and if stinginess, is used against him he exercises patience. He understands, thus he is bashful, is content, independent and is self-sufficient. His bashfulness is higher than his lust, his love is higher than his jealousy and his forgiveness is higher than his hate. He does not speak without correctness and does not dress unless it is economical. He walks humbly, is submissive before his Lord in obedience and is happy with Him in all conditions. His intention is pure and sincere. His deeds are free of fraud and deceit. His observations are good lessons, his silence is thoughtful and his words are wisdom. He is advising, charitable and brotherly. He gives good advice in public and in private. He does not abandon his brother, does not backbite him and does not plot against him. He does not regret what he has missed, and does not become sad for whatever befalls him. He does not hope for what is not lawful. He does not fail in hardships and does not perpetrate in comfort. He mixes forbearance with knowledge and reason with patience. He is not lazy but is always active, of very short longing and of very few slips. (Good) is expected through him, his heart is fearful, he always speaks of his Lord, his soul is content, his ignorance is negative, his affairs are easy, he is sad for his sins, his lust is dead, his anger is controlled and his moral behaviors are lucent.

"His neighbors live safely with him, his pride is weak, he is content with whatever is determined for him, his patience is strong, his affair is well established and his remembering (the Lord) is a great deal. He meets people to learn and remains silent for safety, he asks questions to understand, and he trades to earn. He does not remain silent for good to be subjected to injustice, and does not speak to be used in doing injustice to others. His soul is tired of him and people are comfortable with him. He has tired his soul for the gains of the next life and has provided comfort to others by means of his soul. If rebellion is committed against him he exercises patience until Allah finds support for him. His distancing when distancing is needed comes in overlooking and in graceful disregard, and his closeness when closeness is needed comes as kindness and blessings. His distancing is not out of boastfulness or greatness and his closeness is not a plot or deceit. It is because he follows the footsteps of those before him, the people of goodness. Thus, he is the leader for those after him.'"
"The narrator has said that Hammam breathed very deeply and fell down unconscious. Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, said, 'By Allah I was afraid of its effect for him. This is how effective advice works on people deserving such advice. Someone said, 'Why does it not apply to you, O Amir al-Mu'minin?' The Imam said, 'For everything there is an appointed time that is not surpassed and a cause that does not fail. Wait, and do not transgress. It was a blow that Satan made to flow through your tongue.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn Mahbub from Jamil ibn Salih from 'Abd Allah ibn Ghalib from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"It is worthwhile of a believer to have eight qualities:
(a) Dignity in volatile conditions, (b) patience on facing a misfortune, (c) gratitude in comfortable conditions, (d) contentment with what Allah has given him for sustenance, (e) justice for enemies, (f) not to be a burden for the friends, (g) that his own body be tired of him and that (h) people be comfortable with him.'
"Knowledge is the friend of the believer, forbearance is his secretary, patience is the commander of his army, courteousness is his brother and speaking softly is his father."

Abu Ali al-Ash'ari has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Abd al-Jabbar from ibn Faddal from Mansur ibn Yunus from abu Hamza from Ali ibn al-Husayn, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"The believer remains silent for safety and speaks to benefit. He does not speak of his trust to the friends and does not withhold his testimony for the people of distant relationships. He does not do anything good to show off and does not ignore it due to bashfulness. If he cleanses himself he fears what they (people) say, and asks forgiveness for what they do not know. The words (in his praise) of those who do not know do not make him boastful and he is afraid of the sum of his deeds."

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from certain individuals who narrated to him in a marfu' manner from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"The believer has power in religion. He is of solid determination but with soft words, his belief is in certainty, he has greed in deep understanding, is active in guidance, and virtuous in steadfastness. He has knowledge in forbearance, he is smart in friendliness, and generous in truth, modest in wealth, graceful in poverty, forgiving in power, and obedient to Allah in good advice. His desires are ending, he exsercizes restraint against desires, greed in Jihad (hard work for the cause of Allah), prayer in business, patience in hardships, dignity in volatile conditions, endurance in suffering, and gratefulness in comfortable conditions. He does not backbite or act boastfully, nor does he disregard maintaining good relations with relatives and neither is he neglectful. He is not harsh and stubborn. His eyes are not ahead of him and his stomach does not disgrace him, his private parts do not overpower him. He does not envy people; he measures but is not measured. He is not extravagant, he helps the oppressed, he has blessings for the destitute, his soul is tired of him and people receive comfort from him. He is not interested in worldly honor and does not complain because of worldly humiliation. People look forward to be closer to him but he is preoccupied with his own business. No defect is found in his judgment, no flaw is found in his opinion, and no failure takes place in his religion. He provides instruction for those who consult him and assists those who assist him. He shuns indecency and ignorance."

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from certain individuals of his people from in a marfu' manner from one of them (abu Ja'far or abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant,) who has said the following:
"Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, once passed by a gathering of Quraysh where he found the people in white clothes, of clear complexion, frequently laughing and who pointed out their fingers to whoever passed (near) by. Then he passed by a gathering of al-Aws and Khazraj where he found people of worn out bodies, whose necks were thinning, their colors had turned pale and were very humble in their words.
"Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, wondered about his observation, he came to the Messenger of Allah and said, 'May Allah keep my soul and the souls of my parents in service for your cause, I passed by a gathering of the tribe of so and so.' He described them for the Holy Prophet. He then said, 'I also passed by a gathering of al-Aws and al-Khazraj.' He described them for the Holy Prophet. He then said, 'They all are believing people. O Messenger of Allah, describe for me the qualities of the believers.'
"The Messenger of Allah bent down his head for a while, then he raised his head and said, 'There are twenty qualities in a believer without which his belief is not complete. Of the qualities of the believing people, O Ali, is their presence in prayer, quick payment of al-Zakat (charity), feeding the destitute, placing of their hand on the heads of the orphans (to comfort them), cleansing of their clothes, and their tying up their waist with covering. They are those who do not lie when speaking, do not disregard their promise, and do not violate their trust. They tell the truth when they speak up, at night they are monks and are lions during the day. During the days they fast and stand up for worship at night. They do not harm the neighbors and the neighbors do not experience any harm from them. They are those who walk on earth in humble manners, and their steps move to the homes of the widows (to help) and in the procession for funerals. May Allah make us of the pious ones.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Muhammad ibn Sinan from Mufaddal ibn 'Umar from abu Ayyub al-'Attar from Jabir who has said the following:

"Abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'The Shi'a (followers) of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, are only those who are forbearing, scholars, with parched lips and one can find signs similar to those of the monks on their faces.'"

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from al-Hassan ibn Mahbub from 'Abd Allah ibn Sinan from Ma'ruf ibn Kharrabuz from abu Ja'far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Once Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, prayed the morning prayer with people in Iraq. After prayer he gave a speech on having fear of Allah. He wept and made people weep. He then said, 'By Allah, I lived with a people, in the times of my beloved one, the Messenger of Allah, who were ragged, dusty and slim-bellied. Between their eyes it looked like the hooves of a goat. They spent the night in prostration and in standing position before their Lord, only resting on their feet or forehead. They whispered to their Lord to set their necks free from the fire and, by Allah, I saw them in such condition and they still were afraid and anxious (because of the next life).'"

"Al-Hassan ibn Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, once addressed the people saying, 'I like to tell you about one of my friends who was the greatest in my sight. The head of what was the greatest in my sight about him was the worthlessness of the world in his sight. He was free of the control of his stomach, thus, he did not have any appetite for what he could not find; he, however, would not accede when he did find it. He was out of the control of his private parts and it would not weigh his reason and opinion lightly. He was out of the control of ignorance, thus, he would not extend his hands unless he was confident of its benefits. He did not desire, become angry, or disappointed. Most of the time he remained silent, and when he spoke, he surpassed the speakers. He did not enter in arguments or take part in claims. He would not testify without the presence of a judge. He was not unaware of his brothers (in belief) and did not appropriate anything for himself without them. He was the weakest of the weak people but in serious matters he acted as an advancing lion. He did not blame anyone without a good cause. He would do what he said, and would not say what he would not do. When he became attracted to two things that he did not know which is better he would ignore that which he desired most. He would not complain for any pain before anyone unless he had known that one had a cure for it and would not consult anyone unless he had hope for good advice from him. He did not become frustrated, angered, and did not complain, desire, revenge and did not remain neglectful of his enemies. Therefore, you must acquire such noble moral behaviors if you can. You must acquire the little if you cannot bear the whole. There is no means and power without Allah.'"

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn 'Isa from Yunus from Mihzam and certain individuals of our people from Muhammad ibn Ali from Muhammad ibn Ishaq al-Kahili and Abu Ali al-Ash'ari from al-Hassan ibn Ali al-Kufi from al-'Abbas ibn 'Amir from Rabi' ibn Muhammad all from Mehzam al-Asadi who has said the following:

"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, once said, 'O Mehzam, our Shi'a (followers) are those whose voices do not extend farther than their ears and their animosity do not reach beyond their bodies. They do not praise us openly, associate faultfinders with us and do not argue in our defense against our enemies. When they meet the believers they respect and honor them. When they meet the ignorant they distance themselves from him.' I (the narrator) then asked the Imam, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, how should I deal with these pretending Shi'as?' The Imam said, 'With them there are cases of distinguishing, changes and filtrations. Certain years destroy them, plagues kill them, and schisms disintegrate them. Our Shi'a (followers) do not do the barking of a dog or the craving of a crow, do not ask our enemies for help even if he may die of hunger.' The narrator has said that I then asked, 'May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, where can I find them?' The Imam said, 'You may find them around the world. The standard of living of our Shi'a (followers) is low and their homes are transient. Although present in a place, they are not noticeable, in their absence they are not missed, of death they are not frightened, on the graves they visit each other and on being asked for help they show kindness. Their hearts do not have differences even if their homes might be different.' The Imam then said, 'The Messenger of Allah has said, "I am a city and Ali is the door. One who thinks he can enter the city but not through the door is a liar, so also is one who thinks he loves me but he hates Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant.'" supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"Amir al-Mu'minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'Religious people have certain signs by means of which they are recognized. Of such signs are truthfulness in their words, safekeeping of trust, steadfastness in their promise, maintaining good relations with relatives, kindness to weak ones, smaller degree of expectation from women, [or he said, yield to them in smaller degrees], excellence in moral behavior, vastness of moral discipline, following knowledge and that which leads closer to Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, with distinction. Tuba' is for them and the good ending. 'Tuba' is a tree in paradise that has its roots in the house of the Holy Prophet, Muhammad, recipient of divine supreme covenant. 'Which quality is more graceful for a man?' The Imam said. There will be no believer with a home without a branch of that tree. No desire will emerge in their heart but that the branch will provide. A horseman may run under its shadow for a hundred years and the shadow will not end. A crow (with the longest life span in birds) may fly from its trunk upward but before reaching the top of the tree will drop death due to old age. Therefore, you must develop an interest in this. Believers are busy with themselves and people are comfortable with them. When the night grows dark they fix their faces on earth in prostration before Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, with the noblest parts of their body. They whisper to the the One Who has created them, about setting free of their necks from fire and as such you must also become.'"

Chapter Ninety Six
The Rarity of Believers

H 2308, CH 96, h 1
Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Muhammad ibn Sinan from Qutaybah al-‘A’sha’ who has said the following:
“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying, ‘The female believer is more valued than a male believer and a male believer is more valued than alchemy. Who among you has ever seen alchemy?’”

H 2309, CH 96, h 2
A number of our people have narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from ibn abu Najaran from Muthanna al-Hannat from Kamil al-Tammar who has said the following:
“I heard abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying three times, ‘People are animals, people are animals, people are animals, except a few of believers. Believers are rare, believers are rare, and believers are rare, (more cherished).’”

H 2310, CH 96, h 3
Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn Mahbub from ibn Ri’ab who has said the following:
“I heard abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, saying to abu Basir, ‘By Allah were I to find three believers among you who keep our Hadith concealed I would not have considered it lawful to conceal any Hadith from them.’”

Muhammad ibn al-Hassan and Ali ibn Muhammad ibn Bandar have narrated from Ibrahim ibn Ishaq from ‘Abd Allah ibn Hammad al-Ansari from Sadir al-Sayrafi who has said the following:
“Once I went in the presence of abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and said, ‘By Allah, it is your obligation not to sit (without proclaiming your leadership).’ The Imam asked, ‘Why O Sadir?’ I said, ‘Because your friends, Shi’a (followers) and supporters are so many. By Allah, were Amir al-Mu’minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, to have that many Shi’a (followers) as your Shi’a, friends and supporters, no one of the tribe of Tamim or ‘Ady could dare to disturb him.’ The Imam said, ‘O Sadir, how many do you think they are?’ I said, ‘One hundred thousand.’ The Imam said, ‘One hundred thousand!’ I said, ‘Yes, in fact, they are up to two hundred thousand, and I said, ‘Half of the world (population) is your Shi’a.’
“The narrator has said that the Imam remained calm and then said, ‘Is it possible to come with us to Yanbu’?’ I said, ‘It is fine with me.’ He then asked to bring a donkey and a mule already saddled. I hurried to ride the donkey and he said, ‘O Sadir, can you consider to allow me ride the donkey?’ I said, ‘The mule is more beautiful and noble.’ He said, ‘The donkey is friendlier for me.’ I then dismounted and he rode the donkey and I rode the mule. We traveled until it was time for prayer. He said, ‘O Sadir, dismount and we should pray.’ Then he said, ‘This ground is soft, prayer is not permissible here.’ We moved to a red ground and he looked to a boy who shepherded goats. He said, ‘O Sadir, were I to have as many Shi’a (followers) as the number of these goats, then it would not have been permissible for me to sit (without proclaiming my leadership).’ We dismounted and prayed. When we finished the prayer I turned to the goats and counted them. There were seventeen heads of goats in the flock.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Muhammad ibn Sinan from ‘Ammar ibn Marwan from Sama'a ibn Mehran who has said the following:
“A virtuous servant (of Allah), recipient of divine supreme covenant, said to me, ‘O Sama'a, they (pretending Shi’a) found their belief in their beds and they (attempt) to frighten me (ignoring al-Taqiyah). By Allah, once of the whole world and all that is therein there was only one person who worshipped Allah. Had there been anyone else, Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, would have mentioned him with him in His words, ‘Abraham was, certainly, a nation, (in terms of having a whole culture and tradition) obedient and upright person. He was not a pagan.’ (16:120)
“Time passed as Allah willed. Allah then provided him comfort with Isma'il and Ishaq and they numbered three. By Allah, believers are very few and unbelievers (people of imperfect belief) are many. Do you know why that is?’ I said, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, I do not know.’ The Imam said, ‘They (less perfect believers) have become a source of comfort for the believers who spread their secrets to the hearts (of less perfect believers) to find relief and in this they do find relief.”

A number of our people have narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad from Muhammad ibn ‘Uramah from al-Nadr from Yahya ibn abu Khalid al-Qammat from Humran ibn ‘Ayun who has said the following:
“Once I asked abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, how small is our number! It is so small that all combined feasting on a goat cannot finish it.’ The Imam asked, ‘Do you want to hear more astonishing things? The immigrants (Muslim of Makkah) and supporters (Muslim of Madina) all went (to abu Bakr).’ He (the Imam) pointed with his hands, ‘except three, (Salman, abu Dhar and Miqdad) who remained as true supporters of Amir al-Mu’minin (Ali ibn abu Talib, recipient of divine supreme covenant).’ I (Humran) then asked, ‘May Allah keep my soul in service for your cause, what about ‘Ammar?’ The Imam said, ‘May Allah grant him favors, the alert man pledged allegiance (to abu Bakr) but he died as a martyr.’ I (Humran) then said to myself that there is nothing better than martyrdom. The Imam looked at me and said, ‘Perhaps you thought he was like one of the three. That is far remote from reality.’”

"Once I went to see abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, in his illness that he endured and nothing was left of him except his head (due to weakness). The Imam said, I very often O Fudayl, say, 'A man to whom Allah grants belief in this cause (our Divine Authority) will have no trouble even if he were to live on a mountain until the coming of his death. O Fudayl ibn Yasar, people took to the right and left, but our Shi'a (followers) and we found guidance in the right path. O Fudayl ibn Yasar, for a believer it (belief) is better than his having all that is between the East and West. It (belief) is better for him even if he is cut in pieces. O Fudayl ibn Yasar, Allah does not do anything to believers except what is best for them. O Fudayl ibn Yasar, had the world been worth the wing of a fly, Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, would not have allowed His enemies to drink even a drop of water from it. O Fudayl ibn Yasar, whoever finds one goal (the true belief) Allah suffices him in all other goals (affairs), however, one who has a goal in every valley Allah will be concerned the least where he may perish.'"

Believing People are of Two Kinds

بَابٌ فِي أَنَّ الْمُؤْمِنَ صِنْفَانِ

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Muhammad ibn Sinan from Nasir abu al-Hakim al-Khath'ami from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"There are two kinds of believing people: one kind is true to the covenant with Allah and has kept the stipulation as Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, 'Among the believers there are people who are true in their promise to Allah. . . .' (33:23) This kind of believing people do not become subject to any fear, worldly or in the hereafter. They are those who intercede for others but need no intercession. There are the kinds of believing people who are like a sprouting plant that grows straight sometimes and not so straight under certain conditions.

This kind of believing people may become subject to fear in this world as well as in the next life. They need intercession but cannot intercede for anyone.”

A number of our people have narrated from Sah ibn Ziyad from Muhammad ibn ‘Abd Allah from Khalid al-‘Ammi from Khidr ibn ‘Amr from abu ‘Abd Alllah (RecipientofDivineSupremeCovenant who has said the following:

“I heard the Imam saying, ‘There are two kinds of believing people: one kind is true to the stipulations that He has made with him. He is with the prophets, the truthful ones, the martyrs and the virtuous ones. These indeed are good companions. Such ones intercede on behalf of others but they themselves do not need anyone’s intercessions on their behalf. Such believers do not suffer from any frightening thing in this world or in the hereafter. There are the believers who lose balance. Such believers are like a sprouting plant that deals with the wind as it goes. Such believers face the frightening things in this world and in the hereafter. A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from Isma'il ibn Mehran from Yunus ibn Ya’qub from abu Maryam al-Ansari from abu Ja’far, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Once a man in Basra stood before Amir al-Mu’minin (Ali ibn abu Talib), recipient of divine supreme covenant, and asked, ‘O Amir al-Mu’minin, speak to us of brothers (in belief).’ The Imam said, ‘Brothers are of two kinds: Trustworthy brothers and smiling brothers. The trustworthy brothers are one’s palms, wings, the family and wealth. If they are trustworthy you may spend and work for them, be sincere to those sincere to him, and be the enemy of his enemies, conceal his secrets and faults and publicize his virtuous qualities. You (questioning person) must know that they are as rare as alchemy. On the other hand, you may enjoy the smiling brother’s association that you should not cut it off from them but do not seek anything beyond it of their conscience. Do for them as much as they do for you like a happy face and sweet expressions.’”

Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Ali ibn al-Nu’man from Dawud ibn Farqad from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Allah has made a covenant with a believer (to have patience) when his words are not accepted as true and he does not avenge his enemies. A believer will not have any satisfaction without subjecting his soul to disgrace (before his own conscience); every believer is harnessed (as to his soul in the matters of worldly desires).”

A number of our people have narrated from Sahl ibn Ziyad and Muhammad ibn Yahya from Ahmad ibn Muhammad all from ibn Mahbub from abu Hamza al-Thumali from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

"The Messenger of Allah has said, 'Allah has made a covenant with a believer to exercise patience in the face of four kinds of misfortunes: the least serious of these is the envying of another believer against him who has the same belief, or a hypocrite that follows him (for hypocritical reason), Satan who tries to tempt him or an unbeliever against whom Jihad (working hard in the way of Allah) is necessary may cause him suffering. What then is left for a believer?"

He came to the people, warning them against disbelief and the next day he was murdered." The Imam then said, 'A believer may suffer any form of misfortune and die by any form of death but does not commit suicide.'"

The Messenger of Allah said, 'It is the suffering of the body from certain forms of trouble.' The narrator has said that the faces of those who heard it changed and when he noticed the change in their faces he asked them, 'Did you understand what I meant by what I just said?' They said, 'No, O Messenger of Allah.' He then said, 'What I meant was that a man suffers a scratch or a set back, a slip, or illness, or is pricked by a spike or such other things.' “A believer is so important to Allah that if he asks Him paradise and all that is therein, He will give it to him without any shortages caused to His kingdom. The unbeliever is so insignificant before Allah that if he asks the whole world and all that is therein, He will give it to him without any shortages caused in His kingdom. Allah is committed to sending misfortune to the believers just like one’s commitment to his family in sending them souvenirs during his absence from home. Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from his father from ibn Mahbub from Sama'a from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
“It is in the book of Ali, recipient of divine supreme covenant, that the people who suffer from the most intense form of misfortune are the prophets, then the successors of the prophets, then are people of closer position to the successors of the prophets and so on are the other groups. The trials of the believers are proportionate to their good deeds. Whoever’s religion is perfect and his deeds are good, his suffering is more intense because Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has not made this world the reward for the believers or punishment for the unbelievers. Whoever’s religion is inferior and whose deeds are weak, his misfortunes are less. The misfortunes come quicker to the believers than rain to well situated land environment.”

“Once I said to abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, ‘About this thing that has appeared on my face, people think Allah does not make suffer (from this) any servant in whom He is interested.’ The Imam said, ‘The believer among the people of Pharaoh had crippled fingers. He would extend his fingers and say, “My people follow the Messengers (of Allah).”’ Then the Imam said to me, ‘In the beginning of the third part of the night get up and make Wuzu and stand up for your prayer that you pray. In the last prostration of first two Rak’at say, “O the Most high, the Most great, O Beneficent, O Merciful, O the One Who listens to the prayers, O the One Who grants all good, bestow blessings upon Muhammad and his family, recipients of divine supreme covenant, and grant me the good things of the world and of the next life and of that which You deem proper to grant me. Remove from me the evil of this world and of the hereafter and of that which You deem proper to grant and remove from me this pain - mention its name - it has angered and depressed me,” Then insist pleading.’ The narrator has said that before I reached al-Kufah, Allah had removed that entire thing from my face.”

Chapter One Hundred Three

The Excellence of the Poor Muslims

H 2371, CH 103, h 1

Ali ibn Ibrahim has narrated from Muhammad ibn ‘Isa from Yunus from Muhammad ibn Sinan from al-‘Ala’ from ibn abu Ya’fur from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“The poor Muslims will stroll in the gardens of paradise forty years before the wealthy Muslims. An example of this is the case of two ships arriving at the tax collector’s post. The tax collector searches one of the ships and finds it empty. He withdraws and the ship is free to go. But he finds the other ship full of goods. He then orders his people to follow the accounting procedure.’”

H 2372, CH 103, h 2

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from his father from Sa'dan who has said the following:

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Misfortunes are gifts from Allah and poverty is in His treasure.’”

H 2373, CH 103, h 3

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) in a marfu’ manner from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“The Messenger of Allah has said, ‘O Ali, Allah has made poverty a trust in His creatures. Whoever hides it, Allah grants him a reward equal to the reward for a fasting person who stands at night to worship Allah. One who reveals it to a person, who is able to help but does not help, it is then as if he has killed him. Although he has not killed him with a sword, or with a spear, but has done so by breaking his heart.’”

H 2374, CH 103, h 4

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Muhammad ibn Ali from Dawud al-Hadhdha’ from Muhammad ibn Saghir from his grandfather, Shu’ayb from Mufaddal who has said the following:

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘As the belief of a person increases in strength, his poverty intensifies.’”

H 2375, CH 103, h 5

Through his chain of narrators (Ali ibn Ibrahim) has said the following:

“Abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, ‘Had it not been due to the believers’ pleading before Allah to increase their sustenance, He would have moved them to a poorer condition.’”

H 2376, CH 103, h 6

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from certain individuals of his people in a marfu’ manner from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“Whatever a servant is given of worldly things is to make him learn a lesson and whatever is withheld from him is to place him under the trial.’”

H 2377, CH 103, h 7

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Nuh ibn Shu’ayb and abu Ishaq al-Khaffaf from a man from abu ‘Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:

“For our pure Shi’a (followers) there is nothing under the rule of the unjust power more than bare necessities. Westernize or Easternize, you will never gain more than bare necessities.”

H 2378, CH 103, h 8
Muhammad ibn Yahya has narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad from Muhammad ibn al-Hassan al-Ash'ari from certain individuals of his teachers from Edris ibn 'Abd Allah from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"The Holy Prophet has said, 'O Ali, the need (poverty) is Allah's trust with His creatures. Whoever keeps it secret Allah grants him a reward equal to that for one who prays, but if he reveals it to one who is able to help and does not help he has killed him, not with a sword or spears, but has killed him by breaking his heart.'"

It is narrated from him (narrator of the Hadith above) from Ahmad from Ali ibn al-Hakam from Sa'dan who has said the following:
"Abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, has said, 'On the Day of Judgment Allah, the Majestic, the Glorious, will turn to the poor believing people, similar to an apologetic one, and will say, "I swear by My Majesty and Glory that I did not make you suffer poverty in the world, considering you insignificant. You will find out how I treat you today. Hold the hands of those who helped you in the worldly life and take them to paradise." The narrator has said that the Imam then said, 'A man from among them will say, 'O Lord, people competed in their world to marry, dress up in fine garments, to have fine food, nice houses, and riding best animals, thus, give me what you had given to them.' Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, will say, 'You and every one of you will have what I had given to the people of the world from its beginning to its end, seventy times as much.'"

He said, 'O Lord, save us from the evil intentions of the unbelievers. . . .' (60:5) Thereafter Allah made these (believing people) rich as well as needy and those (unbelievers) wealthy as well as poor and needy."

A number of our people have narrated from Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Khalid from 'Uthman ibn 'Isa from those he has mentioned (in his book) from abu 'Abd Allah, recipient of divine supreme covenant, who has said the following:
"Once a wealthy man in clean clothes came to the Messenger of Allah and sat down near the Messenger of Allah. Thereafter a poor man in not so clean clothes came and sat next to the wealthy man who then pulled his clothes away from underneath the thighs of the poor man. The Messenger of Allah then asked the wealthy man, 'Did you fear his poverty might stick to you?' The wealthy man said, 'No, that was not the reason.' The Messenger of Allah asked, 'Did you fear that something from your wealth might go to him?' He said, 'No, that was not the reason.' The Messenger of Allah said, 'Did you fear that your clothes may get dirty?' He said, 'No, that was not the reason.' The Messenger of Allah asked, 'What then was the reason?' He said, 'O Messenger of Allah, I have an associate who makes every evil thing attractive to me and vice versa in every good thing. I have decided to give half of my wealth to him (the poor man).' Remove this curtain and look what I have given you in exchange for your poverty in the world.’ The Imam said, ‘He will then raise the curtain and say, ‘(O Lord,) your withholding the wealth of the world from me in exchange for what You have kept in reserve for me has not harmed me at all.’”

Had all unbelievers been given so much wealth, the common Muslims might have abandoned their religion considering the prosperity of the unbelievers as a sign of Allah’s happiness with them. In fact, according to Allah, worldly things are of no significance at all.

“Once I went to see abu al-Hassan, recipient of divine supreme covenant, and he said to me, ‘Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, supports a believer with a spirit from His side who attends him in all times that he performs a good deed and observes piety. The spirit remains absent in all times that he commits sins and transgresses. The spirit vibrates with joy when he does a good deed and turns into a despicable thing and lowly to earth when he commits a sin. O servants of Allah, be committed to benefit from the favors of Allah to correct and reform yourselves; it (commitment) will increase your certainty and you earn fine and valuable things. May Allah grant favors to those who think of doing good and perform it or think of committing something bad, but refrain and desist.’ The Imam then said, ‘We support and strengthen the spirit by means of obeying Allah and working for Him.’”
